Mr. Turner's Gas Bill.

When Will Turner was a boy, it was well known that he was inclined to be hasty and revengeful. Many efforts were made by his parents to check his quick temper and to teach a spirit of forgiveness, but as he grew older, he declared freely that "tit for tat" was to be his motto, and if the rule didn't work well, why, it would be his own fault.

Notwithstanding these unfortunate traits, Mr. Turner was generally well liked by his friends, for he was sociable, generous and frank, and as people were usually inclined to use him well and fairly, the vindictive part of his nature was mostly kept in the background.

He was now not only grown to man's estate, but was married and pleasantly situated in a pretty home of his own, and, although he was kind and indulgent as a husband, it troubled his young wife not a little, that in instances even of trifling importance, in which he thought himself wronged, he would pursue the matter in so persistent and bitter a manner, that nothing short of the literal "utmost farthing" in payment or apology, would satisfy him.

"Why not overlook it?" his wife would say, when some slight event of an unimportant nature would grieve him to an unreasonable degree, making her very uncomfortable, as well as himself. "I don't my way," he would reply, and the battle would be fought to the bitter end.

"I'm afraid," said old Uncle Caxton, "that some day Will is destined to find out that patience is better than exactness, and that a little giving in is better than holding out until the very last moment."

Uncle Caxton was a shrewd old man, whose business career had been a prosperous one, and it was generally understood that a couple of nephews, of whom Will Turner was one, would eventually gather in the old man's profits.

One autumn day, the "gas man," as he was called, went to the cellar, examined the meter, and was about to go out when Mr. Turner, encountering him, said lightly:

"Well, I guess you don't find we've consumed much gas this quarter; been away over a month, and the house shut up. Warm weather, too, doesn't favor gas light very extensively."

The man replied rather slowly:

"No, you haven't used so very much; but pretty well, however."

Mr. Turner stood looking thoughtfully at the retreating figure of the man, his wife said:

"A penny for your thoughts, Will; you seem to be attracted by yonder figure, it seems to me."

"I think that fellow means mischief," he replied; "when the gas bill comes, I want to see it."

And when the bill came, it was to the amount of eight dollars and seventy-five cents. On seeing the figures, Mr. Turner set his lips tightly together, then remarked angrily:

"Just as I expected! Here we've only been in the house a month, and no gas burned during the time to speak of, on account of the warm nights and the mosquitoes. And here comes a gas bill exceeding in amount what we usually burn in a longer time during the longest evenings. I shall make a fuss about it!"

"It would be well enough to inquire," his wife replied mildly, "but I wouldn't make a fuss." Probably they will believe what you say at the office, and make it all right. We certainly have not used gas to that amount during the last month."

When Mr. Turner presented himself at the gas office, he was evidently excited over something, but when he made known his grievance, the clerk said respectfully that the only way in which a matter of that kind could be decided was by careful reference to the meter. He offered to go himself and make a minute examination which Mr. Turner said he wished he would do.

But the examination only convinced the clerk that the previous calculation of the amount of gas consumed during the quarter was perfectly correct.

In vain Mr. Turner declared it "a swindle, a perfect cheat and a conscienceless gouge," the clerk remained firm, and Mr. Turner declared in language more forcible than gentlemanly, that he would never pay the first cent of such an outrageous bill, "never!"

The president of the Gas Light Company finally went personally to investigate the matter, and only confirmed the accounts given by the clerk and his assistant as to the quantity of gas used, and the amount due in consequence.

Mrs. Turner tried repeatedly to exert a judicious, calming influence over her irritated companion, but it was of no use. He declared more vehemently than ever he would never pay a cent of that bill, "never!"

After a while a note was sent from the Gas Company, saying if the bill was not paid within a certain time, the gas meter would be removed.

"Let them remove it," cried Mr. Turner, defiantly; "then I'd sue them as sure as I live!"

A few days afterward, when he returned from business, Mrs. Turner informed him that no gas would be available that night, the meter having been removed.

Uncle Caxton was away, else he might have interposed some needed counsel, but there was no knowing just when he would return, and nothing Mrs. Turner could say availed to turn her husband from his purpose. A high-priced lawyer was engaged, and when the case came on, Mr. Turner lost it, the Court promptly deciding that the law was on the side of the Gas Company.

But another lawyer pretended to have it in his power to prove the law to be on Mr. Turner's side, so he engaged the new counsel and determined to carry the case into court again. He was hurrying through the streets one day intent on executing dire vengeance on that Gas Company, when suddenly he met Uncle Caxton.

In the midst of his angry prosecution, it did him good to meet the old gentleman with his placid face and gentle manner. They had talked but a few minutes when his uncle remarked with a smile:

"Oh, by the by, Will, it was a mighty fortunate thing your leaving one of your latch-keys with me, in case I wanted to look at one of your books after you went away, and before I started. I was going by the house one day, when I happened to see a light in the cellar, and on going in to investigate, I found some one had left the gas burning brightly; must have been going about three weeks, full blast."

For a moment Mr. Turner made no reply, then he managed to say:

"It was my own stupid oversight. I remember perfectly going into the cellar and lighting the gas, the night before I went away, but I don't remember putting it out again."

After the expenses at court, and the lawyers had been paid, Mr. Turner found that in order to meet his liabilities for the next month, he would be obliged to borrow money of somebody, and after a nearly sleepless night, he went to good old Uncle Caxton and told the whole miserable story.

"I'm going to listen to advice hereafter," he added, "and not let my temper and a spirit of vengeance get the better of my judgement every time."

"I declare, if I thought you'd do that," said Uncle Caxton, "I'd give you your law money and done with it. How much does it amount to?"

"I've paid it," said Will, evading the question; "but want to borrow some money for immediate use, if you can accommodate me."

His uncle smiled.

"It's the old story, eh, of paying out a hundred dollars to recover one?"

"Just about," said Mr. Turner; "but it's a lesson I shan't need to learn but once."

"All right," said Uncle Caxton; "I'll accommodate you."

A little Quincy boy of three winters, while playing with his papa's watch was cautioned not to turn the stem winder quite so freely, if he did he would break it. The child's inclination to pay but little attention to his papa's warning, necessitated his mamma to reiterate.

"Do you hear what papa says?" don't turn the winder again." Whereupon the little fellow said "mamma, will you buy me a watch?" "Yes, when you are a little older." "Well buy me one with a door turn."

The publisher of the New York Times says that during the 35 years he has been in the newspaper business, he has had from four to sixteen libel suits on hand at a time, and has never yet paid one cent damages.

There are at present over five hundred Americans in the Bermudas, enjoying the winter climate there. The season lasts till about the Middle of May.

He Took No Risks.

"You say that you live with your parents?" said a china dealer who was putting a lot of youngsters through a civil service examination for the position of errand boy in his establishment.

"Yes, sir."

"And you are quick at figures?"

"Yes, sir."

"Now, suppose I had dropped around the corner to get lunch, and a lady should come along who wished to purchase two dozen cups and saucers at $1.50 a dozen."

"Yes, sir."

"After agreeing to take the goods she hands you a five dollar note. How much change would you return to her?"

"Two dozen cups and saucers?" asked the boy, gazing toward the ceiling.

"That's what I said."

"She must be a bordin' house keeper to—"

"Never mind what she is. How much change would you hand her?" asked the dealer.

"A dollar and a half a dozen?"

"Yes, yes. Now, then?"

"Don't you think that's pretty darn high for—"

"Never mind whether it's high or low. How much money would you return to the lady?"

"But them five dollars might be bad," ejaculated the boy, winking at the store cat.

"We will suppose the bill to be good," said the dealer, sharply.

"I don't see what one woman wants to buy all them cups and saucers for, anyway. When my sister got married, she didn't set up housekeeping with near so—"

"Then you can't give me the answer?"

"What—'bout the change?"

"Yes, yes."

"Oh!"

"Come, what is the answer?"

"Well, murmured the boy, shifting to his other foot, and keeping an eye on the cat. "I'd just tell the lady to call 'round when you was in and get her change, for the bill might be a bad un, and I don't never take no risks."

"You're engaged," ejaculated the dealer.—California Maverick.

I Have Done It.

A good story has recently been going the rounds of the papers and is too good to leave unmentioned. Wife—I wish that man would go home, if he has one to go to."

"Landlord—"Hush! Hush! He will call for something directly; he is taking the shingles off his own house and putting them on ours."

"At this moment the drunken man rubbing his eyes, and arising said: "I believe I'll go." Don't be in a hurry, James," said the landlord. "Oh, yes, I must go," said James; and, having gone, he did not soon return. After an absence of some time, the landlord met him and said: "Hello! James, why ain't you been down to see us?" "Why, I have taken so many shingles off my house it began to leak; so I thought it time to stop the leak, and I have done it," said James.

THE REASON. Country editor (to farmer)—Well, how do you like my paper? Farmer—First rate. The one I got last week wuz a big improvement over the other one you sent me. Editor (warmly)—I am pleased, my dear sir, to hear you so express yourself. Would you care if I were to print your statement? Farmer—Not at all. Editor—All right; I'll publish your statement. It might be the means of increasing my circulation in your neighborhood. Was there any special article that commended itself to you? Farmer—No I believe not. Editor—Then why did you think so much of the last issue? 'Cause the copy I got wa'n't printed on but one side.

HAD BEEN THERE BEFORE. They had been spending a week in Washington on their bridal tour, and were over one day looking at the monument.

"There is nothing so high in this city as this, is there love?" she asked, with bridled confidence.

"Yes darling," he replied, "there is."

"Why, love, I didn't know it. What is it? Take me to see it, won't you?"

"Yes, darling, it is the price of board and lodging, and you may see it when I get the bill."

It is now proposed to have inauguration day changed to the 30th of April, for on that day in 1789 George Washington first took the oath of office.

Summary of News.

What Children Should Learn.

What children require to be taught more than anything else is to spell correctly, to read intelligently, to write a good, plain hand, and to know arithmetic, grammar and geography. If children can be taught these thoroughly, even if they get no more schooling, they will do well, and if they possess average intelligence, combined with perseverance and a desire for knowledge, they will be able to improve themselves as they go through life. What they need first is a solid foundation to build upon.

Remember This.

There are ten things for which no one has ever yet been sorry—for doing good to all, for speaking evil of no one, for hearing before judging, for thinking before speaking, for holding an angry tongue, for being kind to the distressed, for asking pardon for all wrongs, for being patient toward everybody, for stopping the ears of a talebearer, and for disbelieving evil reports.—Selected.

A QUEER LIQUOR LAW. A liquor law introduced into the Ohio Assembly provides that nobody shall sell, give, or furnish intoxicants to be used as a beverage to any person who is not a legal habitual drinker, and does not have with him a certificate showing that he is such a drinker. Any resident of Ohio more than twenty-one years of age may become a legal habitual drinker by making affidavit before the Probate Judge of his county, registering his name, age, residence, and occupation and paying fifty cents for registry and the certificate which the Judge will thereupon issue. Selling to a non-registered drinker is a misdemeanor punishable with fine and imprisonment.

TOWN SEAL. At the annual town meeting held in Hingham, March 1st, the town voted to adopt a Seal. The following is the design. Two circles, one within the other, enclosing between them the words "Church, School, Train Band, Town Meeting," at the top of the inner circle "Bare Cove, 1633," and at the bottom, "Hingham, 1635." In the centre is a view of the old meeting house, fort and the monument to the first settlers.

CHURCHES. There are in the city of New York 489 churches, chapels and missions of all kinds, with accommodations for about 375,000 persons. The salaries of the ministers and running expenses are estimated to about $3,000,000. New York compares very favorably with London in this respect; the age, size and wealth of the British capital being taken into consideration.

FOR YOUR SCRAP-BOOK. According to the Gregorian calendar, which is in use in all Christian lands, every year of which the number is divisible by four without a remainder is a leap-year, except the centennial years, which are only leap-years when the first two figures are divisible by four. Thus 1600 was a leap-year, but 1700 and 1800 were common years. The next centennial leap-year will not occur until 2400 A. D.

Mr. Moody tells of an old woman who during the late war started out with a poker when she heard the enemy were approaching, and when asked what she could do with a poker in driving back armed soldiers, replied: "I can show them which side I am on."

Two locomotives built exactly after the same model have different rates of speed and drawing power. This difference in speed has been known to reach fifteen miles an hour.

Ten years hence, considering the other casualties, as of death, retirement for disability, and so on, officers who have served in the war for the Union will constitute a minority in the active army, while those who had achieved fame as general officers of volunteers will be rare exceptions.

There is a cat in Connecticut, eight years old, of the tiger variety, that weighs thirty-two pounds. He is believed to be the biggest tame cat in the country. The late A. T. Stewart's office cat weighed eighteen pounds.

President Cleveland has removed Fred Douglas as register of deeds in the District of Columbia, and given the place—worth $8000 a year—to J. C. Matthews, a colored lawyer of Albany, thereby sorely disgruntling Washington Democrats.

The Connecticut legislature, without debate, has passed a bill exempting from taxation property to the amount of $1000 owned by honorably-discharged soldiers or sailors, or their widows or widowed mothers.

Fast Day.

His Excellency, George D. Robinson, governor, has issued the following proclamation for a day of fasting, humiliation and prayer:

With the advice and consent of the executive council I do hereby appoint Thursday, the 8th day of April next, to be kept throughout this Commonwealth as a day of fasting, humiliation and prayer.

In real accord with the penitential spirit which prompted this ancient custom, let all the people implore Almighty God for forgiveness of their sins and errors.

Let them renew their solemn vows of fidelity to the saving influence of truth, purity, charity, justice and religion. Let them in no unmeaning form, but in heartfelt sincerity in word and work, testify to their unfaltering obedience to God's holy law.

"Is not this the fast that I have chosen: to loose the bands of wickedness, to undo the heavy burdens, and to let the oppressed go free, and that ye break every yoke? Is it not to deal thy bread to the hungry, and that thou bring the poor that are cast out to thy house?"

Given at the council chamber, in Boston, this twenty-fourth day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-six, and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and tenth. GEORGE D. ROBINSON.

OIL ON THE WATERS. The British steamer Acton, Capt. Gowing, from Baltimore, Feb. 19th, has arrived at Queenstown. Fearful storm occurred during her voyage, in which boats were lost, two sailors were washed overboard, and another was killed at the wheel. The Acton was hove to all day on Feb. 25, when a hurricane was blowing. At 10 o'clock that evening enormous waves broke over the vessel, sweeping the decks and carrying off two men. The wheelhouse was swept away and the steering gear destroyed. For a number of hours the steamer was at the mercy of the waves. The captain and mate narrowly escaped with their lives. At this juncture large quantities of oil were poured on the water. The effect was most gratifying; the sea being quieted so that the crew was able to make repairs and save the vessel.

WEEKLY PAYMENTS. Weekly payments have become quite general in western Massachusetts, and on the whole the change has proved beneficial, although its results has not been as sweeping or immediate as its advocates anticipated. In some few instances the factory operatives still continue the old credit system in spite of the fact that they are now able to pay cash each week.—Chicago Journal.

WHALEBONE. No article of commerce is subject to greater fluctuations in price than whalebone. It may sell for $2 a pound in January and $5 in June, according to the catch and the run of ice in the whaling regions. The main supply comes from the North Pacific, arriving in November. The South sea supply arrives in June. New Bedford and San Francisco are the great whaling ports.—Chicago Times.

BICYCLING. A Bavarian gentleman named Wolff and a pupil have travelled to Rome by bicycle from Trenton in six days, counting in the great delays the snow caused them. They crossed the Alps and Alpennines without any damage to their machines.—Brooklyn Eagle.

HALF A MILLION "HOLLOS." It is estimated that 50,000 conversations take place over the wires in New York every twenty-four hours. For each message there must be at least five "hollos," which would make 250,000 "hollos" going over the wires daily.

Every citizen is benefited more or less by the home paper. Every town is better for having a good live paper. There is no doubt about it, and every dollar you pay for subscription or advertising puts life into the home paper. Support it; you will gain in the end.

At a dinner given lately in New York, the dining room ceiling was covered with a net work of vines fastened from the chandelier to the four corners of the room. The vines were literally covered with flowers.

Nearly twice as many women voted for school committee in Mass. in '85 as in the year preceding, viz., 3225. A little larger measure of suffrage for the women could very safely and wisely be given by the ruling sex.

The advance in the value of real estate in New York city this season is remarkable. Even the East side of the town is bringing prices never dreamed of before. It is said that the increase in the value of the Astor estate is not less than $5,000,000.

A Business-Like Suitor.

In the town of Hopkinton, New Hampshire, lived a certain Deacon Small. In his advanced age he had the misfortune to lose the rib of his youth. After doing penance by wearing a weed on his hat a full year, he was recommended to a certain Widow Hooper, living in an adjoining town.

The deacon was soon astride of an old brown mare with sorrel mane, and on arriving at the widow's door he discovered her in the act of turning her suds from the wash-tub. The deacon said:

"Good afternoon."
"Good day, sir."
"Is this Widow Hooper?"
"Yes, sir."
"Well, widow, I came over here to have a little chat with you."

"Very well."
"Well," continued the deacon, "I am that little, old, dried-up Deacon Small, and I have only one question to propose to you."

"Please propose, sir."
"Well, madam, have you any objections to going to Heaven by way of Hopkinton?"

The widow hesitated.
"None at all, deacon," was the reply.
"Won't you come in?"

Suffice it to say that they were married the next week.

Donald McLellan, aged 120, is living in destitute circumstances in Detroit. Fifty years ago he came here from Scotland, where his grandfather had been a companion of the famous Rob Roy.

Of more importance in school administration than the giving of rewards and prizes, is the subtle power of the good teacher to win the affection and respect of his or her pupils. Without the latter but very little good work can be effectively done.

His Eyes Were Opened.

A laboring man, leaving a large saloon, saw a costly carriage and a pair of horses standing in front, occupied by two ladies elegantly attired, conversing with the proprietor. As it rolled away he said to the dealer:

"Whose establishment is that?"
"It is mine," said the dealer, complacently. "It cost $1,000. My wife and daughter cannot do without it."

The mechanic bowed his head a moment in thought and looked sad. Then with the energy of a man suddenly aroused by a startling flash, he said:

"I see it! I see it!"
"See what?" queried the dealer.

"See where for years my wages have gone. I helped to pay for that carriage for those horses and that gold-mounted harness; for the silks and laces and jewelry of your family. The money that I earned that should have given my wife and family a home of their own and good clothing I have spent at your bar. My wages, and the wages of others like me, have supported you and your family in luxury. Hereafter my wife and family shall have the benefit of my wages, and I will never spend another dime for drink. I see the mistake and a cure for it."

Five thousand dollars at a single entertainment is considered a low estimate of the price paid by the Whitneys, of Washington, for social preferment.

William A. Bowers, a carrier in the Boston postoffice, has written 5238 words upon a postal card with a lead pencil. He is now devoting his spare time to writing one with a pen, which will contain probably about 12,000 words.

Lieutenant-Governor Ames was a purchaser of one of a pair of superb Minton vases, for $3000, at the Morgan sale in New York. Mr. Fred L. Ames bought six pictures of the collection, costing $40,000 in all.

Mr. S. M. Pettengill, the veteran advertising agent of New York, has sold out his good-will to J. H. Bates, who will consolidate the Pettengill agency with his own April 1.

In one respect our navy leads the world. On the retired list of the United States navy there are forty-nine rear admirals, each drawing $4500 a year. No other has so many of these officers in proportion to its size.

The Storm King bridge over the Hudson river is now to be built by private capitalists, and it is said the reduced prices of freight will make coal fifty cents a ton cheaper and some other things proportionately cheaper.

Small brother—"Where did you get that cake, Annie?"
Small sister—"Mother gave it to me."
Small brother—"Ah! she always gives you more than me."

Small sister—"Never mind; she's going to put mustard plasters on us when we go to bed tonight, and I'll ask her to let you have the biggest."

BLACKSMITHING!

THE Subscriber is prepared to do all kinds of Blacksmithing at his old stand on Quincy Avenue, in a first-class manner. Particular attention given to

Horse Shoeing

THE QUINCY PATRIOT.

SUPPLEMENT.

The Quincy Patriot.

ATURDAY, APR. 17, 1886.

After Many Days.

When I was a young fellow I lived on father's farm, down there in Connecticut. You've seen the place. The church was near the tavern, and behind the church was the parsonage; and there lived Dominie Wheeler and his daughter Dolly. On Saturdays, after I had my supper, I used to dress myself, and tell my mother that I meant to call on Dominie Wheeler's folks. Mother generally answered that I couldn't do better; that the dominie's conversation was sure to be improving, and that Dolly was not "bitty-tity, like some gals she could mention."

Father would add: "And a pretty little critter, too." And armed with parental approval, I would go to the parsonage. It was a good time to go, for the services had to be finished, as a general thing, on that evening, and Dolly and I had delightful long talks in those solitary moments, and one evening I proposed to Dolly, and she accepted me. The dominie gave us his blessing, father and mother said they could not have chosen a daughter-in-law to suit them better, and all they asked was that we should wait a little while.

"My daughter is not seventeen years old yet," said the dominie. "You must not be in a hurry to take her from me." "Wait two years, and you will be three-and-twenty, and I'll give you the new farm and build you a house," said father.

Our course of true love seemed to be running very smooth, indeed, and I would have staked my life and soul, and a pretty heavy stake on my constancy. But, somehow, I think Satan thought we were too happy, and laid a trap for me.

Doctor Robins' widow, a managing woman with a big house, was in the habit of taking summer boarders, and every year a lot of city strangers wandered about the place from June to September.

When Dolly and I had been engaged about a year and a half, the widow had thirty boarders in her house, and Ike and Edwin, and all the male help slept in the barn.

There was one young lady there, a Miss Sally Grey, so pretty that every one who saw her was talking about it. And I was introduced to her. Some women have a way of making a man act against his better judgment. She was one of them. I did not mean to flirt with her, but I did. I did not mean to meet her in shady lanes, and in the quiet wood paths, but we met. She knew (I suppose Ike Robins had told her) about my engagement, and she teased me about being afraid of my sweetheart.

"Such a good, prim little thing," she would say. "Is she dreadfully shocked at me? Does she think I am a flirt? Does she pray for me in meeting?"

I felt angry, but yet I was piqued in proving myself free to do as I pleased. At a little evening party, to which we were asked, I danced five dances with her, and when, at last, my conscience smote me, and I went to look for Dolly, I found she had gone home.

"She said her pa wanted her," said Mrs. Robins; "but I tell you plainly, James Gardner, I don't believe it; and for my part, I don't see what people can find to admire in that impudent New York girl." If my Tilly behaved like her, I'd shut her up on bread and water until she reformed.

I hurried away, but the parsonage was shut up when I got there, and I spent an hour walking up and down behind the house, staring at the dark windows.

The time seemed very long until the next evening, and I went over to the parsonage very early; but Dolly was not there.

"She's gone to spend the evening somewhere," said the dominie, kindly. "I suppose she forgot to leave word for you to come for her. She isn't very well; either a cold, I suppose. I know I generally caught cold at a party when I was young and attended such entertainments. I hope she'll be careful. Her poor mother died of consumption."

My heart gave a great leap. I thought of Dolly ill, dying, plainly, and I went into the kitchen and asked the servant if Dolly left any message for me.

"She said she wouldn't be home to-night," answered Nora; "at least, this evening, I mean, and she did not leave word where she was going."

Nora understood, I saw. I felt terribly injured, and I made up my mind to revenge myself by spending the evening with Sally Grey.

She was at home, the servant girl said, and I found her waiting in the parlor for me. We had it to ourselves. Mrs. Robins never came in, nor any of the other boarders; indeed, it was now growing late in the season, and they were almost all gone away. If I never knew how to flirt before, Sally Grey taught me how that night, and when I took leave of her I was imprudent enough to tell her I should like to kiss her.

"Do it, if you desire," said she. And then! Yes, I kissed her; and as I did it the door opened, and we started apart, and there stood Dolly. She had seen it all.

"I left my bonnet here," she said. "Mr. Isaac is going home with me, and I came to get it. Sorry to disturb you."

She was very cool and contemptuous. She tied her bonnet on at the glass; threw her little mantle over her shoulders; and went out. Next day she broke our engagement and sent me back my ring.

The next week I left home and went away to sea. Some one had told me that Dolly was going to marry Ike Robins.

Mother wrote to me often; but never mentioned Dolly and I never asked about her. I lived with men, generally on the sea, and had no thought of liking or caring for any woman. I always intended to go home and see the old folks, but they died of a fever within two days of each other, and a stranger sent me the news.

Lawyer Dredgers sold the estate, and did what I asked him to do with the money. I did not need it then, but it would keep me from being a beggar in my old age. And still I sailed the sea, until forty years old, when an accident happened to me which came near being my death. It did not kill me or cripple me, but I was no longer fit for a sailor's life, and there was nothing left for me but to settle down on land and live on my money; and so I went home at last to talk to Lawyer Dredgers, and get his advice.

I felt very sad as I walked through the village. My parents were dead, no one remembered me; I had not a friend in the place.

The lawyer had done his best to make my money profitable to me, and I was richer than I dreamed. When all the business was over I took a moonlight stroll through the street. It was ten years since the night I kissed Sally Grey, and lost my love by it; but nothing had altered in the outward aspect of the place.

People were sitting on their porches as of yore; the same flowers seemed to bloom in the gardens; the same loungers to stand about the tavern door; the same young men and girls to hang up on the garden gates. It was odd to think that the girls might be the daughters of those I knew.

There stood the church; there the parsonage. I walked toward it. The windows of the sitting room were open. I drew softly near and peeped in.

The old clock ticked in the corner. The old rag carpet was either the same or another just like it. There was only one blue vase on the mantel. I suppose the other had been broken; but there were the profiles of grandpa and grandma Wheeler over the escritoire.

There was Dominie Wheeler, looking very much older, sitting exactly as he used to sit beside the table, his red handkerchief over his knees, a cup of tea in his hands.

"Dolly," he said. And from an inner room came a woman, large, handsome and high-colored, who said:

"Well, father?"

Could it be my slim young Dolly. Yes, it was. She was very fine looking now, and she looked so maternally that I immediately concluded that she was Mrs. Isaac Robins.

Still I could not leave the window. "It was my one glimpse of her," I said to myself, "for years past and years to come."

"Well, father?" she said, and turned smiling toward him.

"I've been thinking it over, Dolly," he said. "I think it would be best for you to marry. I am eighty. I cannot live long. You had better marry Mr. Braham. He is very fond of you. You like him, I am sure. Is it for my sake you say so?"

She bent over him and put her hands on his shoulders.

"Father," she said, "I am going to tell the truth, a thing a woman seldom does in these matters. I should not have to leave you; so it is not for your sake, much as I love you. But I do not care for Mr. Braham. I have only cared for one man in my life—my first love, James Gardner. I sent him away from me, and he had done very wrong; but I think now that we both loved each other. I know that, even now, I cannot forget him, and that I never shall forget him while I live."

There were tears in her eyes; she brushed them away. In another moment I was at the door; she opened it. I held out both my hands. Those were Dolly's girlish eyes that looked at me, and I caught her in my arms.

"I have come back to be forgiven, Dolly," I said, and I saw that I had not come in vain.

According to Cushing.

He had never presided over a deliberative assembly, but he knew what he wanted (which is the main thing for the chairman of a meeting to know), and he said: "Twenty-five gentlemen have voted yes, and forty gentlemen have voted no, and the motion is carried." "How do you make that out?" shouted several voices. "Why," said the chairman, "you go according to Cushing, don't you?" The disgruntled ones, had to admit that they did. "Well, then," continued the parliamentary neophyte, "doesn't he say that two negatives are equivalent to one affirmative?" There was a tendency to doubt that Cushing contained any such rule until one old gentleman, who had voted in the negative, said: "It's no use, fellows; we're beaten; I've heard that rule ever since I was a youngster."

A Parcel's Wanderings.

On the 5th of November last a lady in London, England, sent a parcel by mail to her sister in Detroit, containing some little articles of baby wear of her own make. The parcel not arriving the post office authorities were notified but no trace of it could be found. On Monday the package reached its destination here accompanied by the following letter:

DANBURY, CONN., March 17. This package was found today by my husband in a paper mill in Danbury while sorting old paper stock. Very respectfully, Mrs. Wm. McArthur, Danbury, Conn.

The package had been securely sealed at London, letter postage paid, and the original address was still on it. By what means Uncle Sam let it get into the waste paper has not yet been ascertained.—Detroit Tribune.

A Happy Family.

A Kentucky farmer moving to Kansas the other day chartered a box car, into which he put eight horses, with his two sons and a dog to look after them. The boys had comfortable quarters in one end of the car, and as there was plenty of room, the thrifty old farmer put in two beehives. As they were jolting along, the bees got warmed up and came out to inquire what it all meant. The response of the boys and the dog was as lively as possible. All made for the door, the boys yelling to stop the train and fighting the bees with their bats. The dog was first out, yelping and howling, and the others came tumbling after. By the time the conductor got the train stopped and help arrived, the bees were out in full force and furiously mad. It was only after a pitched battle that the hives were removed and the horses saved. Some of the bees got into the passenger coaches where they made things lively and warm for the passengers, but after a hard fight they were vanquished.

File Your Newspaper.

We do not know how many of our subscribers preserve their paper by filing it, but earnestly advise them all to do so. It will cost little or nothing. All that is necessary is to take a sheet of stout brown paper and lay each copy into it after you have read it, and then, when you have a volume laid away, stitch the whole through the back with strong linen thread. Thus you can have a work of reference as to local events that will be very handy to have in the house, and will be of great value to your children and children's children. A single copy of a 100-year-old newspaper is now of great value, and a whole volume is a treasure. Keep your papers on file, and they will be a big legacy to your children.

A boy living within sight of Plymouth Rock weighed 304 pounds (at last accounts) though he is only fourteen years old. He has grown at the rate of fifty pounds a year of late.

A Patent Bed.

A Parisian millionaire, M. Lang, has recently had made for him a wonderful bed, which is certainly one of the most luxurious pieces of furniture we have yet heard of. If it could only become universal, what a boom it would be to early risers! The description makes one envy the fortunate possessor. The bed itself is a model of comfort, and the following devices have been adopted to render rising from it as little unpleasant as possible: When it is time to get up a chime of bells rings. The occupant continues to sleep. Suddenly a candle is lighted by a clever mechanical arrangement. The sleeper rubs his eyes, and an invisible hand proceeds to divest him of his nightcap. By means of electricity a spirit lamp with coffee-roasting apparatus affixed next begins to burn. The water soon boils, and the smell of coffee fills the room with a delicious fragrance. Luxuriously revelling in a crowd of agreeable sensations, the occupant, now just beginning to awake is soothed by sounds proceeding from a costly musical box. At length the bells ring out another merry peal, and at the foot of the bed a card with "Levez-vous" ("Get up") inscribed on it appears. If this invitation is without effect, a powerful mechanism lifts the occupant bodily from his bed and deposits him on the floor.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

SATURDAY, APR. 17, 1886.

Pie not a Yankee Invention.

Pie is not one of the inventions which a punitive providence left for the exercise of Yankee genius. It is very much older than America, so far as the modern age knows anything about America. It is French, Spanish, Italian, English, German. It is of the north. It was carried into the British Islands by the marauding migrants from the northern seas. Our own word is a corruption of a very early British word, and is, in etymology, a first cousin of "pastie" or "pasty." Pie is our name for what is now familiarly known as "tart" in the land where all was once pasty.

The tart of today differs from contemporaneous pie only in this: The interior of the tart is thicker than the interior of the pie. It takes more apples to make a tart than to make a pie, if the pie-maker be frugal, as she generally is. In the European countries the tart is baked in a deep earthen dish. In Yankee land pie is stewed into soggi-ness in a tin pan.—Chicago Herald.

Sealskin Sateques.

The process of manufacture is interesting. The raw skin goes to London, where it is dyed and dressed. This labor consists of two dyeings, with a plucking of stiff and gray hairs in between. Good dyeing is performed with a comb and brush and requires great patience. Women are the best workers at this, as their touch is more delicate than a man's. An entire day is necessary to properly dye a skin. The process of dipping the skin into the dye works harms the hair and materially injures the skin.

Only about 700 of every 1,000 skins can be used for dressing. When the dressed skin arrives the manufacturer stretches it and nails it to a board, with the fur inward, and a search for imperfections is made. These can only be discovered on the skin side, and it takes a keen and experienced eye to find most of the blemishes. They are generally shown in minute imperceptible discolorings of the skin, which, if not immediately cut out, will extend and rot the fur above them until the hairs drop out. When discovered these spots are cut out and skilful hands are set to work to sew up the incision. Often a cut six inches long has to be made to get rid of a spot not much larger than a nail head. To bring the pieces together again, without patching and without visible seam, requires the utmost delicacy. After this is done a paper pattern is placed on the skin and it is cut accordingly. Then the skin is finished and lined, and the garment is ready.—New York Star.

Boys Should Learn.

Not to tease boys and girls smaller than themselves.

Not to take the easiest chair in the room, put it into the pleasantest place, and forget to offer it to the mother when she comes to sit down.

To treat their mother as politely as if she were a stranger lady, who did not spend her life in their service.

To be as kind and helpful to their sisters as they expect their sisters to be to them.

To make their friends among good boys.

To take pride in being gentlemen at home.

To take their mothers into their confidence if they do anything wrong, and, above all, never to lie about anything they have done.

To make up their minds not to learn to smoke, chew or drink, remembering that those things cannot be unlearned, and that they are terrible drawbacks to good men and necessities to bad ones.

To remember that there was never a vagabond without these habits.

To observe all these rules, and they are sure to be gentlemen.

Didn't Exactly Know.

"Jimmy, what's a clearing house?" asked one street laborer of another as he leaned wearily on his broom to wait for a reply.

"I'm not exactly on to it," was the answer.

"It can't be a sugar refinery?"

"I think not. I think I had a case of it once myself, but I may not be right."

I put a little mortgage on my place, and when it came due the fellow cleared me out of the house so fast that we entirely forgot one of the children and had to go back for him."

There are six thousand Jews in New York City and not one of them keeps a grog shop. They know a trick worth two of that; they just follow after, picking up the old clothes.

The Bean Game.

This game is becoming a popular amusement among the people of all ages. It is a healthy, exciting parlor game in which as many can engage as desire, and affords a great deal of fun. A board 3 feet long and 16 inches wide, with a hole 6 inches long and 4 inches wide cut in centre of board 10 inches from the top, and a brace 14 inches high elevating the top and giving the board the proper slant, constitutes the bean board and can be made by anyone. Place this in the corner of a room and the player takes a position in front of it, about 12 or 15 feet away, and with 7 sacks loosely filled with a half pound each, and one "Jumbo" sack containing one pound of beans. The game is to throw these sacks through the hole in the board. Each of the ordinary sacks count the players 10 when they go through the hole; when they rest on the surface of the board they count 5; and when they are pitched or fall off board they count 10 off. "Jumbo" makes or loses double the others in either case. It is very easy for a new player to come out "worse than nothing." The seven sacks are made of any ordinary colored calico and "Jumbo" is usually made of red calico.

Lost His Satchel.

A quiet-looking gentleman walked down a railway platform in search of a place in a train which was almost full. He stopped before a car in which there was a vacant seat—no, not quite vacant; on it stood a small black satchel. "Room here?" demanded the quiet gentleman. "No," growled the stout one. "No one is sitting there"—pointing to the satchel. "Got out—coming back—his satchel!" growled the stout passenger. The newcomer had his own views as to how far this vague answer was trustworthy, for he said, in his quiet tones, "I will sit there until your friend returns." The train began to move. "Your friend is late," said the quiet one. The train was fairly in motion. "Your friend has lost the train," exclaimed the quiet one, in a tone of sympathy, "but," he added, "he shan't lose his property!"—and he hurried the black satchel out of the window on to the platform. The stout traveler made an ineffectual effort to save the satchel, and then burst out into language not that of blessing. The bag was, of course, his own.

The Governor of Pennsylvania has made Arbor Day an annual festival. The people of that state observe it very generally in planting trees.

The smallest man in Pennsylvania is Ellis Reinhart, of Goldsboro. He is twenty-eight years old, thirty-three inches high and weighs sixty-four pounds.

Jimmy Brown's Troubles.

I'm going to stop improving my mind. It gets me into trouble all the time. Grown up folks can improve their minds without doing any harm, for nobody ever tells them that their conduct is such, and that there isn't the least excuse in the world for them; but just as sure as a boy tries to improve his mind, especially with animals, he gets into dreadful difficulties.

There was a man came to our town to lecture a while ago. He had been a great traveler, and knew all about Rome and Niagara Falls and the North Pole, and such places, and father said, "Now, Jimmy, here's an opportunity to improve your mind; go and take your mother, and do take an interest in something besides games."

Well, I went to the lecture. The man told us all about the Australian savages and their boomerang. He showed us a boomerang, which is a stick with two legs, and it will go and hit him, and come back of its own accord. Then he told us about the way the Zulus throw their assegais—that's the right way to spell it—and spear an Englishman that is more than ten rods away from them. Then he showed a strong string with a heavy lead ball on each end, and said the South Americans would throw it at a wild horse, and it would wind around the horse's legs, and tie itself into a bow knot, and then the South Americans would catch the horse. But the best of all was the account of a bull fight he saw in Spain, when the Queen was sitting on the throne, and giving a crown of evergreens to the chief bull fighter. He said that bull fighting was awfully cruel and that he told us about it so that we might be thankful that we are so much better than those dreadful Spanish people, who will watch a bull fight all day and think it real fun.

The next day I told Mr. Travers of the boomerang, and he said it was all true. Once there was an Australian savage in a circus, and he got angry, and he threw his boomerang at a man who was in the third story of a hotel. The boomerang went up one street and down another, and into the hotel door, and up stairs, and knocked the man on the head, and came back the same way right into the Australian's hand.

I was so anxious to show father that I listened to the lecture, and I made a boomerang just like the one the lecturer had. When it was done, I went into the back yard, and slung it at a cat on the roof of the house. It never touched the cat, but went right through the dining room window, and gave Mr. Travers an awful blow in the eye, besides hitting Sue on the nose. It stopped right there in the dining room, and never came back to me at all, and I do not believe a word the lecturer said about it. I don't feel encouraged to tell what father said about it.

Then I tried to catch Mr. Thompson's dog, that lives next door to us, with two lead balls tied on the ends of a long string. I didn't hit the dog any more than I did the cat, but I didn't do any harm except to Mr. Thompson's cook, and she ought to be thankful that it was only her arm, for the doctor said if the balls had hit her on the head they would have broken it, and the consequences might have been serious.

It was a good while before I could find anything to make an assegai out of; but after hunting all over the house I came across a lovely piece of bamboo about ten feet long, and just as light as a feather. Then I got a big knife blade that hadn't any handle to it, and had been laying in father's tool chest for ever so long, and fastened it on the end of the bamboo. You wouldn't believe how splendidly I could throw that assegai, only the wind would take it, and you couldn't tell when you threw it where it would bring up. I don't see how the Zulus ever manage to hit an Englishman; but Mr. Travers says that Englishmen are all so made that you can't very well miss them. And then perhaps the Zulus, when they want to hit them, aim at something else. One day I was practicing with the assegai at our barn door, and made believe it was an Englishman when Mr. Carruthers, the butcher, drove by, and the assegai came down and went through his foot and pinned it to the wagon. But he didn't see me, and I guess he got it over after a while, though I never saw him again.

But what the lecturer taught us about bull fights was worse than anything else. Tom McGinnis's father had a terrible bull in the pasture, and Tom and I agreed that we'd have a bull fight, only, of course, we wouldn't hurt the bull. All we wanted to do was to show our parents how much we had learned of the geography and habits of the Spaniards.

Tom McGinnis's sister Jane, who is twelve years old and thinks she knows everything, said she'd be the Queen of Spain, and give Tom and me evergreen wreaths. I got an old red curtain out of the dining room and divided it with Tom so that we could wave it in the bull's face. When a bull runs after a bull fighter another bull fighter just waves his red flag, and the bull goes after him and lets the first bull fighter escape. The lecturer said there wasn't any danger so long as one fellow would always wave a red flag when the bull ran after the other fellow, and of course we believed him.

Pretty nearly all the school came down to the pasture to see the bull fight. The Queen of Spain sat on the fence, because there wasn't any other throne, and the rest of the fellows and girls stood behind the fence. The bull was pretty savage, but Tom and I had our red rags and wasn't afraid of him.

As soon as we went into the pasture the bull came for me with his head down and bellowing as if he was out of his mind. Tom rushed up and waved his rag, and the bull stopped running after me and went for Tom, just as the lecturer said he would.

I know I ought to have waved my red rag, so as to rescue Tom, but I was so interested that I forgot all about it, and the bull caught up with Tom. I should think he went twenty feet right up in the air, and as he came down he hit the Queen of Spain and knocked her about six feet right against Mr. McGinnis, who had come down to the pasture to stop the fight.

The doctor says they'll all get well, though Tom's legs are all broke and his sister's shoulder is out of joint, and Mr. McGinnis has got a new set of teeth. Father didn't do a thing to me—that is with anything—but he talked to me till I made up my mind that I'd never try to learn anything from a lecturer again, not even if he lectures about Indians and scalping knives.—Harper's Bazaar.

The Family Purse.

The money question between husband and wife is one of the most serious drawbacks to the happiness of married life, and it is time that it was adjusted on a more just and equal basis. The life of utter dependence which some women lead is crushing and degrading. Men do not realize the utter helplessness and vacuity to which the system reduces women. Now, does anybody believe that it is necessary for the family that the wife should go to the husband for five cents every time she needs it for a spoon of thread, postage stamps, needles, pins, or any other necessity?

Is it right or just to take for granted her imbecility in money matters before she has been tested? Is it not frequently the case that just such women, left to their own resources by a failure in some speculative scheme with the burden of a family on their inexperienced shoulders, often display wonderful powers of energy and calculation, in addition to thrift and persevering industry? Examples of this sort ought to put all such men to shame.

Women, as a general rule, can make one dollar go as far as two in the hands of men; and many conceited individuals who now consider that the social system bounded by the four walls of their dwelling would cease to revolve if they were taken out of it, would find great happiness and pecuniary advantage by putting the control of all the interior details of their homes into the hands of their wives, with a division of the income equal to the requirements.—Woman's Journal.

OUT UNTIL THE SMALL HOURS. A wealthy citizen of a neighboring city had been out until the small hours with convivial companions. It was not exactly a "dry locality" that he had visited, and he arrived home slightly exhilarated. He managed, by describing several erratic rather than geometrical lines, to get to his bed-room and into a chair. Then he called to his wife in a stage whisper: "I can't get my boots off." "What's the matter with your boots?" "Nozzin'" (in a faint whisper). "What's the matter with your hands, then?" she cross-examined. "Nozzin'." "Why don't you pull your boots off, then?" "Maria, I've forgot the combination!"—Boston Record.

American Landlordism.

There is no longer room for doubt that a persistent, and so far successful, effort is making to establish in this country the principle of English landlordism which for so many years has weighed down and impoverished Ireland, and all the other dependencies of Great Britain, to a greater or less degree. It is now fully established that one William Scully of London has during the past few years secured possession of 90,000 acres of choice prairie land in Illinois, and 100,000 acres in Kansas and Nebraska, buying it at $3 to $5 an acre, in small tracts. Much of this land he has rented to tenants on the most exacting iron-clad leases, a virtual chattel mortgage, binding tenants to forfeit all improvements and even growing crops, stock, tools, etc., for rent. The tenant signs a lease for five years; the first two, on unimproved land, he pays only taxes; the third year he pays taxes and $1 an acre, and the fourth and fifth he pays taxes and $1.50 an acre. No tenant can leave the land in five years, after supporting his family, in any better condition than when he took it, remaining a veritable slave, and if he gives up before the termination of the agreement, he surrenders everything by its terms to Scully. The land is now worth at least $30 an acre, on an average. It is high time the American Congress took effective cognizance of this and similar outrages, unless indeed it purposes maintaining a position of criminal negligence towards the dearest rights of American citizenship. If it temporizes much longer, the time is not far distant when the people will take the question in their own hands and apply a remedy which may be of an heroic nature.

Heart Renting.

Dude—Why—aw—what is the matter with you my—aw—dawning?
Dudine (sobbing)—Oh! oh! oh! my do-o-o-gie is dead.
Dude—Yaw dawnt say! But aftah all there's—aw—no use cwyng about it, yaw know. You can get another one.

Dudine—I know I can get another one but I loved this one and I haven't even got a photograph of him, the poor darling. Oh! what shall I do?

Dude—You mustn't give way to your grief, my love, you must be up, indeed you must. Come let me dry your tears. Ther! my poosh stwicken child! you were quite bwave when your father died.

Dudine—I know—but—and to think of it I am just out of mourning for that sad event and now I must put it on again.

Dude—Well, my love, there's some consolation, you look charming in black.

Dudine—(drying her tears and smiling)—Do you think so? Then perhaps it is a blessing after all.

"Peritiveness an' Grammar."

The pay-train stopped at Willow Bend to pay the railroad hands and to liquidate claims for cattle on the track in that section. A gaunt, hungry-looking granger stepped up to the smart young man who was dispensing the cash in the rear end of the car.

"Got my name on your books mister?"

"How should I know unless you tell me your name?"

"Kerrect you are. You have got the edge on me there. Well my name is Rufus McConkey."

"Yes," said the young man, referring to his books, "Mr. McConkey, I have got you down for a hog."

"Have me down for a hog, have you? Well, I'll have you down for a half an hour, and I'll be on top of you, makin' it sorter excitin' to you if you don't revise that expression. Now, say after me: 'Colonel McConkey, School Trustee, Fourth District—Your name, sir, is on this here list as a boney fider creditor of the I. and G. N. Railroad, which the amount are $10, the vally of one spotted Berkshire hog; said amount of $10, it do me proud to hand to you. Won't you have a cigar, Colonel?'"

The smart young assistant paymaster repeated after Mr. McConkey word for word, handed Mr. McConkey the $10, and then gave him a cigar.

Col. McConkey put the hammer of his six-shooter back to half-cock, and then strode out, muttering:

"Some city chaps think they're smart, but they'll find they has to come out on the peraries to learn peritiveness an' grammar."—Texas Siftings.

Liquor Cases.

The Dedham Transcript, noticing the liquor cases that came before the Superior Court at Dedham last week, says:

"The above case was prosecuted to final conviction by Officer Faxon of Quincy, who believes that if those who take an appeal from the lower court for the sake of delay and in the hope that something may turn up by which they may escape the clutches of the law, should be dealt with in the same manner as Mrs. Tripp, there would be fewer cases of appeal. It should be remembered that the expense of criminal prosecutions in Norfolk County last year reached the sum of $24,026.99—over $8000 a term—and that at least half of it might have been saved were it not for the business brought to the Superior Court through appealed liquor cases, which were already adjudicated by the judges of the lower courts. The expense to Mr. Faxon in following up the 300 cases which he has handled so far is estimated at $30 each—about $9,000. There is probably not another man in the country who would spend his time and money in enforcing the laws relating to liquor selling as does the above named gentleman, and the town of Quincy is enjoying a national reputation in consequence."

"There is a demand throughout Norfolk County for Faxon's, but they do not grow on every bush. The town of Franklin, at its last annual meeting, voted to spend $4000 this year in suppressing the liquor traffic in that town. Other towns would willingly spend money for this purpose, but without a Faxon, it is of doubtful expediency."

The Beauty of Old Age.

The dear and worthy rector of an Episcopal parish in Connecticut wishing to write a sermon on the beauty of long life, went to see a not far distant neighbor who was past 90 to get from him some hint of the secret of his many years. He told the old man his errand, and the nonagenarian made answer thus: "Well, I don't know ex I can tell exactly how it is; when I was 5 year old I s'pose I had the worst temper ever a young un was cussed with." "Yes, yes," said the rector, intently. "Well, I s'pose from that day to this there ain't been a day I ain't been mad about suthin'. This mornin' things ain't gone right with me, and I'm gittin' madder and madder over that calf gittin' into the wagon-house and chewin' up the saddle-cloth. I shall hev to begin to smash round and cuss right away and if you're the parson—" "Good morning, my friend," said the parson, with inward disturbance and only a faint hope of readjusting his mind to his sermon.

How We Grow.

Twenty-five years ago, says the Cincinnati Spokesman, we were 30,000,000 of people; now we are nearly 60,000,000. Then we had 141 cities and towns of over 8,000 inhabitants; now we have 286 of such cities and towns. Then, the total population of our cities was 5,000,000, now, it is about 12,000,000. Our coal mines then produced 14,000,000 tons, now, 86,000,000 tons, or six times as much. The iron product amounted to 900,000 tons of ore; today it foots us over 8,000,000 tons a year, almost a ninefold increase.

In 1860 our mental industries employed about 53,000 hands, consumed $100,000,000 worth of material, and turned out about $180,000,000 in annual products. Today these industries employ 300,000 hands, consume $380,000,000 of material and their annual product amounts to $600,000,000 a year.

In 1860 the wood industries employed 130,000 persons; today they employ 340,000, while the value of their annual product has trebled. The woolen industry employed 6,000 persons then, and now employ 160,000; while our home mills, which produced goods of the value of $80,000,000 in 1860, now turn out an annual product worth $270,000,000.

In 1860 we imported 220,000,000 yards of cotton goods, in 1881 we only imported 70,000,000 yards. In the meantime, the number of hands in American cotton mills has increased to 2,000,000, and we export nearly 150,000,000 yards of cotton goods a year instead of importing 227,000,000, as we used to do.

The total of our exports has doubled. In 1860 it stood at $400,000,000, and now it stands at about $900,000,000.

Twenty young men of Lee, Mass., recently began at the same time to allow their beards to grow. At the end of three months the one whose beard shows the least growth must pay for the suppers for the rest of the party.

Mrs. Frank Smith, who lives in the west part of Petersham, recently drove a tramp from the house with a toy pistol. She had given him a dinner, and he refused to get out of the house.

A Wareham correspondent tells of some notable things in that town. With 3400 inhabitants it has about 800 children in the public schools. The cost is $12 to a pupil, and nearly $3 for each resident. The taxes amount to $6 for each person, but are only $12 per $1000. There were only two deaths in the town in the first three months of the year.

A Middleboro genius claims to have discovered perpetual motion. His machine is a wheel which he describes as always having a weight a little in advance of its line of centre of gravity.

Working women in London cover and embroider sunshades at three-quarters of a penny apiece, and if work can be got, skilful workers do two dozen sunshades a day.

A three year old child of Mr. and Mrs. Woodcock, in Webster, was choked to death by forcing a stick into the throat, it fingered from morning until 11 o'clock at night.

Alfred E. Fiske has held the office of town clerk in Charlton, since 1854, with the exception of one year, and has also been town treasurer twenty-one years.

It is claimed that a lady in Oshkosh has a coffin for a bedstead, and every night lies down to rest in it with as much serenity as those who retire in the conventional manner.

Lumber dealers say that the collapse of roller skating has left large quantities of boxwood on their hands without a market. The various processes of photo-engraving upon a metal surface have further reduced the former demand of engravers for box wood, which is becoming cheaper.

Of the $10,000,000 three per cents embraced in the 185th call, $5,440,350 are held by national banks to secure circulation and public moneys.

It is said that there is a movement in Chicago to call a national convention of business men, to devise means of defence against organized labor.

During the year ended February 28, 1886, the exports of the United States were less and the imports greater than for the preceding year.

Florida.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA., Mar. 6, 1886. To the National Editorial Association: The delegation to whom was assigned the duty of proceeding to Florida, at the request of the Florida delegation to your convention held in Cincinnati, Feb. 23d, 24th and 25th, 1886, to report upon the condition of the orange and other crops affected by the recent frosts, after thorough investigation, beg leave to report as follows:

In a journey of 600 miles, covering nearly 30,000 square miles of territory, at nearly every important station we have visited the orange groves, where we have had ample opportunity to examine the state of the trees and the extent of the damage done.

Not only so, but at nearly every station there have been exhibits of oranges, cuttings from the trees, etc., showing the different stages of the advance already made in leaves, buds and blossoms.

These have been supplemented at many points by exhibits of vegetables and grain of excellent quality. The country traveled over comprises the main orange producing district of the State.

In nearly all of that district we found evidence of the frost. In many places the lemon and other less hardy fruits are killed.

These trees are, however, of rapid growth and will be speedily replaced by new trees.

In many localities favored with groves sheltered in some degree by trees, or other advantageous circumstances, the frost was not sufficiently severe to kill the leaves of the trees.

In other localities the leaves have dropped from the trees and the fruit is destroyed. A large portion of the crop, however, had been gathered before the frosts came, thus lessening the severity of the damage.

Those trees that have lost their leaves are rapidly coming out anew, and new leaves, buds and blossoms were seen in many of the groves.

It seems to be the universal opinion among orange growers that the frost will really be a benefit to the people of Florida, in showing that orange trees are able to withstand more severe frosts and colder weather than has heretofore been considered possible, and in encouraging the discovery or invention of more efficient methods for the protection and preservation of the crop.

Our observations led to the conclusion that the reports so unfavorable to the orange industry which followed the coming of the frost were largely the result of the panic among the orange growers themselves arising from insufficient information and a uniformly favorable experience, extending through many years, and the few weeks which have since elapsed have changed the face of nature and lifted the cloud from Florida's great interest.

We also add as the result of our travels our testimony as to the enterprise, intelligence and hearty hospitality of the people, and our firm belief in a prosperous future for the State.

OBITUARY. Mr. C. C. Child, of Boston, well and favorably known to the paper and printing trades as the manufacturer of the "Acme" printing presses, and paper cutters, died suddenly at his residence, on Stoughton street, Dorchester, on Tuesday evening, March 23d, from heart disease. He had been at his business office during the day, remained in Boston till nine o'clock in the evening, assured his friends that he was well as usual, retired to his chamber soon after and in a few moments passed away, without a struggle.

WORTH KNOWING. Now here is something which is really worth making a note of. If a piece of charcoal is laid on a burn the pain will subside immediately, and if left upon the burn for an hour, will cure it. This seems almost incredible, but as a piece of charcoal is readily procurable, it should be kept in every house for immediate use, and its efficacy tested.

How IT WORKS. The Des Moines (Iowa) State Register says that prohibition has "killed the town" so badly that last year it expended more money for improvements than all anti-prohibition cities in Iowa put together. Over $3,000,000 was expended here in actual improvements. The Register goes on to say that Des Moines can stand a good deal of this kind of "killing," and it hopes the process will continue.

Gov. Robinson has done exactly the proper thing in reappointing Mr. Tarbox, who is the most efficient Insurance Commissioner the state has ever had, thereby practically illustrating his belief in common-sense civil service reform.

Rumor again has it, and apparently on good authority, that President Cleveland is soon to marry. The happy lady is said to be Miss Folsom, of Buffalo, a daughter of his former law partner.

REGULATIONS
—OF THE—Board of Health
—OF THE—
TOWN OF QUINCY.

THE Board of Health of a town shall make such regulations as it judges necessary for the public health and safety, respecting nuisances, sources of filth, and causes of sickness within its town, and whoever violates any such regulations shall forfeit a sum not exceeding one hundred dollars. Public Statutes, Chap. 80, Sec. 18.

The Board shall give notice of all regulations made by it by publishing the same in some newspaper of its town, . . . such notice shall be deemed legal notice to all persons. Public Statutes, Chap. 80, Sec. 19.

REGULATION 1. Every householder shall keep his premises free from all nuisances and sources of filth that are injurious to the public health and safety.

REG. 2. All privy vaults and cesspools shall be emptied before the fifteenth day of May. During the summer season they shall be disinfected and emptied as often as shall be necessary to keep them free from offensive odors.

REG. 3. From the fifteenth day of May to the first day of October, no privy vault or cesspool shall be emptied between the hours of 6 o'clock in the morning and ten o'clock in the evening.

REG. 4. No person shall deposit the contents of any privy vault or cesspool, or any other filth, upon any premises within the limits of this town, without first having obtained a permit to do so from the Board of Health.

REG. 5. No privy, vault or cesspool that is not water-tight shall be maintained within two rods of any well, spring, or other source of water supply used for drinking purposes.

REG. 6. Water from the kitchen sinks shall not be allowed to run under any house, nor shall any cesspool for the retention of such waste water be within five feet of any house, except the cesspool be cemented water-tight.

REG. 7. All putrid or decaying animal or vegetable matter, manure, garbage and every kind of filth must be removed from all cellars, yards and outbuildings before the first day of June.

REG. 8. No person shall throw or deposit in any street, sidewalk, court, square, public place, or vacant lot; or into any pond, creek, river, brook, canal, or ditch, any dead animals, decaying vegetables, offal, dirt, garbage, refuse, manure, or the contents of any privy, vault or cesspool, or filth of any kind. No person shall allow any liquid from swill teams to drain upon any public or private way within the town.

REG. 9. No person shall allow the sewage from his premises to flow into the canal, or into any pond, brook, or open ditch, or upon any sidewalk, gutter, or street surface, or upon any public or private way, or to form open stagnant pools in any place within the town.

REG. 10. No person shall be allowed to maintain a piggery, within the town without a permit from the Board of Health.

REG. 11. Any well, spring, cistern or other source of drinking water that is contaminated from any surface drainage, cesspool, privy, sink spout or other source of water pollution must be disused.

REG. 12. No person shall be allowed to carry on any offensive trade or manufacture within the town, without the consent of the Board of Health.

REG. 13. When a householder knows that a person within his family is sick of cholera, small-pox, diphtheria, croup, scarlet fever, measles, or any other disease, dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Board of Health, and upon the death, recovery, or removal of such person, the rooms occupied and the articles used by him shall be disinfected by such householder in a manner approved by the Board of Health. Any person refusing or neglecting to comply with either of the above provisions shall forfeit a sum not exceeding one hundred dollars. Public Statute, Chap. 80, Sec. 18.

REG. 14. When a physician knows that a person whom he is called to visit is infected with any disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Board of Health, and if he refuses or neglects to give such notice he shall forfeit for such offence not less than fifty nor more than two hundred dollars. Public Statutes, Chap. 80, Sec. 80.

REG. 15. No child or adult person belonging to a household in which Small-pox, Diphtheria, Scarlet Fever, Measles, or any contagious disease exists, or whose residence has a common entrance with such household, shall be allowed to attend any public or private school until the expiration of two weeks, after the death, recovery, or removal of such sick person; and every such child or adult person shall be required to present to the teacher of the school, a certificate from the attending physician, or a member of the Board of Health, stating that he is free from contagion, and that the requirements of this regulation have been complied with, Public Statutes, Chap. 138.

REG. 16. No person, teacher, or scholar shall become a member of any public or private school, until he has shown satisfactory evidence that he has been successfully vaccinated.

REG. 17. No person shall sell, offer for sale, or bring into the town for sale, any diseased, putrid, stale or unwholesome meat, fish, vegetables, fruit, or provisions or any adulterated article of food. Public Statutes, Chap. 263.

All complaints in relation to nuisances and sources of filth, injurious to the public health and comfort, must be made in writing to the Board of Health, or its agent.

Whenever complaint shall be made as aforesaid, the Board of Health, or its authorized agent, shall proceed to examine the premises complained of, and shall take measures to abate the nuisance, if such is found to exist, after giving legal notice to the parties entitled thereto.

These rules and regulations, and all the Statutes of the Commonwealth relating to health and disease, shall be strictly enforced in the town of Quincy.

Road Making in Quincy.

We have some ten miles of roadway that should be made in a very thorough manner to a width of thirty feet, and on those ten miles a curb stone should be set to keep the roadway in any kind of order. The cost of curbing in either case, paving or macadamizing, will be the same, about 400 feet at a mile, on each side of the road, at a cost of 75 cents per foot, set, 30,000; corner pieces, 8500 more. Paving ten miles, 17,000 yards; add cost at 81.20 per square yard, $21,120; add cost of curb, and the total $27,020 to the mile; aside from the grading which will be the same in either case. Now a paved roadway when finished is not the most agreeable and comfortable to ride over for pleasure, nor is it the best for the purpose of travel. The continual jar on wagon and horse and the rolling from stone to stone is a source of annoyance and discomfort to both man and beast and it is also a great wear upon both beast and wagon.

For the Patriot.

Village Improvement Society.

The work begun, grows rapidly, and it will be gratifying to those who work for the Quincy society to drive about and note the tasty little yards with, maybe, only one tender tree set out, or the larger places where more labor is being expended in adorning grounds. Some of our generous friends are improving the public spaces, and there never was a spring when so many trees were set out, as now.

That Tired Feeling
The warm weather has a debilitating effect, especially upon those who are within doors most of the time. The peculiar, yet common, complaint known as "that tired feeling," is the result. This feeling can be entirely overcome by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which gives new life and strength to all the functions of the body.

"I could not sleep; had no appetite. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and soon began to sleep soundly; could get up without that tired and languid feeling; and my appetite improved." R. A. SANFORD, Kent, Ohio.

Strengthen the System Hood's Sarsaparilla is characterized by three peculiarities: 1st, the combination of remedial agents; 2d, the proportion; 3d, the process of securing the active medicinal qualities. The result is a medicine of unusual strength, effecting cures hitherto unknown.
Send for book containing additional evidence.
"Hood's Sarsaparilla" times up my system, purifies my blood, sharpens my appetite, and enables me to make my work over." J. F. TOWNSEND,

SPRING OPENING
Of all kinds of MILLINERY,
Mrs. C. E. Snow's.

It is very doubtful if there is any vegetable cultivated to the extent which asparagus is that is so little understood; unfortunately most writers on asparagus during the past century and a half, until a very recent period, have copied from an old writer instead of writing from practical knowledge; this early writer on the subject was a Frenchman, and as he claimed to find asparagus growing on the borders of a salt marsh, he jumped at the conclusion that it was a marine plant, and therefore required considerable quantities of salt, and as it was found in a cold heavy soil, he recommended that it should be grown in such soil. Both conclusions were decidedly wrong, but they were repeated so many times that they were accepted as established facts. The writer of this article, having been taught not to accept any statement regarding the production of any crop as an established fact until proved by practical tests, entered more than thirty years ago upon a line of experiments to ascertain the best soil and the best treatment for asparagus.
The result was such as to convince the writer that the asparagus would not only grow larger in a warm, sandy soil without salt than in a heavy soil either with or without salt, but that the flavor was so much better it would command a market price at least 20 per cent. higher. When this fact was fully established it was freely communicated to others; today most of the large growers of asparagus, for market, grow it on light soil without salt, but the small growers for home use still cling to the teachings of the old books and cover their plants with salt, and as soon as the soil of setting water fills on a sandy bank as asparagus on a light sandy loam.
Asparagus being a very hardy plant will endure much bad management and still furnish fair crops, but if one desires to get it to its highest perfection, at the least possible cost, it must be grown in a manner best suited to its wants.

The best soil for asparagus is a light, sandy loam entirely free from stones, and of good manure sand is within four feet of the surface it appears to be a benefit rather than an injury. In preparing the soil it should be heavily manured two years in succession before the roots are set and planted from 10 to 12 inches deep. During the two years of preparation the land may be planted with Italian corn, this being an excellent crop to precede asparagus, but if corn be planted, not less than 10 cords of good stable manure should be applied to the acre, and 15 cords would be still better; the manure should be plowed in. The year that the asparagus plants are to be set 15 cords of good stable manure should be plowed into each acre of land. In field culture the rows of asparagus should be four feet apart, but in a small bed for home use the rows need not be more than three feet apart. The plants should be about 18 inches apart in the rows. The plants for field culture should be set in a deep furrow, made with the plow going twice in the same furrow. For garden culture the trench may be made with the spade. For field culture set the crown of the plant six inches below the level of the ground, and for garden culture three or four inches. The roots should be set deeper in field culture than in the plow may be run over them in the spring without injury; in garden culture the roots should be covered with a layer of soil about three or four inches. In placing the roots care should be taken to have the rows of buds point in the direction of the rows, because asparagus travels, and shows in the direction of the line buds, so if the roots are set so the line will point across the rows, in a few years there will be no regular rows, but if care be taken to have each root set with the buds in line with the rows, the field will continue in good order for twenty years. It has been found that the plants should be set in a trial of more than twenty years. In covering the roots, cover at first only two inches deep and gradually fill up the furrow during the summer, so that by autumn the whole field will be level. The last row of plants is usually set the night time to set roots in middle New England. The field should be two years old. There are many varieties of any of which are very good if properly cared for. For market purposes Moore's cross bed stands high, not so much because of its size as for its uniformity, the buds being of a purple cast. The third year after the roots are set cutting may be commenced, but on no account should it be continued after the first of June, but the fourth year cutting may continue until June 29, but not after that time, unless the season is very late.

When stable manure is used ten cords should be applied to an acre each year, and to keep the land free from weeds commercial fertilizers are best.—Boston Journal.

The Quincy Patriot.
SATURDAY, MAY 1, 1886.

It is not always May.
The sun is bright—the air is clear.
The daffodils are in bloom and sing.
And from the stately elm I hear
The bluebird prophesying Spring.
So blue you winding river flows,
It seems an outlet from the sky.
Where wafting from the west wind blows
The freighted clouds at anchor lie.
All things are new—the buds, the leaves
That gild the elm tree's nodding crest.
And even the nest beneath the eaves—
There are no birds in last year's nest!

All things rejoice in youth and love.
The fullness of their first delight!
Wistfully we watch the swallows sweep
The melting tenderness of rhyme.
Maiden, that read'st this simple rhyme,
Enjoy thy youth, it will not stay;
Enjoy the fragrance of thy prime.
For O! it is not always May!

Enjoy the Spring of life and youth.
To some good angel leave the truth—
For time will teach thee soon the truth—
There are no birds in last year's nest!

OBITUARY. Mrs. Wendell Phillips, widow of the great orator, died at her home on Common Street, Boston, on Saturday evening last. Mrs. Phillips had been an invalid for many years. She was the daughter of Benjamin Green of Boston. Soon after the death of her parents she was received as a daughter into the family of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Chapman, then living in Chalmers place, near Summer street. The young girl joined herself to the anti-slavery cause with the whole of that family in the year 1834. She was engaged to Wendell Phillips two years after.
Their married life was most congenial.
It is said that Mr. Phillips' conversion to the anti-slavery faith was purely due to the influence of his then young wife, who was a believer in the despised doctrine of Garrison before her marriage. Of late years Mrs. Phillips had left her home but one year, when going to the country for the summer.

Queen Victoria's household, by careful economy, manages to put through the year on $2,000,000. The establishment includes about one thousand persons. Of these, there are a hundred and thirty are householders.
There is no gossip among them, it is said, the gold sticks in waiting attending to that department.

On a farm near Snelling, Cal., there is a well sunk 168 feet deep in solid rock. The well sends up at all times a large volume of air. When a rainstorm or a strong wind is impending the volume of escaping air increases so as to roar audibly. The well is furnished with a vent. By closing this for a few moments the confined air recovers sufficient force, when liberated, to make a noise like the escaping steam of a locomotive. The well furnishes an abundance of excellent water.

There is a man at Northfield Depot, N.
H., who is wearing a cap that he has worn at times for fifty years, a hat that he has worn more or less for twenty-five years, and a pair of thin calf boots that he has worn for thirty years, all in a good state of preservation.

Temperance.
Furnished for publication by the W. C. T. Union.
Prohibition.

The Republicans in the Assembly kept the party's faith with the people yesterday, by voting to submit a prohibition amendment to the voters of the State this fall.

All the prominent Republican members favored and spoke for the bill. It was ordered to a third reading, however. A vote of 61 to 58. Of the affirmative voters 60 were Republicans.—New York Tribune, April 21.

LOCAL OPTION. The question of prohibiting the sale of liquors in Richmond, Va., is exciting more interest than any question ever before submitted to the popular vote. The election is to be held on Monday next, and if prohibition prevails only four days will be allowed the 220 dealers to get rid of their stock and close business.—April 19.

HOUSEHOLD RECEIPTS.
FOR BREAKFAST. Oat-meal and cream,
Shaker codfish, baked potatoes, corn bread, coffee. Cut a large piece from the thickest part of a dry, salt codfish, and put to soak in warm water, skin up, and add a little salt, the point of this water, skin the fish and tear it up into little bits, taking out the bones, etc. Put into a saucepan, cover with hot water, and keep this at a boiling point for half an hour. Do not let it boil, as that toughens it. Drain off the water, and season it with a little cream and a large piece of butter; season with black pepper and serve hot. Some like beaten egg added at the same time. A nice variation of this dish is to prepare as above, serve on a hot platter, and add dropped egg with a garnish of parsley. This makes a very pretty and palatable dish.

GLAZED POTATOES. Peel, then boil whole; dry at the back of the range; lay in a dripping pan, salt, butter liberally, and brown in a quick oven, basting with butter from time to time.

TAPIOA CREAM. Soak over night one cup of tapioca in one cup of water; in the morning add one pint of milk, a little salt, and let it boil ten minutes; beat the yolks of two eggs with one-half cup of sugar; add it and boil fifteen minutes. Flavor with lemon, and as soon as done spread a frosting on the top made of the whites of two eggs and two spoonfuls of sugar beaten together.

SATURDAY, MAY 1, 1886.

LAME HETTY.

I am the foreman in a shirt and drawer factory. I am 40 years old and never was particularly handsome to look at. I don't suppose my manners are particularly fascinating either, for the girls mostly call me, as I am given to understand, "Old Crusty" and "Bear." Not that I mean to be cross, but some people haven't the agreeable ways of others.

I have sat behind the tall desk in Tape & Buttonbell's 19 years. I've seen a good many curious phases, but one of the most curious of any happened to myself personally, and that is precisely what I'm going to tell about. "I wouldn't have had it happened for $5," said Dennison.

Dennison had charge of the out-door department, and he came in that wet, drizzly February evening, to stand by the grate-fire in my room. We had not lighted the gas yet; the press and hurry of work were over for that day, and it was very quiet and pleasant in the red shine of the coals. I was sitting on my tall stool, biting the feather-end of a quill pen, and thinking—thinking of, I scarce know what.

"What has happened now?" I said. "It's lame Hetty," said Dennison. "Two rolls of work missing, and Hetty declares she brought 'em here."

I laid down the goose quill. Lame Hetty had been in my mind somehow all that rainy twilight, just as people and things will take possession of your brain at times, and you can't help yourself. A soft-eyed, low-voiced girl who walked with a crutch, and always wore delicate grays and dove colors. I knew her from the throng because of the "tap, tap" of her crutch, and always used to speak to her when I saw her standing in the long line of girls who waited on Saturday night to deliver their work and receive their pay.

"That's bad," said I. "Ten dollars' worth of shirts," said Dennison; "order shirts, too, and that makes it worse. I'm sorry for the girl; she has a pretty face of her own, and I always liked her; but of course it's necessary to stand by the rules. Losses her deposit and no more work."

"But suppose she pays for the missing work?" "It isn't likely she'll do that," said Dennison. "This sort of girl has seldom $10 ahead."

"I don't believe it's her fault, Dennison," insisted I. "She is responsible, isn't she?" "Yes, but—"

Just then Mr. Buttonbell came in with a great order in his hand from a New Orleans house. I looked at it. "We shall have a tight pull of it, sir, to fill this," said I dubiously. "But it must be filled," said he. "Put on all your hands. Turn on a full head steam. It won't do to let Peck & Titton go to any other place," and bustled away.

Very unfortunate," said Dennison. "Lame Hetty was one of our best hands."

Hetty Dorrance came the next morning as usual to receive work, and she had a $10 bill in her hand. "Some kind friend has sent this to pay for the lost roll of work, sir," said she to me.

"You're in luck, Hetty," said I, frowning over a long column of figures, and trying not to blush under the earnest look of her soft brown eyes. "And I'm much, oh, so much obliged to him, whoever he is," she added in a low tone. "But I can't use it unless you think I am innocent."

"Of course I do," looking up, at the queer of her voice. "I don't believe you would take a pin, Hetty. I've known you for four years, and I believe you are a good girl. Now take your place in the line; there's no time to be lost this morning."

"No matter was settled; but somehow a cloud rested on Lame Hetty. Those who had been fast friends before parted now; the coarse minded whispered and giggled when "tap, tap" of her crutch sounded on the floor.

"Oh, Mr. Harvey," said poor Hetty one day, when Jennie Warren, the prettiest and prettiest of our girls, refused to acknowledge her modest bow, "it's very, very hard to bear."

"Wait, Hetty; only wait," said I. "But it's breaking my heart," said she. "They all think I am a thief."

"I don't, Hetty."

"I know that, sir. I should drown myself if at least one person in the crowd did not believe me innocent."

The winter wore itself away. The busy season was succeeded by one of comparative dullness, and among the hands struck off the list was Hetty Dorrance.

"Once a thief, always a thief," said old Jones, the cutter. "I'd just as soon that girl wouldn't work for us."

"I would stake my honor that she is no thief Mr. Jones," said I hotly. "Well," retorted the old man cautiously, "it's necessary to curtail the list a little, and it may as well be Lame Hetty as any one."

But Hetty Dorrance never came to learn her doom. Day after day went by, and the familiar tap of her crutch sounded no more on the floor. I grew uneasy.

Perhaps she is sick—alone, in want, I thought. And the more I pondered the matter in my own heart, the more uneasy I felt.

I had grown to love Lame Hetty Dorrance. Well, and why not? I could afford a wife as well as most men; Hetty was only a sewing girl, and lame at that, but she had a face like one of God's angels, a heart as white as a lily. Of that I felt certain. I loved her. Why should I not marry her?

So I sat down and wrote her a few lines, saying simply that I loved her, and asking her to become my wife; and I concluded by saying that I would call on the morrow to receive her answer.

Just after I had sent my letter off there came a knock at the door.

"Mr. Harvey, are you alone; can I speak to you a moment?" "Is that you, Helena Arden? Why, I thought you were married and gone to California."

"I am married to a spendthrift and a villain," said she, with a little hoarse laugh, "and I am going to California tomorrow, but I wanted to see you first. I wanted to pay you something."

"For what?" "The roll of work the people accused Hetty Dorrance, the lame girl of taking."

"Helena, did you take it?" "Yes," she cried recklessly. "I took it! I wanted money sorely just then; the landlady wouldn't let me have my trunks to be married until I paid her what I owed her."

"I was standing by Lame Hetty and saw her lay the piles of work down; I saw them slip and fall off the heap. I was just going away and it was an easy thing for me to stoop, as if for my own pocket handkerchief, and pick them up. I pawned them, thinking I could easily redeem them, but I never did. Here is the money to pay for them. I hope Hetty was not blamed."

"She was, though," said I slowly. "I can't help it," said Helena indignantly. "I've done my best. Will you see that she is righted?"

"As far as I can." And Helena went away, muttering to herself about all her accounts being closed at last. I paid but little attention to it at the time, but remembered it afterward.

I went the next evening to Hetty's simple lodgings, over a basket shop. "Miss Dorrance," said the baker's wife, meeting me at the foot of the stairs, with a baby in her arms. "Why, didn't you know? She has moved away."

"Moved? And my letter?" "We got a letter here for her yesterday, sir, and we forwarded it to her. No. 36 Avenel square, sir."

So I went to 36 Avenel square, a little gem of a brown stone house, all bay windows and balconies, standing in its own grounds, and there was Hetty at the casement, watching for me.

"Hetty," said I, "did you get my letter?" "Yes, Mr. Harvey."

"And what is your answer?" "That I will be your wife, Mr. Harvey, and that I am, oh, so thankful, to have gained a good man's love."

I stooped and kissed her daisy face. "I suppose you are sewing here, Hetty," said I. "It is a handsome house."

"No," said Hetty, half laughing and half crying; I live here."

"You?"

"My grand uncle died," said Hetty. "He was an old bachelor, and hated us all, but he could not carry his money with him. I have inherited it all."

"It can't be possible," said I rubbing my forehead.

"But it is possible," said Hetty. "And it is true. I was going to send you to pay that $10 when I got your letter."

"I have been paid, my girl," and I told her about Helena Arden.

The next day we saw a paragraph in the papers, how an unknown woman, with the words "Helena Arden" written on her handkerchief, had drowned herself at the foot of one of the crowded East river piers. That is my story. It is simple enough and I think it has the elements of romance in it.

Something New.

The Dedham Transcript of Saturday last says: "A novel idea, and one that promises to give great comfort to those who are laboring under the difficulties of imperfect hearing, is being introduced this week into the Congregational Church by a few members interested in its use. It consists of an oblong box made of zinc, with open or grated cover, placed in the pulpit directly in front of the speaker. This box tapers on all four sides to a point four inches square at the bottom, where it comes through into the basement. Here is attached a number of tin tubes about an inch in diameter, which have been carried under the flooring in various directions, so that any pew can be reached as desired. In the pew above is a piece of rubber tubing connected to a thetroscope, which, when placed to the ears, it is found that even a whisper can be heard at a distance of twenty feet by persons not of the most acute hearing. The idea is certainly a good one, and one that will be gladly adopted by those for whom it is intended. It is expected that half a dozen of the seats will be furnished with these auricular appendages by tomorrow, and an invitation to be present is extended to those who are desirous of testing the invention. We learn that two or three individuals of poor hearing were present last Sunday, and were surprised and delighted that they could hear so much better than they supposed was possible for them. If the experiments now being tried are found to be satisfactory, and their seems to be no doubt of it, every public hall in the country may be provided with a certain number of seats where these instruments can be used, should occasion require."

A JAW BREAKER. The longest word in the English, or rather Welsh language, has after a long period of oblivion, been once more exhumed. It is Llanfairpwllgwyllgi, llosgobllan, gerllwyrubyllog, gogerllant, llosgog, egech. This awful word of seventy-two letters and twenty-two syllables the name of a village in Wales, constituted the subject of a lecture lately given by Rev. J. King, M. A., at the Museum Berwick, in which he showed that it means: "St. Mary's white hazel pool, near the turning pool, near the whirlpool, very near the pool of Llanisilio, fronting the rocky islet of Gogo."

The Chinese Must Go.

Neighbors, the Chinese, as Chinese, must go. Those who stay must become Americans. One language, one civilization, one style of dress, one government, one religion, or people are to inhabit and bear rule over the North American continent. Our English speech, our free institutions, our democratic-republican government, our European style of dress, our christian religion and our Anglo-European race are to make this nation. Whoever will dwell here is to be absorbed. Whoever will not be absorbed is to be cast out. Thus only can the United States of America fulfill their high destiny as the supreme and final leader of the nations of mankind; and that they are to fulfill that destiny the High Powers have ordained. The Chinese, as Chinese, must go.—Rev. Jesse H. Jones.

The marriage of Miss Grant, of New York, and Earl Cairns will probably take place in June instead of in July, as was at first announced. Lord Cairns has presented his fair betrothed with three magnificent rings, one set with a large ruby and an equally fine diamond, another being a half hoop of large diamonds, and a third set with one superb sapphire, instead of the single ring that is usually presented as the pledge of a matrimonial engagement.

Duxbury hasn't a single milliner in the place, and still married men there are not all happy.

SUPPLEMENT.

Post Offices.

The U. S. Postal Guide for March says there are 52,632 post offices in the United States; 954 were established within the three months ending February 27, 1886; of this number 21 were established in the New England States. In the states of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Delaware and Maryland 111; in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa 115; in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas 340. The largest number in any one state was 62 in Georgia, followed by 59 in Texas, 58 in Pennsylvania, 56 in North Carolina, 52 in Virginia, 51 in Kansas, 47 in Nebraska, 35 in Dakota, 35 in Missouri and 31 in Kansas. There were not any new offices established in Alaska, District of Columbia, Rhode Island or Vermont, and only one each in Arizona, Nevada, Utah and Wyoming. Pennsylvania has the largest number of postoffices, 3953; New York has 3189; no other state has 3000; Alaska has only seven, and District of Columbia 8; Massachusetts has 799, of which five are first class, twenty-one second class, and ninety-four third class, in all 129 Presidential officers; the balance 679 are fourth class, the appointments to which are made by the Postmaster General. There are in all 2249 Presidential offices and 50,383 fourth class offices.

How Bananas are Raised.

As everybody knows who has eaten a banana, the luscious pulp is seedless. The plants are propagated from other plants, so that the stock is not likely to run out. The plant requires for vigorous growth a deep, rich soil, abundantly watered. With these conditions present, there is said to be no risk for a crop in hot regions, where alone the fruit is produced. Nine months after a cutting has been planted, a purple bud appears in the centre of the unfolding leaves that shoot out from the head of the parent stem. The stem on which the bud appears grows rapidly above the main stalk.

As the bud increases in weight, the stem bends downward by a graceful curve, on the extremity of which this bud continues to grow still, the purple blossoms falling off, little shoots appear as the embryo fruit. Each fruit has a yellow blossom at its outward extremity. At the end of three or four months the fruit has grown to maturity, and is picked long enough before it is "dead ripe," to preserve it in remarkable condition. From the roots of the parent stock other roots appear, which are trimmed out or left to grow, as the cultivator may deem best. A single stalk, therefore, bears only one bunch or crop as its life-work.

Spaniards have a religious reverence for the banana, believing it to be the fruit of which Adam partook. The fruit has long been regarded as extremely nutritious. It is recommended above all others for invalids who are unable to swallow harder food. An estimate by Humboldt claims that forty-four thousand pounds of bananas can be produced on the soil that would be required for one thousand pounds of potatoes, and that the area that would be required to raise wheat enough for one man, would produce enough bananas to feed twenty-five men.

DANGEROUS BEDFELLOW. Mrs. John Watkins of Almena, Mich., dreaming the other night, kicked violently as she dreamed, and when her husband's shouts woke her she found she had broken several bones in one of his feet.

The cause of woman suffrage has again met its annual defeat in the state legislature, the vote standing 77 to 128. An exchange thinks that if the women should organize and declare a boycott, there would be considerable hustling among the 128 to get on the other side.

The most remarkable couple in Connecticut, says the Bridgeport Standard, are Captain and Mrs. Alfred Taylor of Westport. They are 95 and 92 years old respectively, and were married in 1812. They celebrated their 75th, or diamond, wedding on Friday last.

At Queen Victoria's last drawing-room the most elegant toilet and most superb jewels worn were displayed by an American lady, Mrs. John W. Mackay.

A fair estimate of the damages from the late Montreal flood is $16,000,000. To this may be added $10,000 as damage occasioned to small stores, $20,000 damage to streets, and $20,000 to gas and light companies.

Temperance.

Temperance in the South.

The new Local Option law in Mississippi virtually gives the temperance people a double chance. The vote on the license question is to be taken by counties, upon the petition of one-tenth of the qualified voters, and the election is to be appointed for a date when no other issue is before the people, and at least two months from any other election. This provision will help to separate the question from party politics. If a majority vote against the sale, no liquor can be sold within the county for two years. If the election goes the other way, an applicant for a license must file a petition signed by at least twenty-five real estate owners in the town. This is to lie over for 30 days, and if, in the meantime, a counter petition is presented, signed by at least a majority of the legal voters in the place, license cannot be granted. There are many little railway towns in the State a good deal disturbed by drunkenness and out-lawry, which cannot show on the tax list as many as twenty-five owners of real estate. The new law will close the saloons in such towns absolutely.—Boston Journal.

It is worthy of note that of the 6000 Jews in New York, not one of them keeps a grog shop.

Prohibition is in such favor in Georgia that 115 out of 137 counties have adopted it under the Local Option law.

A New Motor.

What surprises there are in modern chemistry! It is now claimed that that harmless-looking substance soda, can be so manipulated that it may be converted into a powerful motor. A car is run from State street, Chicago, the motive power of which is soda. It does not require any fire, is noiseless, emits no offensive smells, has no exhaust stack or steam whistle to frighten horses, and makes fully as good time as the old-fashioned steam dummy. It takes only thirteen minutes to charge it, and it will run continuously for six hours after it is loaded. The Boston and Albany Railroad Company is also building a forty-ton soda fountain to haul its trains through Boston; a similar machine is in successful use upon a road in England, and a company in Minneapolis is about to close a contract that will supply all its cars with two-horse power soda fountains.—Democrat's Monthly.

A Few Sewerage Hints.

London spent twenty-one millions of dollars to discharge her sewerage twenty miles below the city on the Thames. It was imagined to be a triumph of engineering. But sewerage is not oxidized in water, is not carried to sea by tides, is not diluted into harmlessness; so chloride of lime has to be used daily to abate the nuisance. Washington is perplexed by the malaria caused by its deposit in the Potomac; Philadelphia, Baltimore and Chicago have similar difficulties. Oysters, clams and fish disappear where sewage enters. Applied to agriculture it changes to a blessing. In England, Lord Warwick pays over two thousand dollars annually to the city of Leamington for supplying his farm with sewage, which he finds exceedingly profitable.

The Tables Turned.

A school teacher living not many miles out of the city does not now believe in reproving scholars for bad penmanship, having come to this conclusion last Wednesday. Each scholar was required to present a sample of his penmanship to the instructor for inspection. The last to hand up his "best endeavor" was a bright little 6-year-old, who was very backward in this particular line of instruction. As usual his copy was very badly written, and the teacher calling him to his desk, said: "Now, Charlie, you have today again made the poorest showing in this class. It seems that you should be able to improve on this kind of work; why, when I was a boy at your age I could write almost as well as I do now."

"Yes, sir," replied the promising lad, "I guess you could, but maybe you had a better teacher than I have."

OLD MANSION. The Boston Budget says: "Probably the oldest dwelling-house in Massachusetts still retaining its original proportions, is the Pierce house, on the summit of Pierce's Hill Neponset, Dorchester Dist. It was built in 1640, and has been tenanted by the Pierce family and heirs ever since. It is a fine old house, occupying a very picturesque location, and contains many ancient relics of extraordinary interest and value."

A little boy who wrote to Santa Claus for a pony, was wise enough to add: "P.S.—If he is a mule please tie his behind legs."

ONE OF THE INSPIRED. The sublimation of the mind-cure craze in Boston is a man named Bennett, to whom patients go in and lay down $10, never more nor less, the "doctor" pronounces the formula "you are cured," the patient walks out again. This is humbuggery reduced to its simplest form. There is no diagnosis, no treatment, nothing but faith, and yet it is said that Bennett is making a big income, $10 bills coming in by the mail, and requests for consultation by telegraph. He calls himself an apostle of the "Order of the Inspired." He ought to be "inspired" by his receipts.—Springfield Republican.

Because one differs with you on religion, politics, the temperance question, or any other topic, it does not make them out irreligious, fools or rummies.—Southbridge Journal.

The largest circus in Paris accommodates only 7000 people, while one in ancient Rome could hold over 150,000, where from 100 to 400 lions were let loose at a time. Augustus filled the arena once with 3500 wild animals, and one Probus got up a free fight between 1000 wild boars, 1000 stags, 1000 rams and 1000 ostriches, and the occupants of the upper galleries—the gods—had the right to shoot arrows and javelins into the mele.

DOG LICENSES.

The Town Clerk hereby calls attention to the law in relation to the licensing of dogs, and notifies all parties concerned to take heed to its requirements. Licenses are now ready for delivery.

SEC. 80. Every owner or keeper of a dog of three months old or over, shall annually, on or before the 30th day of April, cause it to be registered, numbered, described and licensed, for one year from the ensuing May, in the office of the Clerk of the city or town wherein said dog is kept.

SEC. 81. A person becoming the owner or keeper of a dog after the first of May, not duly licensed, shall cause it to be registered, numbered, described and licensed, as provided in the preceding section.

SEC. 82. The fee for every license shall be two dollars for a male dog, and five dollars for a female dog.—Chap. 102, Public Statutes.

PERSONAL.
Not being able to meet the many readers of the PATRIOT face to face, but having a matter of the utmost importance to the laboring men we head this article "Personal" in the hope that you may give our words the same careful attention that you doubtless would if we were able to call upon you personally. This is a matter that concerns you directly, a matter that you should think about, a matter that you should decide and act upon according to your best judgment. And now what is it. Let us tell you. It is in regard to the purchase of goods in our line necessary for your comfort and happiness. Each day brings to us all certain wants which cannot be ignored, and it only remains for you to decide where you can best and most economically supply yourselves with the necessities of life. You want a good article, you want (most of all) the lowest prices you can possibly find. Knowing this to be the case we earnestly urge you to see our stock and learn our prices. We claim them to be extremely low and say JUST COME and learn them and also our method of doing business.

SATURDAY, MAY 22, 1886.

LOVE AND HAIR DYE.

Keturah was leaning over the pair of barrels which divided the back garden from the meadow which wound past the main road, up to the lonely sheep pasture. Apparently, she was watching a hen-turkey conduct her downy brood through the high timothy-grass; but in reality she was wrestling with

"It's perfectly ridiculous!" said Keturah. "There never was in all this world a girl with half as ugly hair as mine. If it hadn't been for that hair, I might have had the chance of being married half a dozen times, instead of being on here, with my father scolding because I don't accomplish more housework, and my stepmother deluging me with good advice. Oh, dear, oh, dear! I would pluck it out by the roots, if I would do any good!"

And she seized the luckless red-gold tresses, a handful in each grasp, as if she had been twisting them out of her head.

"But what a very silly thing that would be!" said Barbara Decifer, who sat on a stump of a tree, hailing the red-gold strawberries, which she had just gathered from the sunny beds under the stone wall. "Why on earth don't you dye it?"

"Why don't I—what?" said Keturah, staring around in sheer amazement.

"Dye it!" repeated Barbara, popping a particularly bright ripe sphere of scarlet into her mouth. "It's what Mrs. Heller's city boarder did when I was help there last summer. She was as gray as a badger, Miss Perkins was; and yet her hair shone like a crow's tail-feathers. I seen her puttin' on the dye once, through the crack of the door, when I was a scrubbin' the hall oil-clothes, and it was as easy as you please. Of course black dye won't suit you, but there's plenty of colors would."

Keturah's eyes glistened.

"Oh, Barbara!" said she, "do you think I could?"

"Think? I don't think nothin' about it," said Barbara, flinging a mildewed berry at a squirrel on the fence. "I'm sure of it. You can get the stuff at Mill & Tweezer's. I've seen it many a time in their glass show-cases, and—"

Just at this moment, however, Mrs. Hutchings, Keturah's stepmother, was heard shrilly inquiring from the back door, "whether she was to be kept waiting all day long, with the preserving-kettle over the fire, for them strawberries?"

Barbara jumped up and fled. Keturah stood still, meditating over the disclosure that she had just heard.

She went down the path to a certain crystal-clear spring, into whose depths she had often gazed to look for the traditional rings displayed by the fairies to those who are about to find their true lovers.

It was her favorite mirror, and just at this period of the sunny, summer day it was clearer than any sheet of looking glass.

"Horrid!" said Keturah, grimacing at the copper-red burnish of her hair reflected below.

But just then some languid movement of the deep, still waters focused the sun's rays in a sort of circle; for a second it seemed as if a ring of gold shone far down, and then disappeared.

Keturah's eyes sparkled, and her heart beat rapidly.

"The fairies' wedding ring," she gasped. "I saw it with my own eyes. But, of course, nothing will ever come of it as long as my hair is such a hideous—hideous color. I will get it dyed!"

And, in her mental consciousness, she remembered that Harry Boyce, who went to college with her brother Simeon, would be there that very week, and that Harry had once said, "What a pretty girl that little Kitty was."

"But, of course, he couldn't have noticed my hair," thought Keturah, musingly. "It doesn't show so awfully bad when I sit in a corner where it's pretty dark. It's the sunshine that brings it out such an intense carrot color. I will dye it!"

So that very evening, in the friendly sublimity of the purple twilight, Keturah crept down to Mill & Tweezer's, and waited patiently for an old farmer to buy an ounce of Paris green for potato bugs, and his daughter to select a bottle of cheap perfume, for two tall lads to get a physician's prescription made up, and a plump-cheeked child to purchase a cent's worth of peppermint drops, before she came up to the counter.

"Well, miss," said the sleepy old druggist, who moved about like a patent perambulating toy which had got out of order, and winked drowsily behind his spectacle-glasses, "what can I do for you?"

Keturah's heart seemed to leap up into her mouth, every drop of blood rushed to her face, while in a guilty whisper she murmured:

"Hair-dye, sir, please."

"Dye?" repeated the purblind and partially deaf old man. "What kind of dye?"

"I—I don't quite know, sir! The usual kind, I suppose. Anything but black," she added, remembering Barbara's remark.

And with a "Yes, yes," and a patronizing smile, old Mr. Mill put her up a bottle of the brightest aniline-red that he possessed.

"Gals is always partial to bright colors," he said to himself.

And Keturah ran all the way home, as if the whip-poor-wills and rabbits would know that she had a bottle of hair-dye wrapped up in her pocket-handkerchief.

Once safe in her own little garret-room, she rubbed the mixture well into the roots of her hair, brushing it out to the very ends, according to Barbara's description of the "city boarder's" manipulations.

She had scarcely finished, when she heard her stepmother's voice calling:

"Keturah! Ke-tu-ra-ah!"

"Ma'am?" she chirped feebly back.

"Come down stairs quick!" said Mrs. Hutchings, in a sort of stage shout up the back stairs.

Sim, and Harry Boyce, come by the night stage, and supper to get for 'em, and nobody knows what all. Do make haste!"

And momentarily forgetful of the chief sorrow of her life, Keturah ran blithely down stairs to be kissed by Sim and chivalrously greeted by Mr. Boyce.

Both student-lamps were lighted, and Mrs. Hutchings had even gone to the extravagance of a pair of mould candles on the mantelpiece, and as Keturah turned to help set the table there was a unanimous shout of laughter.

"Why, Kit, how do you come to be topped off with cardinal-red?" jeeringly demanded Simeon.

"What in all creation ails your hair?" said her father.

And Keturah, catching a glimpse of herself in a cherry-framed looking-glass which hung opposite, uttered a shriek of dismay, and took to precipitous flight.

Her head no longer bore the old hue of coppery-red, but now displayed the vivid cardinal hue of Farmer Rumford's new barn door.

And as she hastened to hide herself, she heard the laughter-choked voice of Simeon exclaiming, incoherently:

"Well, I always knew that red hair was fashionable, but I didn't know that the girls were so wild after it as to dye their bangs the regular blazing vermilion."

Mrs. Hutchings herself got the supper that night. It was Barbara's evening out, and poor Keturah was nowhere to be found. And it was nearly ten o'clock when the weeping girl, coming up the long pear tree walk, met Mr. Boyce face to face.

"Don't run away, Keturah," said he, kindly. "Don't make an enemy of one who would fain be a friend. I have so much to say to you, Keturah."

"I've washed it and washed it, and it won't come out!" sobbed poor Keturah.

"Washed what?" questioned Mr. Boyce.

"My hair—my horrid, hideous, hateful hair!"

"Never mind your hair," said Mr. Boyce, gently drawing her arm through his.

"But—but it was such a dreadful color, and I dyed it; and they gave me the wrong color. And, oh, I'm almost sure it never will come natural again!"

"Oh, yes, it will!" said Harry Boyce, coaxingly—"the prettiest gold-auburn shade in the world."

"Oh, Mr. Boyce, do you really think so?"

"Upon my soul and honor I do! but don't you want to hear my news?"

"Of course I do," whispered Keturah.

"Well, then, Kitty—my Kitty—here it is; I have received my first call to the pastorate of a church in Livingbrook, Massachusetts, with the prettiest little rectory in the world, of yellow-stone, all covered with climbing vines. And all I need now is a wife to keep house for me, and ask the deacons and deaconesses to tea. Will you be that wife, Keturah?"

"Oh, Harry," she gasped, "do you think that a woman who dyes her hair is worthy to be a minister's wife?"

"If we none of us had any earthly imperfections," said the young minister-elect, smiling, "we should be angels; and although you're the nearest I ever saw to one, Kitty—with a kiss—I don't want you to float away and leave me just yet. So I'm rather glad you haven't arrived at that wing-and-silver-trumpet stage."

And Keturah Hutchings never troubled herself any more about her hair.

"If Harry likes it," said she, "I do!"

Wouldn't Be Rash.

"Lady," said a negro woman, stopping at the gate of a prominent citizen and addressing the mistress of the household, "I wants ter tell yer dat I hab mubed inter de house jes' ercross de street, an' dat ef I fin' yer's de right sort er pusson I'll neighbor wid yer."

"What do you mean?"

"Nuthin' outen de way, lady. Jes' wants ter fine out ef yer's de right sort o' pusson an' ef yer is, I'll neighbor wid yer. Lady, I wants ter barrer er dress ter wa' ter de funul."

"Go on away from here, you good-for-nothing thing."

"Lady, I'll gin yer one mo' chance. I likes ter hab good neighbors whar'er I lib, an' I ain' gwinter be rash erbout nuthin'. Len' me dat dress ter wa' ter de funul."

"Go on away, I tell you. I won't lend a dress. Do you think I'd wear a dress after you had worn it?"

"I'll gin you one mo' chance, for ez I tells yer I neber is rash. Len' me er dress, 'case I wants ter be er neighbor wid yer. Is yer gwinter let me hab de dress?"

"Go away, or I'll send for a policeman."

"I'll go. Yer kain' be no neighbor o' mine, fur I kain' git no satisfackshun outen yer. I've mighty pertic'ler erbout my neighbors. One p'int wid me is ter git good neighbors an' den go erhead. Now, I won't be rash."

The lady slammed the door.—Arkansas Traveler.

How Postage Stamps are Made.

The design of the stamp is engraved on steel, and, in the printing, plates are used on which 200 stamps have been engraved. Two men are kept busy at work covering these with colored inks and passing them to a man and girl who are equally busy printing them with large rolling hand presses. Three of these little squads are employed all the time. After the small sheets of paper containing 200 printed stamps have dried enough, they are sent into another room, and gummed. The gum used for this purpose is a peculiar composition, made of the powder of dried potatoes and other vegetables, mixed with water. After having been again dried, this time on little racks fanned by steam power for about an hour, they are put between sheets of pastboard, and pressed in hydraulic press capable of applying a weight of 2,000 tons. The next thing is to cut the sheets in two, each sheet, of course, when cut, containing 100 stamps. This is done by a girl, with a large pair of shears, cutting by hand being preferred to that by machinery, which would destroy too many stamps. They are then passed to another squad of workers, who perforate the paper between the stamps. Next, they are pressed once more, and then packed and labeled and stowed away to be sent out to the various offices when ordered. If a single stamp is torn or in any way mutilated, the whole sheet of 100 stamps is burned. Not less than 500,000 are said to be burned every week from this cause. The greatest care is taken in counting the sheets of stamps to prevent pilfering by the employees; and it is said that, during the past twenty years, not a single stamp has been lost in this way. During the process of manufacturing the sheets are counted eleven times.

LEADING DIVINES. It is interesting to note the remarkable length of the pastorates of some of Boston's leading divines. Rev. Dr. Bartol ranks first, having preached forty-nine years; Rev. James Freeman Clarke follows closely with a forty-five years' record. Rev. Dr. Miner has been listened to for thirty-eight years. Rev. Edward Everett Hale for thirty and Dr. Webb for an even quarter of a century. Rev. William Burnett Wright has preached nineteen years, Rev. Phillips Brooks and Rev. A. J. Gordon seventeen years each, Dr. Herrick fifteen years, Rev. C. C. Grafton fourteen, Rev. M. J. Savage twelve and Rev. Dr. Withrow ten.

Powderly and Temperance.

The circular of Grand Master Workman Powderly, under date of May 3, to the Knights of Labor, published in dailies, is commented on very favorably. It contained a strong and vigorous protest against boycotting, a wish to reconcile the trades unions, and the following on the use of the intoxicating cup:

"We have had some trouble from drinking members and from men who talk about buying guns and dynamite. If the men who possess money enough to buy guns and dynamite would invest it in the purchase of some well selected work on labor, they would put the money to good use. They will never need the guns or dynamite in this country. It is my opinion that the man who does not study the politics of the nation and the wants of the people would make but little use of a rifle. The man who cannot vote intelligently cannot be depended on to use either gun or dynamite. If the brain of man cannot work out the problem now confronting us, his hand alone will never solve it. If I killed my enemy I silence him, but I do not convince him. I would make a convert rather than a corpse of my enemy. To our drinking members I extend the hand of kindness. I hate the uses to which rum has been put, but it is my duty to reach down and lift up the man who has fallen a victim to the use of liquor. If there is such a man within the sound of the secretary's voice when this is read, I ask him to stand erect on the floor of his assembly, raise his hand to heaven and repeat with me these words: 'I am a Knight of Labor. I believe that every man should be free from the curse of slavery, whether the slavery appears in the shape of monopoly, usury or intemperance. The firmest link in the chain of oppression is the one I forge when I drown manhood and reason in drink. No man can rob me of the brain my God has given me unless I am party to the theft. If I drink to drown grief, I bring grief to wife, child and sorrowing friends. I add not one iota to the sum of human happiness when I invite oblivion over the rim of a glass. If one moment's forgetfulness or inattention to duty while drunk, brings defeat to the least of labor's plans, a lifetime of attention to duty alone can repair the loss. I promise never again to put myself in such a position.' If every member of the Knights of Labor would only pass a resolution to boycott strong drink, so far as he is concerned, for five years, and could pledge his word to study the labor question from its different standpoints, we would then have an invincible host arrayed on the side of justice."

WHAT EVERYONE WANTS TO SEE. A dentist with the toothache. A doctor take his own medicine. A druggist sample his own prescription. A coal dealer buy his own coal, on his own scales, at his own regular retail price. A summer boarding house which meets your expectations. A deaf and dumb amateur vocalist. A paralyzed comic-recitationist. A college student who realizes how little he knows. A small boy who knows enough to be seen and not heard. A woman who will frankly admit that some other woman is better looking than she herself.—N. Y. Graphic.

When the vitality is low, when one is weak and depressed in body or mind, it is injudicious to take a cold bath or a turkish bath, or anything that will specially tax the system. A warm bath for a few moments, followed by thorough friction, a crash, or a coarse flannel, in the hand of a sturdy attendant, will be far more judicious. Never do anything which exhausts.

There is refreshing spirit of thrift shown by the government in buying for less than 78 cents silver which it forces the people to take for 100 cents. The business man who had the power to do likewise, and did it, would properly enough be photographed in the eyes of his neighbors as a cheat. The government is simply an aggregation of individuals, therefore—but no matter.—Milford Gazette.

A dog caught a gray eagle near Washington, Kan., one day last week which measured seven feet from tip to tip. It was a wet, windy day, and the bird could not get into the air from the dog.

Mr. Charles Wood and Miss Mary Cole have been married at Kalamazoo. The flame of domestic love ought to burn brightly in that family where there is such a useful combination for home comforts.

Cost of Running Churches.

New York's total church expenses foot up about six million five hundred thousand dollars each year. The figures include the pay of pastors, the building fund, the cost of running the various churches and the outlay for missions and all benevolent purposes. The Roman Catholics lead the list. They have some seventy-five churches, and their total annual outlay is estimated at two millions two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, half of which goes in charity.

The Episcopalians come next. They have seventy-nine churches and chapels, with twenty-five thousand five hundred communicants. Their outlay is one million one hundred and fifty thousand dollars—six hundred thousand dollars for church expenses, and five hundred and fifty thousand dollars for benevolent purposes.

After the Episcopalians come the Presbyterians, with sixty churches, having a membership of twenty-one thousand five hundred, and an expense of seven hundred and ninety-five thousand dollars, something over half of which is for "church purposes."

The Methodists have sixty-five churches, but their membership is only thirteen thousand three hundred, and their total expenses are set down at two hundred and forty-three thousand dollars—two hundred thousand dollars being for church purposes.

The Baptists, with thirty-six churches, and a membership of twelve thousand seven hundred, expend nearly one hundred thousand dollars more than the Methodists, their entire outlay being three hundred and twenty-eight thousand dollars.

The Dutch Reformed and the Lutheran combined have forty-one churches, with a membership of sixteen thousand, and their expenses foot up three hundred and sixty-three thousand dollars.

The Congregationalists have only six churches, with two thousand four hundred members, and a total expense list of ninety-six thousand dollars.

Next come the Jews, and they make a very good showing. They have nineteen tabernacles, with a declared membership of three thousand (the regular attendance, though, is at least four times that number) and an expense of over three hundred thousand dollars.—Church Exponent.

NOT PRETTY, BUT SMART. A little four-year-old girl, a resident of Minnesota's capital city, is not noted for her beauty, though possessed of a very sweet disposition and a remarkably smart mind. She was recently presented to a minister who chanced to be visiting at her home. He took her little face between his two hands and looked down at her in the most scrutinizing manner. She evidently anticipated that her face would not bear the close inspection, as turning her eyes in the direction of his face, she lisped out: "I ain't pretty, Mither Brown, but I'm mighty 'mart."—St. Paul Globe.

The decoration of the tomb of General Grant on Memorial day will be much more than a local affair. Many states, northern and southern, will, in one way or another, have part in the tribute to be made. Massachusetts will be represented by a handsome floral design. A. C. Munroe, Assistant Adjutant-General of the department of Massachusetts, writes that without doubt that department will be represented by the commander and the state by Adjutant-General Dalton, and perhaps the Governor.

A Boston man saw a good-looking woman drop her glove from a car window just as the train was moving away from the station. He rushed forward, grabbed the glove, as he supposed, and racing alongside of the car, handed the fair one a banana skin, which he had picked up by mistake.

Some of the blind at the Perkins institute can read five or six hours a day, the work being done inside of the prison. The paper is made of bamboo fibre. Each cracker is filled, rolled and pasted by hand with astonishing rapidity. The powder used is equal in its strength to our best blasting powder.

A simple gravestone, with the inscription "Anna and Wendell Phillips," will mark the grave of the famous orator and his worthy helpmeet, in the Milton cemetery. It was the wish of Mr. Phillips.

It is said that in some of the rural churches in Holland it is customary to smoke during service. A foreigner, who recently preached to a Dutch congregation, had among the audience the pastor of the church, who smoked his pipe like the rest.

GENERAL COURT. The Massachusetts General Court is rushing business at a speed that ought to satisfy the worst of grumblers. As the time approaches for final adjournment more hours per day are given to law-making and unmaking, and members appreciate the fact that they must show a good record or fail of a re-election next fall. The present Legislature has been called by some slow, but when the session comes to an end we think it will be seen and admitted that there have been slower ones—in fact, that it has been a working, intelligent and useful Legislature on the whole.—Woburn Journal.

Elizabeth Cady Stanton displays a good deal of sound common-sense in the remark that there is more practical good to be derived from the education of homeless city boys than in the erection of monuments to dead men.

Elder Thomas Parker Dudley, who began preaching in 1820, is said to be the oldest Baptist minister in the country. He is a resident of Lexington, Ky., ninety-four years old, blind and very feeble.

Look Out for Him.

Don't be swindled by an "eye-glass" man who sells glasses for a large sum, claiming them to cure almost any kind of blindness, and charging an enormous sum for them on this account. Beware of him. He has visited some of our surrounding towns, and claims to be a relative of Dr. Jeffries, the celebrated eye and ear physician.

The Foxboro Times says, "he went so far as to say that by wearing the glasses and using the 'eye-wash' for twenty-one days, that they would bring back good eyesight after a person had become almost totally blind. A visit was paid several of our citizens, and one of our ladies had fully decided to buy a pair, and for that purpose had borrowed the $20 from her sister. The 'doctor' had made out the receipt and was already to close the bargain by signing it, when a neighbor, having learned positive evidence that he was a fraud of the worst description, appeared on the scene and frustrated his little plans. At another place he offered to take $10 as an immediate payment, the rest to be paid when he 'came again.' He finally reduced the figures to $5, but all his fine talk was in vain. He was very proud, apparently, of a gold watch which he said had been presented him (for his smooth talk, we presume) at the eye and ear infirmary. This is the most daring attempt to swindle our people that has taken place in Foxboro for years, and we hope it may prove the last for many to come."

More Boat Trains.

The Old Colony railroad is intending to do a bigger boat business than ever, this year. There is to be no distinct Newport line to New York this summer, but the Fall River line is to be conducted upon an entirely new plan by which it is believed the entire traveling public will be benefitted. By this new arrangement, which does not go into effect, however, until June 28th, there will be four passenger boats in constant service, plying between Fall River and New York—the Pilgrim, Bristol, Providence and Old Colony. Two of these boats will run as express and two as accommodation; that is, two will run direct to and from Fall River and New York and two will stop at Newport each way. The Old Colony will express it all the time, while the three larger steamers will alternate with each other in expressing.

There will be two boat trains run from Fall River to Boston in the morning, the former leaving at 5.20, or on the arrival of the express boat, and the latter at 7.30, or on arrival of the accommodation boat, due in Boston at 6.50 and 8.55, respectively. These trains will also run from Boston in the evening connecting with the express and accommodation boats at 7.30 and 8.30, respectively.

How She Worked It.

He had been courting a girl for a long time, but he has quit now. It happened Sunday night after church. They were sitting as close together as the sofa would permit. She looked with ineffable tenderness into his noble blue eyes. "George," she murmured with a tremor in her voice, "didn't you tell me once you would be willing to do any great act of heroism for my sake?" "Yes, Fannie, and I gladly reiterate that statement now," he replied in confident tones. "No noble Roman of old was fired with a loftier ambition, a braver resolution than I." "Well, George, I want you to do something real heroic for me." "Speak darling; what is it?" "Ask me to be your wife. We've been fooling long enough." The sequel is stated in the preface.

VILLAGE IMPROVEMENTS. The Village Improvement Society of Winchester, offers prizes to the school children for the best laid out plot and collection of flowers in front of their own homes. The object is to awaken in the young an interest in the work, by offering to them special inducements.

An officer of the Audubon Society states that if no more birds were killed in this country it would take four generations to replace the birds that had been destroyed during the last four years. It is certainly time that women's societies should protest against the using of the plumage of native birds in any manner.

Under the new apportionment in Massachusetts, 1844 votes elect a representative to the General Court. Middlesex gains 3 while Worcester loses 2 as compared with 1875; Norfolk remains the same and Plymouth gains 2.

Every bachelor who purchases a $50 suit of clothes of a particular clothing house at Hemmingford, Neb., will be provided with a wife.

Salem expects to number among its summer residents the Japanese minister and family, of Washington.

ANOTHER WONDERFUL DISCOVERY. Dr. Chichester A. Bell, cousin of Prof. Alex. Graham Bell, claims to have made a wonderful discovery, by means of which sound waves which cause vibrations in a fluid jet can be photographed and accurately reproduced by the aid of a microphone. This rival of the phonograph, Prof. Bell says, is of more importance and of greater prospective practical value even than his own invention of the telephone. The report of the things actually accomplished by this invention is marvelous.

Squire Dickson of Clayton, Ga., was awakened just after midnight recently, and asked to hurry down and marry a waiting couple. He hurried down and found that Jephtha Littleton, aged 82, and Ruthie Ann Thompson, aged 75, had eloped from their children, and wanted to be married at once. They were accommodated.

A camel was recently born in Central Park, New York. The new comer stood three feet six inches in height and weighed 105 pounds. For the first twenty-four hours it was unable to stand and kept up a bleating cry like that of a lamb.

The total coinage of silver dollars now foots up over 229,000,000, of which only $2,500,000 are in circulation. Notwithstanding this marked discrepancy between supply and demand, there isn't downright manhood enough in this weakest of all Congresses to make an end of the worse than foolish silver coinage business.

Arbitration in the settlement of labor troubles, is now the law in New Jersey. And yet there are those who persist in declaring that labor agitation does nothing but harm.

Paper hats are certain to revolutionize the hatter's trade, as they can be moulded into any shape or style desired and colored to meet the taste of the public.

More oleomargarine is exported from this country than butter. The records for three years, show 100,000,000 pounds of oleomargarine to 54,000,000 of butter.

The Tribune says of the New York Legislature, which has just adjourned, that "it reduced taxation, took the Broadway Railroad robbers by the throat and starved out the lobby."

The Wisdom of Economy.

Look most to your spending. No matter what comes in, if more goes out you will be poor always. The art is not in making money, but in keeping it; little expenses, like mice in a barn, when they are many, make great waste. Hair by hair the head gets bald; straw by straw the thatch goes off the cottage; drop by drop the rain comes into the chamber. A barrel is soon empty if the tap leaks but a drop a minute. When you mean to save begin with your mouth; there are many thieves down the red lane. The ale-jug is a great waste. In all other things keep within compass. In clothes choose suitable and lasting stuff, and not tawdry fineries. To be warm is the main thing, never mind the looks. Never stretch your legs further than the blanket will reach, or you will soon be cold. A fool may make money, but it needs a wise man to spend it. Remember, it is easier to build two chimneys than to keep one going. If you give all to back and board, there is nothing left for the savings bank. Fare hard, and work while you are young, and you will have chance of rest when you are old.

There are 347 females blacksmiths in England, all of whom actually swing heavy hammers and do men's work.

A Justice's First Charge.

"Gentlemen of the jury, charging a jury is a new business to me, as this is my first case. You have heard all the evidence, as well as myself; you have also heard what the learned counsel have said. If you believe what the counsel for the plaintiff has told you, your verdict will be for the plaintiff; but if, on the other hand, you believe what the defendant's counsel has told you, then you will give a verdict for the defendant. But if you are like me, and don't believe what either of them has said, then I'll be d-d if I know what you will do. Constable, take charge of the jury."—Exchange.

The latest postal law decision is to the effect that publishers of newspapers can, under the law arrest any man for fraud who takes a paper and refuses to pay for it. Under this law it is a dangerous trick for a man to allow his subscription account to run on from six months to a year and a half unpaid, and then tell the postmaster to mark it "refused," or send the editor a card to discontinue the paper.—Jefferson Iron News.

Assessors' Notice.

To the inhabitants and all other Persons liable to pay taxes in the Town of Quincy.

THE Assessors of the Town of Quincy hereby give notice to the inhabitants of said town, and all persons liable to pay taxes therein, that they will be at the office of the Selectmen EVERY SATURDAY in May, from 8.30 to 10 A. M., from 2 to 4.30 P. M. and from May 23d to May 30, every day from 8 to 10 o'clock, A. M., to receive the valuation of Estates; and all persons liable to be taxed in said town are hereby required to bring in at said office, a true and correct schedule of the Real and Personal Estates, for which they are liable to pay taxes.

Mortgaged Real Estate.

"Any mortgagor or mortgagee of real estate may bring to the assessors of the town or city where such real estate lies," within the time specified in this notice, "a statement, under oath, of the amount due on each separate lot or parcel of such real estate, and the name and residence of every holder of an interest therein as mortgagee or mortgagor. When such property is situated in two or more places, or when a recorded mortgage includes for one sum two or more estates or parts of an estate, an estimate of the amount of the mortgagee's interest in each estate or part of an estate shall be given in such statement."—Chap. 175 of the Acts of 1882.

When a statement in conformity with the law above quoted is brought in, the real estate therein returned will be assessed under Sections 14, 15 and 16, of Chapter 11 of the Public Statutes. But in cases where the mortgagor of the real estate has agreed in writing to pay all taxes assessed thereon, NO STATEMENT OR RETURN IS REQUIRED from either mortgagee or mortgagor, unless requested by the assessors in writing.

Returns of Property held for Literary, Benevolent, Charitable or Scientific Purposes.

All persons and corporations are required to bring in to the assessors not later than the first day of July, 1886, true lists of all real and personal estate held by such persons and corporations respectively for literary, benevolent, charitable or scientific purposes on the first day of May, 1886, together with statements of the amounts of all receipts and expenditures by such persons or corporations for said purposes during the year next preceding said first day of May, 1886, such lists and statements to be in such detail as may be required by the Tax Commissioner. Blank forms for the above returns can be had of the assessors.

Persons holding estates in trust are requested to furnish the assessors with statements in relation to such estates.

When estates of persons deceased have been divided during the past year, or have changed hands from some other causes, the executor or administrator is required to give notice of such change. In default of such notice, he will be held responsible for the tax assessed. Any person bringing in a list of taxable property will be assessed upon the valuation thereof, and any one neglecting to furnish the assessors with such list, within the time above specified, will at a legal meeting of the Board of Assessors, be deemed according to the laws of the Commonwealth.

All persons will take notice that statements of personal property must be in writing, and subscribed under oath before one of the assessors at their office, on or before the 24 day of June; and that the personal property of all taxable persons must be estimated by the Board of Assessors, notwithstanding a verbal statement or informal written communication to any one or more of the assessors.

When a person has failed to bring in a list or schedule of all his taxable property, in conformity to this notice, no abatement of a tax assessed upon such person for such property can be granted, unless such tax exceeds by more than fifty per centum the amount which would have been assessed to that person on personal estate.

REGULATIONS
—OF THE—Board of Health
—OF THE—
TOWN OF QUINCY.

THE Board of Health of a town shall make such regulations as it judges necessary for the public health and safety, respecting nuisances, sources of filth, and causes of sickness within its town, . . . whoever violates any such regulations shall forfeit a sum not exceeding one hundred dollars. Public Statutes, Chap. 80, Sec. 18.

REGULATION 1. Every householder shall keep his premises free from all nuisances and sources of filth that are injurious to the public health and safety.

REG. 2. All privy vaults and cesspools shall be emptied before the fifteenth day of May. During the summer season they shall be disinfected and emptied as often as shall be necessary to keep them free from offensive odors.

REG. 3. From the fifteenth day of May to the first day of October, no privy vault or cesspool shall be emptied between the hours of six o'clock in the morning and ten o'clock in the evening.

REG. 4. No person shall deposit the contents of any privy vault or cesspool, or any other filth, upon any premises within the limits of this town, without first having obtained a permit to do so from the Board of Health.

REG. 5. No privy, vault or cesspool that is not water-tight shall be maintained within two rods of any well, spring, or other source of water supply used for drinking purposes.

REG. 6. Water from the kitchen sink shall not be allowed to run under any house, nor shall any cesspool for the retention of such waste water be within five feet of any house, except the cesspool be cemented water-tight.

REG. 7. All putrid or decaying animal or vegetable matter, manure, garbage and every kind of filth must be removed from all cellars, yards and outbuildings before the first day of June.

REG. 8. No person shall throw or deposit in any street, sidewalk, court, square, public place, or vacant lot; or into any pond, creek, river, brook, canal, or ditch, any dead animals, decaying vegetable matter, dirt, garbage, refuse, manure, or the contents of any privy, vault or cesspool, or filth of any kind. No person shall allow any liquid from swill teams to drain upon any public or private way within the town.

REG. 9. No person shall allow the sewage from his premises to flow into the canal, or into any pond, brook, or open ditch, or upon any sidewalk, gutter, or street surface, or upon any public or private way, or to form open stagnant pools in any place within the town.

REG. 10. No person shall be allowed to maintain a piggery, within the town without a permit from the Board of Health.

REG. 11. Any well, spring, cistern or other source of drinking water that is contaminated from any surface drainage, cesspool, privy, sink, or any other source of water pollution must be disused.

REG. 12. No person shall be allowed to carry on any offensive trade or manufacture within the town, without the consent of the Board of Health.

REG. 13. When a householder knows that a person within his family is sick of cholera, small-pox, diphtheria, croup, scarlet fever, measles, or any other disease, dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Board of Health, and upon the death, recovery, or removal of such person, the rooms occupied and the articles used by him shall be disinfected by such householder in a manner approved by the Board of Health. Any person refusing or neglecting to comply with either of the above provisions shall forfeit a sum not exceeding one hundred dollars. Public Statute, Chap. 80, Sec. 19.

REG. 14. When a physician knows that a person whom he is called to visit is infected with any disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Board of Health, and if he refuses or neglects to give such notice he shall forfeit for such offence not less than fifty nor more than two hundred dollars. Public Statutes, Chap. 80, Sec. 20.

REG. 15. No child or adult person belonging to a household in which Small-pox, Diphtheria, Scarlet Fever, Measles, or any contagious disease exists, or whose residence has a common entrance with such household, shall be allowed to attend any public or private school until the expiration of two weeks, after the death, recovery, or removal of such sick person; and every such child or adult person shall be required to present to the teacher of the school, a certificate from the attending physician, or a member of the Board of Health, stating that he is free from contagion, and that the requirements of the regulation have been complied with, Public Statutes, Chap. 198.

REG. 16. No person, teacher, or school shall become a member of any public or private school, until he has been successfully vaccinated.

REG. 17. No person shall sell, offer for sale, or bring into the town for sale, any diseased, putrid, stale or unwholesome meat, fish, vegetables, fruit, or provisions, or adulterated article of food. Public Statute, Chap. 263.

All complaints in relation to nuisances and sources of filth, injurious to the public health and comfort, must be made in writing to the Board of Health, or its agent.

Whenever the complaint shall be made to the Board of Health, or its agent, or to an authorized agent, shall proceed to examine the premises complained of, and shall take measures to abate the nuisance, if such is found to exist, after giving legal notice to the parties entitled thereto.

These rules and regulations, and all the Statutes of the Commonwealth relating to health and disease, shall be strictly enforced in the town of Quincy.

The Quincy Patriot.

With Supplement.

SATURDAY, JUNE 5, 1886.

Hon. Charles Marsh.

One by one our prominent citizens pass away, the community being called upon yesterday to mourn the loss of Hon. Charles Marsh. Born in April, 1818, he engaged for a short time in the manufacture of boots, subsequently entering the leather trade, and was afterwards in the firm of Marsh & Seward, and finally in the retailing from business at the time of the Boston fire.

In 1852 he became a trustee in the Quincy Savings Bank, and continued in that position, with the exception of a term of six years, until his death. Since 1878 he had been president of the Quincy Savings Bank, and when it became the National Granite Bank in 1885 he was elected president, filling the term faithfully and honorably since.

Mr. Marsh never aspired to town offices, although taking much interest in town affairs. He represented the town in the House of Representatives in 1861, and in the Senate in 1869.

He leaves a widow, a daughter and two sons to mourn his loss. The funeral will occur at his late residence on Monday afternoon at three o'clock. Both the National Granite Bank and the Savings Bank will be closed that afternoon in respect to his memory.

Woman's Suffrage League.

Below is given a brief abstract of Mr. Sylvester's address before the Woman's Suffrage League, of Quincy, last Monday evening. It occupied a full half hour in its delivery and was listened to with the closest attention. Besides Mr. Sylvester's address, remarks were made by members present, and appropriate selections read from eminent writers.

"The battle-field has ever been the threshold of the world's civilization. It is the arena where the human mind has been nurtured, and the human race has been brought to the present state of civilization."

THE QUINCY PATRIOT.

SUPPLEMENT.

The Quincy Patriot.

SATURDAY, JUNE 5, 1886.

Experience at Niagara Falls.

A visitor writes: When I first got to Niagara the hack drivers took a fancy to me. They chased me up so that at one time there were at least twenty of them in a line, all anxious to do me a favor. It was a queer looking sight. If I hadn't known I was alive, I would have thought I was a corpse at the head of a funeral procession.

Niagara is a nice place to get rid of money. It is full of feather fans with stuffed birds in the middle of them, all-aster whistles, squaws, bead moccasins, canes, cut out of the falls, eaglets stuffed with straw, owls chock full of hay, little birds that wish they were alive, two cents' worth of ice-cream for a quarter of a dollar, and such like. You can buy ten cents' worth of anything at Niagara by just paying one dollar for it.

This is the greatest place in the world for bridal couples; they are always here with orange blossoms growing around the women's heads, and the men done up in black broadcloth, all very susceptible, and all green—very, very green. I'll tell you something about a bride couple, not a bridal couple. A pair of hack horses are a bride couple, and it's about a pair of hack horses I have to write. A fellow who had one of these teams started a conversation with me, and we conversed together thusly:

"Take a ride?" "No." "To Goat Island?" "No." "Lunar Island?" "No." "Suspension Bridge?" "No." "Rapid?" "No." "Whirlpool?" "No." "Devil's Hole?" "No." "Horse Shoe Falls?" "No." "Cliff House?" "No."

You see I'd been to all those places, and I didn't sour much to go to them some more. I hadn't been to Lundy's Lane, and when he said "Lundy's Lane," says I, "who is Lundy?"

"Why," says he, "there is where the American eagle soared aloft, and with one fell swoop plucked a tuft from the mane of the British lion."

"No," said I.

"Yes," said he.

"Have they preserved the tuft?" I asked.

He said they had.

"What became of old Lundy?" said I.

"Alas!" he replied, "he sleeps beneath the sod."

Then we wept—the hack driver and me. He wept for old Lundy, and I wept for the sod. It was a picture, it was. It ought to be did up in wax.

Says I, "How much to do Lundy?"

"Well," says he, "seeing it's you, I'll take you there for a dollar—and you couldn't go for less than that in a wheelbarrow."

I got into his vehicle, and going out everything was all hunkey. It was two or three patches of grass with rail fences around them, one bridle now with a fence around her, and a country road. The driver said he guessed I had better pay. So I gave him a dollar bill painted green on the back.

"Why," says he, "we are in Canada and I want gold."

Says I, "I haven't got gold."

He said I was a sickly looking cuss what had come to the Falls for my health. So he squared himself and doubled up two fists that looked like ager beer kegs, and said:

"You little withered cuss, you, if you don't come down with a quarter extra, I'll punch your snoot."

My snoot feels better when it ain't punched; so I came down with the quarter. Then I said, "I guess I've got enough of Lundy," and I went to get into his wagon, when he yelled:

"What in thunder are you doing?"

I said "getting in."

"Well," says he, "that is cool! You had better get out again darned quick."

Then he broke the news to me very easily that he had agreed to bring me out for a dollar, and the price for going back would be five dollars.

"So," said I.

"Yes," said he.

"Then I'll walk," said I.

"Walk and be darned," said he.

He got up on his old rattle box, and commenced to move, and I commenced to move. I looked like one-twelfth these mourners at a hack funeral. He talked to me thusly:

"Hot, ain't it? Ever see so much heat before? Going to shower soon."

Up came the clouds and down came the rain. I had walked a mile and I said, "I guess I'll get in." I gave him five dollars.

Said he, "Give me another dollar." I told him he agreed to take me for five dollars.

"Oh," said he, "it was pleasant then, but you see it is raining now."

I gave him the money—and finally reached the hotel; and I don't take no backs no more.

SWIFT. The recent swift running of engine No. 123, on the northern division of the Old Colony road, has been a theme of discussion. Engine No. 123 has five-foot drivers, and cylinders 16x25. Many railroad men have contended that an engine with five foot-drivers couldn't cover a mile in sixty seconds, but 123 has done it. On a recent evening baggagemaster Wiley with stop-watch in hand threw open the baggage-car door and noted the seconds that a mile-post was passed. The succeeding mile was covered in 56 5-8 seconds, the next in 58 seconds, and the third, which was terminated at Leominster station, was made in just one minute, which included the time lost in slowing up and coming to a full stop at this station.

The national library at Washington, which has 600,000 volumes and 200,000 pamphlets, is already the sixth largest library in the world. Those which surpass it are the national library of France, with 2,300,000 volumes; of London, 1,500,000 volumes; St. Petersburg, 1,000,000 volumes; Munich, 900,000; and the royal library at Berlin, about 750,000 volumes. Sixteen years ago there were fifty million books in the libraries of the United States, and there is now more than an average of one book per person to our population.

The four babies born to Mrs. L. Grindahl of Chelet, Wisconsin, have been given the distinguished names of Lincoln, Grant, Garfield, and Hancock.

Some Wellfleet people have done a profitable business in shipping violets to Boston. One person having sent as high as two thousand a day.

Large numbers of sunflowers are being planted in Western Kansas, where fuel is scarce. The people say they make a hotter fire than the best hard coal.

SER,

Cheap Work.

A. Marnock of Quincy, in a letter to the May number of the Granite Cutters' Journal, intimates that it does not pay to send out cheap work.

He says: Nowadays workmanship is looked far more to than it used to be. About ten or twelve years ago the bulk of a monument was considered the standard of its greatness, but the manufacturer who is going to forge ahead now is the one who can have the artistic finish on his work. To illustrate how other manufacturers take advantage of this, I will state a case in point. Last spring I had occasion to go out West a little ways. Along with other business, to help a friend and my own pocket book, I was to try and sell some Quincy monuments. So in pursuance of that I stopped over at some of the large cities, and as I was not a subscriber for Bradstreet I had to apply to the directory for information, and anything under the head of granite I tried to visit. One place I called at I found quite a number of stone cutters at work, and I presume the man had the whole of his work cut there. In his show yard there was perhaps from forty to fifty finished monuments. Amongst them was three of Quincy stone; and of all monuments I ever saw, they were the worst, both as to material and workmanship. And to show them off to good advantage they were surrounded by a lot of handsome designs of monuments as you could wish to see. I thought, well this man has his other stone cut here, and he has sold all his Quincy about. I guess I can make a trade. I started for the office, figuring my percent. "Do you want to buy any Quincy monuments?" "No, sir; I have had some Quincy monuments in my yard for years and I can't sell one of them; who wants to buy that stuff?" He looked to me to be in bad humor. He was a big man, and as he started to rise off his chair I thought it was about time the train started. When I got back I inquired about this man; found out he owned a large quarry of the stock, of which all his monuments were composed, except the Quincy lot.

Now, sir, what this business man had been willing to pay for in the shape of those three monuments as advertisements for his own stock as against Quincy, I claim those cheap manufacturers here have been doing for him and others for worse than nothing; every time they sent a monument away, it was just so much harder to get another. But now they will have to pay full price, I don't doubt, but they will insist on getting just as good a job as the rest. And if there could be any means devised by which a poor piece of stock was prohibited from leaving town, I believe it would benefit the town nearly as much as prohibition of liquor in the town. There are some rumors flying around of some refusing to pay it, but I don't think any of them will refuse when it is put before them fair and square. Trade is but middling here just now, as was to be expected, the manufacturers for some time not caring to figure on much if any work. And now they say the agents have been caught with a lot of work on their hands, and, having to pay more here than usual, they are squirming and trying other places. But by my next report I am in hopes to be able to report a business boom in our line.

Wollaston Musical Association.

The following communication came too late for our last issue:

The last meeting of the season of the Wollaston Musical Society was held at Mrs. Alma Faunce Smith's, Monday evening, May 24. The composers to whom the attention of the society was intended to be directed was Robert Franz; but owing to the absence of any instrumental music in his works, some things of the latter sort were taken from the music of Robert Freck's. Mr. Mollenhauer of the Boston Symphony Orchestra kindly offered his services in a sonata for violin and piano, and assisted Mrs. Smith in the performance of a serenade, arranged for four hands, on the piano. The work done was equal to the high average of the season, and the attendance was, if anything larger, there being present not less than ninety members and guests.

The Society seems to have fairly outgrown the limits of private houses and private hospitality, and a committee was appointed to look for suitable quarters for the meetings of the club another year.

The object of the Society is the cultivation of its members in a taste for and acquaintance with classical music. And the enthusiasm manifested in its support for two years demonstrates that had music without the excuse so often given for it, that nothing else is really popular. The best books and the best music, as the best anything satisfies best.

The Lord's Corn.

Rev. Mr. Bates of the Methodist church, has inaugurated a scheme for a grand harvest festival next Fall. He gives out to members of his congregation and Sabbath School and any others who will unite, twenty kernels of corn, upon the condition that it shall be planted and cared for by the person receiving it, and the crop brought in to a harvest gathering next Autumn, with record of cultivation etc., the proceeds of sale going for church work. Quite an interest is already awakened and next Monday, the day fixed, will witness a large number of all ages and both sexes planting "the Lord's corn."—Old Colony Memorial, May 17th.

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT. Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, MAY 24, 1886.

The gossips have had much to say about the President's purchase of a bridal home near the city. The alleged purchase was made through another man, and the affair is veiled in secrecy to the extent that no one really knows much about it. The country seat in question is known as "Pretty Prospect," and it is reached by one of the most pleasant drives in this vicinity, the road from Georgetown to Tenleytown, through the beautiful scenery of Rock Creek valley. It is a two story stone house with an old fashioned hip roof, commanding an extensive view of the surrounding country, including the Washington Monument, the Potomac river almost as far down as Mount Vernon, and is nestled among old forest trees, in a paradise of suburban homes.

If the President has bought this place he will have Secretary Whitney for a neighbor through a portion of the year. The wealthy Cabinet officer keeps up half a dozen establishments, and one of his summer homes is near this spot. This is the only Capital in the world, I believe, where the chief ruler lives in the building assigned to executive business. And, indeed, the White House is as much a public office now as the Treasury, or the War, State, and Navy buildings. There is no privacy there, such as every man desires for himself and family out of business hours. President Arthur once said that no one, without personal experience, could have any idea of the distressing effect of living, day in and day out, in the same house where you have been busy all day with affairs of routine business.

There is a good deal of opposition to the Senate's plan for extending the Executive Mansion. Many think that it should be left just as it is to be used for an office, and that the President should have a separate house. They hold that it is no more reasonable to compel the President to live at the White House than it would be to require the Secretary of the Treasury to live in the Treasury building. They also urge that the States recognize the necessity of a separate residence for the Executive, inasmuch as no Governor of any State lives in or near his office.

Congress is discussing subjects that involve the expenditure of money, such as pensions, subsidies, and the regular appropriation bills which always provoke a great deal of debate. Whether it will legislate radically for Utah this session, or not, is a question no one can yet answer. The House Judiciary Committee has been listening patiently for weeks, to arguments for and against the new Edmunds bill that passed the Senate some months ago.

The Mormon church has had every chance to be heard. In its behalf have appeared Jeff Chandler, a lawyer from Missouri; Geo. S. Boutwell, of Massachusetts, ex-secretary of the Treasury, and ex-senator; A. M. Gibson, one of the shrewdest of lobbyists; John T. Caine, Utah's delegate to Congress, and others. The Gentiles were represented by Mr. Boskin alone, a prominent Democratic lawyer from Salt Lake City, who has lived among the Saints for twenty years. During that time he has spent $15,000 from his own pocket in attempting to bring about such legislation as would Americanize the Territory. He is here to-day, without compensation, fighting single-handed the battle against a polygamous hierarchy.

It is felt now he should have had support; that had some clever apostate young men been sent to Washington several months ago, they could have done much to circumvent the powerful Mormon lobby that is carelessly at work here. The Gentiles of Utah forget that men indifferently in the right are no match for men aggressively in the wrong. It is the business of the Mormon lobby to discover every man's price and to pay it if necessary. Mormon women have been here besieging Senators and Congressmen in behalf of their persecuted people, and journalists have been offered thousands of dollars to keep quiet on the burning question.

During the week a large delegation of New York editors were visiting Washington, they called upon the President in a body; as is the custom of almost every party and every body that comes to the city. Including the ladies there were about two hundred in the delegation, some of whom were the President's old neighbors and knew him well.

The Senate's plan for patching up the White House at an expense of $300,000 meets with objections from different directions. The Senate proposes that south of the present structure there shall be built a duplicate house, connected with it by a corridor, and that the new edifice shall be appropriated exclusively by the family of the President.

The first serious objection to this novel scheme is that it practically destroys forever the symmetry and individuality of the ancient mansion, which, after a life of more than half a century, has become as well known, probably, as any public building in the world. With the proposed alteration the present beautiful southern front disappears forever.

Again the new building would completely cut off from the present (then the official residence) the lovely view to the south of the beautiful grounds, of the river and the hills beyond it, Arlington, the monument, and all the other striking objects of interest now so eagerly gazed at by the visitors from the southern windows of the east room and the adjacent apartments. Their prospect to the south from those apartments will henceforth be limited to the entrancing view of a "white" wall some thirty or more feet distant, which would equally oppose a complete barrier to the grateful southern breeze. Gor. Larrabee's Proclamation.

It will be seen by the following proclamation issued by the Governor of Iowa, that he warns all engaged in the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors to desist, and calls upon the priests, ministers, teachers and the press to use their best efforts to enlist the moral forces of the state in this cause: STATE OF IOWA—EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT. To Whom these Presents may come—Greeting:

Whereas, the people of this State, at a non-partisan election, held on the twenty-seventh day of June, A. D. 1882, expressed themselves in favor of prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage; and Whereas, the Twentieth General Assembly enacted a law in compliance with such expression; and

Whereas, the Twenty-first General Assembly amended the law to secure universal enforcement; and

Whereas, a very large number of persons are petitioning for pardons and remissions of fines for offences committed under such law;

Now, therefore, I, WILLIAM LARRABEE, Governor of the State of Iowa, relying with confidence upon the loyalty and true Christian spirit of our people to sustain all measures adopted for the promotion of the general welfare, do, under the pains and penalties of the law, warn all persons engaged in the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors to desist from such unlawful practice, and I do hereby give notice that willful violators will hereafter have no claim on executive clemency. And I call most earnestly upon all the good people of the State to aid to the best of their ability, in the enforcement of the law.

Especially do I call upon all temperance societies, and other bodies organized for kindred purposes, to realize the necessity for new energy in their labors. Let the priests, ministers, teachers and the press use their best efforts to enlist the moral forces of the State in this cause. Let the judges, attorneys and other officers of the courts be painstaking and persistent in enforcing the law, both in letter and in spirit. Let the sheriffs and peace officers be fearless and vigilant, and let the mayors and all other municipal officers awaken to new zeal in their efforts to secure its observance.

I exhort all citizens to lay aside partisan differences, and by united and determined efforts banish the dram-shop from Iowa.

WILLIAM LARRABEE. Done at Des Moines, this third day of May, A. D. 1886.

Poetry.
YESTERDAY.
If some kindly fairy would grant me a wish,
For what do you think I would pray?
No, all! but for Yesterday.
So much of my treasure lies buried with her,
Such largest of happiness rare,
I would call her back who was one time my guest,
To claim of her riches a share.
For, all! I was careless when softly she pressed
With hands like elopied at my back,
Nor urged my slow footsteps to heed her appeal
Who pointed to Duty's steep track.
"Shun care, and be happy!" Shun thought,
With hands like elopied at my back,
I followed, nor dreamed that the license thus gained Would burden my wiser Today.
Now, suppliant, vainly I seek to amend
The coldness that slighted her pleading,
Alas! that the gift I thrust rudely aside
No more can be offered to me!
For that which I spurned was the life of my life,
And I regret that I have been so slow to heed,
Am I, but yesterday might have been peer
Of the queenliest ruler of state.

ANNALS OF QUINCY, 1855.
THE HANCOCK LIGHT GUARDS ORGANIZED AND RECEIVED CHARTER.
First Coal Burning Locomotive ran on the Old Colony.

The weather during the early part of February was extremely cold. On the seventh the mercury stood at eighteen degrees below zero in the morning, but at noon it rose to eight above, a change in four hours of nearly thirty degrees.
Washington's Birthday was celebrated by a salute and ringing of bells, at sunrise, noon and sunset, and a hall in the evening. The Willard schoolhouse at West Quincy was opened in March.
March 5, the day of the firemen for the past year's services was raised to five dollars per year. The same day the town voted in May a "know-nothing" semi-military organization was formed under the name of "Republican Light Guards." This company desired the town to provide them an armory, a hall which could not legally be granted, whereupon they reorganized under the military laws of the State and received a charter as the Hancock Light Guards, Co. H., 4th Reg't, M. V. M. On the 10th of June the following officers were elected: Captain, Abner B. Packard, Lieutenants, William S. Spear, William Nash, Franklin Curtis and Thaddeus H. Newcomb. On the 4th of October they made their first annual parade, and on the 15th of November another. On the latter occasion they were presented by the ladies with a standard. The dedication of their armory and a grand ball in the evening closed the festivities of the day.
This year the Quincy Point and German-town Ferry Co., was incorporated and a ferry constructed, but not proving a financial success after a fair trial it was abandoned.
In June the "Cumberland," the first coal-burning locomotive on the Old Colony Railroad, passed through Quincy.
June 25, 26, 27, a division muster was held near Mt. Wollaston.
One afternoon in August a gentleman drove his horse from the Quincy station to the station at Hingham, on a wager that he could make the distance in less time than the train. The horse was arriving there in twenty-one minutes.
The Adams and Coddington schoolhouses were completed and dedicated this year, the former October 31, and the latter December 17. The original cost of both these houses and the Willard was a little over $7,000 each. They have each been greatly enlarged since.
In December a splendid display of frost-trees which lasted for three days, was the subject of much comment and admiration.
Three of the prominent citizens of the town died this year: Capt. Benjamin Page, April 8; Samuel Copeland, December 7; and Capt. Charles H. Brown, the town's first Mayor, died on the 13th of December. The funeral services were held at the residence of the deceased, and the body was interred in the cemetery. The funeral services were held at the residence of the deceased, and the body was interred in the cemetery.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Combines, in a manner peculiar to itself, the best blood-purifying and strengthening remedies of the vegetable kingdom. You will find this wonderful remedy effective where other medicines have failed. Try it now. It will purify your blood, regulate the digestion, and give new life and vigor to the entire body.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla did me great good. I was tired out from overwork, and it toned me up." Mrs. C. E. SIMMONS, Cohasset, N. Y.

"I suffered three years from blood poison. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and think I am cured." Mrs. M. J. DAVIS, Rockport, N. Y.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla is characterized by three peculiarities: 1st, the combination of remedial agents; 2nd, the proportion; 3rd, the process of securing the active medicinal qualities. The result is a medicine of unusual strength, effecting cures hitherto unknown. Send for book containing additional evidence.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla tones up my system, purifies my blood, sharpens my vision, and makes me feel like a new man." J. P. THOMPSON, Register of Deeds, Lowell, Mass.

PRIZE LILIES.

"Five of them, Uncle Kress," said Tibbie, triumphantly. "Great, rich colors, as white as cream, each with a golden spear rising out of its heart, and surrounded by rank, green leaves, crowding over the edge of Grandma Dallas' old majolica pot."

"Heyday, heyday!" said Uncle Kress, who sat among his manuscripts in the library, with one quill-pen back of his ear and one in his hand. "Our little Tibbie is getting poetical. Golden spears, eh? White as cream? So I shall have to hand over the prize to you, shall I?"

"Circumstances point in that direction, Uncle Kress," said Tibbie, with a gleeful sparkle to her eyes. "Ten dollars in gold. Don't you wish you had been less rash in registering promises?"

"What will Isabel say?" shrewdly questioned Mr. Kress, as he began to cut a new quill-pen, with a keen-bladed pen-knife.

"Poor Isabel, she is so vexed about it," said Tibbie. "I really think, Uncle Kress, that if she could have done it with her glances, she would have blighted every one of those calla-lily buds of mine."

"Tut, tut, tut!" said Mr. Kress, smiling diligently away at the quill.

"Well, Uncle, I only say what I think. But where are you going to put the lilies? On the reading-desk, or at the foot of the font?"

"Haven't made up my mind yet," said Uncle Kress. "Take them around to the church Saturday afternoon, and I'll decide at the eleventh hour where they shall stand."

So Tibbie Kress (her "given name," as the old ladies phrase it, was Elizabeth) went merrily home, thinking what she should do with the precious gold-eagle, which was to be the prize for the pot of calla-lilies; and in the midst of her exultation there came a pang of pity for Isabel, whose lilies had all gone to leaf, and produced never a bud at all.

"A new bonnet is what I need most," said Tibbie, as she surveyed her limited wardrobe—"a bonnet of split straw, with Nile-green ribbons, and a cluster of daisies and mignonnette—a real springy spring bonnet."

Which was an entirely feminine decision, especially when it was taken into account that Tibbie had not had a new bonnet in a year, and that Harold Vanneker always came down to the little Westburgh church for Easter Sunday.

Isabel and Tibbie were sisters in blood. Mentally and morally they were as unlike as if they had been born on different continents.

Isabel was a dark-browed, rich-lipped girl, who bore a grudge against fate for having made a school-teacher of her instead of an heiress. Tibbie was a plump, smiling young damsel, who accepted circumstances as they came, and made the best of them.

And Mrs. Duckworth, the matronly old lady with whom they boarded, expressed her opinion, very plainly, "that Miss Tibbie was worth a dozen of Miss Isabel, and so Mr. Vanneker thought, too, or she was off her calculations!"

"Well," said Isabel, contemptuously, "Tibbie came into the sitting-room, which the two girls shared in common, 'I suppose you have been to the parsonage, to crow over me.'"

"Don't be vexed, Bell," said Tibbie, deprecatingly. "Of course, I had to tell Uncle Kress that the lilies were ready for him."

"And to demand the prize?"

"I had a right to claim his promise, Bell."

Isabel bit her lip. "I shall never try to bloom lilies again for Easter," said she. "It's all nonsense!"

Tibbie did not answer. And Isabel's lilies bloomed and hers faded, she told herself, she should not have withheld sympathy and congratulation from her more fortunate rival.

That new bonnet—the first new bonnet which Tibbie had ever bought out and out from a milliner in New York—what a marvel of richness and freshness and beauty it was!

How had she ever been satisfied with the commonplace creations of her own fingers, made out of sponged silk, dyed ribbons, and flowers which were so utterly unflower-like? These were the merest apologies; this was a bonnet!

Tibbie could not help feeling pleasantly conscious of it as she passed up the church aisle that morning, wondering if it became her—secretly glad to think that Harold Vanneker would be there to see her wear it.

But as she settled herself into her own cosy little corner of the church-pew she chanced to glance up, and to her surprise there was the painted majolica pot and the rich, arrow-shaped leaves seeming to overflow its brim with greenery on either side; but not a solitary lily was to be seen.

Was she dreaming? Where were the five royal scrolls of whiteness which had lifted up their imperial heads when she carried in the pot last night?

Roses blossomed on the altar; bouquets of white carnations flung spicy sweetness on the air; slender ropes of smilax were festooned along the rails, with here and there a knot of violets fastened in; a vase of cut callas stood on the reading-desk. Out of all the Easter lilies that Tibbie had watched grow and expand to their pearly perfection, not one remained.

She thought the time never would come when she could see her uncle come down the steps, with his sermon-case under his arm, and his old-fashioned soft hat pulled over his brow.

In the breezy church-yard the willow boughs swayed to and fro, the short grass was starred with dandelions, and the bland spring sunshine folded everything in a veil of gold; but a cloud seemed to descend over all these things when Tibbie caught the grave, reproachful look on her uncle's face.

Harold Vanneker stood beside Mr. Kress; he lifted his hat to Tibbie; but the girl scarcely noticed his presence.

"Uncle, you are vexed with me!" she cried. "What is it? Is it the bonnet? Did you think it was too gay? And oh, uncle, what became of the lilies?"

Uncle Kress looked gravely at her. "I scarcely expected such a tricky thing of you, Elizabeth," said he. "If you had wanted the ten dollars so badly, why didn't you tell me, and I would have given it to you, out and out? But deceit—even practical joking—God's altar is not the place for that!"

Tibbie had grown very pale.

"Uncle," she gasped, "I don't understand you!"

"We will not discuss it further," said Mr. Kress, waving his hand. "You will find your lilies lying out there under the southern eaves. Take them and go!"

Tibbie was turning vaguely in the direction to which her uncle pointed, but Mr. Vanneker was before her. Stooping down, he gathered up a handful of coarse paper scrolls with gaudily painted yellow pistils in their centres.

"Paper lilies!" gasped Tibbie—"artificial ones! But I don't understand this! What does it all mean? Where are my lilies?"

"These are the lilies that I found fastened rudely in among your green leaves this morning," said Mr. Kress, coldly. "It was a poor jest to play, a deception which was self-evident in itself. Not like you Elizabeth—no, not like you!"

"Tibbie looked from her uncle to Mr. Vanneker without a word. For the moment it seemed as if speech were frozen upon her lips; but all at once she broke into a piteous cry.

"Who has been tampering with my lilies," she wailed—"my white, beautiful lilies?"

"I think I have a clew to this puzzle," said Mr. Vanneker, calmly. "I was in the back of Durivage's bookstore, yesterday, looking at an old black-letter edition of Chaucer, that he had laid aside for me, when a lady came into the front department and asked the price of some paper lilies that lay on the counter. Instinctively I looked up, for they were the very things I had laughed at, asking Durivage jeeringly if he supposed that anyone would be insane enough to purchase such monstrosities as that; and he had replied that there was more imitation in that sort of thing than I had any idea of. To my astonishment the lady was Miss Isabel Kress, and she bought the lilies and went out. We came down from New York in the same train, but I was prevented from going and speaking to her by a man who button-holed me on business matters, and I do not think she knew of my being near. When I strolled past the church last night, I saw Isabel Kress herself going in. I stopped and asked the old sexton if the church was open."

"No, not reg'lar open" he answered; "but there's a young lady a-puttin' flowers in."

"Naturally I thought of Tibbie, here, and went in. But it was not Tibbie whom I saw in the far end of the church, stealthily breaking off the white blossoms in the great majolica pot and inserting the odious paper imitations in their place—it was Isabel, I stood still and watched her as she transferred the real lilies to a basket that hung on her arm, as she gathered her shawl around her and glided out again, with a strange, evil smile on her face, quite unaware of me standing in the shadow of the gallery.

"It was a strange pantomime. I did not understand it then, but I understand it now. Miss Isabel Kress bore her sister some grudge, and sought to be revenged."

"Yes," said a quick, excited voice close by, as Isabel emerged from the sheltering shade of a group of laurels, "it is all true, every word of it! I meant to take down Tibbie's pride, and I've done it—for a moment at least. There's my confession—make what you will of it!"

And with a short, shrill laugh, she swept away, her lip curved contemptuously.

"My dear," said Mr. Kress, drawing Tibbie close to him, "forgive me. I judged too suddenly; but I didn't think it was in Bell's nature to be so vindictive."

"Let me walk home with Tibbie, sir," said Mr. Vanneker. "You are in a hurry, and she does not seem able to walk fast."

They did not make great haste back to Mrs. Duckworth's cottage—not by any means. They walked around by the river, where the leaf buds were swelling out and there was a faint, sweet smell of growing grass; they lingered under the alders, and stopped to rest by the moss-grown churchyard wall; and when at last they reached the cottage, and Vanneker parted from her at the door, old Mrs. Duckworth nodded her head and looked wondrously wise.

"I don't bit mind my pudding being over-baked now," said she. "Bless me! don't I know what it all means? There's a ring on her finger that wasn't there this time yesterday; there's a look in her eyes that warms my heart. Well, well, Easter is a lucky day to get engaged upon!"

And Mrs. Duckworth was not far wrong in her conjectures.—Helen Forest Graves.

This and That.

A gentleman at Wollaston was doing some work requiring a screw driver. He sent Pat to the tool-house for it. Pat returned with a big hammer and a spike. On surprise being shown at his errand he replied holding up the spike, "An is not this the screw," and holding up the hammer, "is not this the driver, sor?"

Grandpa: "Tell me, Ethel, why do you have six buttons on your gloves?" Ethel: "Yes, grandpa, dear, I will tell you. The reason is if I had seven buttons, or five, they would not match the six buttonholes."

Little Willie prayed long and ineffectually for a little brother. At last he gave it up as "no use." Soon after his mother had the pleasure of showing him twin babies. He looked at them a moment and then exclaimed: "How lucky it was that I stopped praying! There might have been three."

Two fashionably dressed young ladies were walking down Hancock street, in Quincy, one on either side of a young gentleman, extremely well in attire and equally meagre in proportions. A street gamin grinned at them, then remarked dryly, much to the discomfort of the dude: "Ain't much ham in that sandwich."

"What kind of a dog is that, my little man?" "He's a terrier." "And what's the other part?" "Oh, just dog."

"Rachael, my tear, I bring you a vine engagement ring." "But, Isaac, it's a bear, and bears are on lucky, ain't it?" "Don't say a word, Rachael. I thought of dot, and so I take me an imitation von out of stock."

That Old Kettle.

Bishop Selwyn, who interested himself greatly in the poor, one day, coming on a company of miners, heard them talking in a very animated way, so loud that he said to them: "My friends, something seems to interest you all very much; I heard your voices quite in the distance; may I inquire what it is?" To which they replied: "You see that copper kettle there? We found it, and we were just saying that the one who could tell the biggest lie should have it." "Oh!" said the Bishop, "I am sorry for that; I hope you will never again tell lies. 'Tis a fearful bad habit, and so unmanly. Why, I never told a lie in my life." Where upon the four miners shouted in one breath: "Give the Governor the kettle!"

Selling Tobacco to Children.

Some parents in town have thought it rather strange that when their children were sent after tobacco it was refused them. To those parents we would say that the merchant now runs a serious risk in giving a minor tobacco in any form without a knowledge of the hearty consent of the parent or guardian, and even then, there should be witnesses to the agreement. The laws are plain, and those who handle tobacco should have them ready to show these dissatisfied people. They are as follows:

SEC. 1. No person shall sell any cigarette, snuff or tobacco in any of its forms, to any person under 16 years of age.

SEC. 2. No person other than the person's parents or guardian shall give any cigarette, snuff or tobacco in any of its forms, to any minor under 16 years of age.

SEC. 3. Any person violating any of the provisions of this act shall be punished by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars.

GETTYSBURG MONUMENTS. Wednesday, June 21, members of the Massachusetts Fifteenth Regiment, with many friends, visited Gettysburg to deliver to the keeping of the Battlefield Monument Association, the monument erected to commemorate the battle fought there. The monument is erected on Round Top Avenue, and is of Quincy granite, about eight feet high, with an Italian marble base-relief of a soldier. The monument is inscribed "15th Mass. Regiment." Ex-Archbishop Charles Deveney delivered an oration, and remarks were also made by several other gentlemen. At the conclusion of the exercises the party visited the points of interest, among which was the monument erected to Col. George H. Ward, on the spot where he was mortally wounded. This also was of Quincy granite, with a marble photographic medallion of the Colonel. When this monument was dedicated last October, Messrs. John A. Pratt, John B. Bass and William B. White, of Quincy, visited Gettysburg to be present at the exercises.

A PLEASANT RESORT. A company are converting the base of Mount Monadnock into a summer resort. There is a natural basin about two miles from Troy, N. H., which was once the bed of a lake fed by natural springs. These springs still exist, and the damming of the outlet would flood some 500 acres with a beautiful expanse of water. A branch railway will be built from Troy to the mountain, and cottages, a hotel, and methods of easy ascent to the summit will be made.

GOING SIGHT SEEING. Henry Ward Beecher is going to Europe, accompanied by Mrs. Beecher, and they expect to sail on June 17 and to return about Oct. 1. Mr. Beecher proposes to spend a month in sight-seeing and rest, and then to lecture. Mr. Beecher has not been in Europe since 1863, when he so eloquently pleaded the cause of the American Union before audiences not fully in sympathy with him.

A PENSION BILL. The Senate has passed a pension bill which gives $30 a month to soldiers and sailors who lost one foot or one hand in the service, $36 a month to those who lost an arm above the elbow, or leg above the knee, and $45 a month to those who had an arm amputated at the shoulder joint or a leg at the hip joint so close as to prevent the use of an artificial limb.

BIRD SKINS. A Florida house is shipping 2,500 bird skins a month to Newark, New Jersey, to be used in hat decorations. The birds killed for the purpose are the jay, lark, snipe, crane, hawk and black and other species. It is claimed that these birds are destructive to crops, and that they "won't be missed."

TO BE UNVEILED. The bronze statue of Daniel Webster, by Ball, the gift of Benjamin Pierce Cheney of Boston to the state of New Hampshire, will be unveiled and dedicated, and will be accepted by Governor Currier at the state capitol at Concord, on Thursday, June 17th.

Anarchist Most has been sentenced to ten years imprisonment and $500 fine. Prison is the place for Most. All men are equal there.

With a capital of $250,000 several business men of Boston believe that an Eden Musee, similar to the one in successful operation in New York, would pay. A permanent structure, 175x80 feet, will probably be erected, to contain a really excellent exhibit of the class.

A Contrast.

We find in the Old Colony Memorial the following article in connection with one of our aged citizens:

"Mr. Seth Bryant, a venerable citizen of Wollaston, is in town and relates the following incident. He was in Plymouth during the last war with England about 1813, and while in a West India goods store at the corner of North and Water streets, heard the following conversation between the owner of a schooner and a sea captain. The owner asked the latter if he would take charge of a schooner and a cargo of fish and other articles he could make up, and what he thought the chances were of running the blockade, and sailing for Cadiz, Lisbon, or some of the West India ports. He answered by saying he would take the chances as he had nothing but his life to risk, and he didn't know as that was of much value. At that time many vessels were lying at the wharves, and the neighboring stores were well filled with molasses, sugar and coffee. Mr. Bryant was then a boy, residing at East Bridgewater, (Joppa village) a descendant of Experience Mitchell, who came over in the ship Ann. He relates this incident now, when in his eighty-sixth year, merely to show the difference in the business done now at our wharves and that of seventy odd years ago. The freighting then was in the foreign trade and no cargoes of coal and iron were seen here in those days, while now the latter are almost the exclusive business of the water front."

Eggs by Weight.

It is annoying to the breeder of blooded and fine fowls to find, when he offers for sale eggs nearly twice as large as his neighbors', that they bring no more per dozen than do the smaller ones. Also, the consumer is often vexed to find that he must pay the same price today for a dozen eggs weighing a pound that he yesterday paid for a dozen weighing a pound and a half. Besides, an egg from a well fed fowl is heavier and richer than one from a common fowl that is only half fed, so that weight compared to size is an indication of richness. Thus, eggs of which eight will weigh a pound are better and richer than those of apparently the same size, of which ten are required for a pound. Of course, with eggs at four and five cents a dozen (and hundreds of dozens have been sold in past years at those figures,) it is not much matter as to the size; but when the price ranges from twenty-five to fifty cents per dozen, it is a matter worth looking after. It is high time that this old style of selling and buying eggs were discontinued. It is a relic of the past, and reminds us of the time when dressed hogs sold for a dollar each without regard to size, and were dull sale at that. Insist upon it, then, you who raise poultry and eggs for market, that the price for eggs shall be so much per pound, and then it will be some inducement to farmers to raise a better class of fowls, and all will get what is their just due.—American Rural Home.

A large jewelry house in St. Louis has two ingenious arrangements to prevent the robbery of its safes. One is a movable floor surrounding the floor of the vault. For a space about ten feet the planking rests upon delicate springs that would be instantly depressed by the slightest weight. This depression brings together the two poles of an electric battery, and notifies the police through an annunciator that there is something wrong. The other contrivance is an insulated wire passing through the side of the safe, behind the door and into the steel knob of the combination. The least turn would send in an alarm over this.

The Rev. Mr. Scott, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Evanston, Ill., is under discipline for having ridden a bicycle in public. The immorality of the offence seems to have lain chiefly in its publicity.

A New York syndicate has under consideration the scheme of a railroad extension of the N. Y. & N. E. R. R. from Hyde Park to Brockton giving that city a second route to Boston.

The Riverside (Cal.) Press makes the statement that 400 colonists in Southern California occupy less than 12 acres each, and yet they clear up from $900 to $1500 net on their small tracts, and meanwhile live in real elegance.

The danger of having electric wires above ground received a fresh illustration at Pittsburg, the other day. Some wires got crossed on an iron awning post, and one of them was broken. A man took hold of the post and was instantly killed.

The Stockton, Cal., Mail says that the craze there now is for big roses, and one has been grown in that town this spring eighteen inches in diameter.

Women's Rights.

Siamese women may not find their matrimonial lives altogether pleasant, but they at least possess one advantage that their sisters in more civilized countries are not ever likely to find among their rights. The native gentlemen, it appears, are allowed by law to sell themselves in payment of gambling debts, and a man who has thus disposed of himself can compel his wife if she be able, to redeem him, but when she has done so he at once becomes her sole property, and she can henceforth regard him as part of her goods and chattels, to be sold or retained as it may seem convenient to her.

The Boston Daily Globe says: "The veterans of Massachusetts are not likely to forget the names of Hon. Elijah A. Morse of Canton, William Cogswell of Salem, Herbert C. Joyner of Berkshire, Charles L. Lilley of Lowell, and the other men who have so sturdily and ably championed the Tobin bill in the State Senate. They have done yeoman service to our soldiers and our soldiers have good memories and are never ungrateful."

A women's school of journalism has been opened in Detroit. The girls are to be taught type-setting, short-hand, revision of manuscript and proof-reading.

There are now published in the United States 14,160 newspapers, an increase of 666 over last year. The magazines appear to be tending toward New York, as 23 monthly periodicals have been established there during the year. The daily newspapers of the country number 1,216.

A boy not yet 17 years of age, in Pope County, Minn., has invented a "combined hay rake and cocker," for which he has refused an offer of $15,000.

The West Worcester Chronicle says that "Mr. Almond Smith of Athol has erected on his lawn a miniature farm house, with all the appurtenances thereto for his little daughter. It is an unique affair, with its weather beaten clapboards, well, with "old oaken bucket" suspended from a sweep, etc. It adds to the attractiveness of the lawn, and furnished the little Miss a pleasant retreat, and a convenient place in which to receive her playmates."

Twenty-six United States senators are direct owners of individual and corporation property to the amount of $100,000,000. Twenty-one of them stand accredited as agents for corporation monopolies, the property of some of which is now legally forfeitable to the government. Our American House of Lords is becoming quite a subject for reflection.

From the Braintree Observer. A New Enterprise.

Mr. Josephus Sampson having dabbled for two or three years past, and with profit, in raising cranberries, has this year decided to go into the cultivation of this healthful esculent on a more scientific and extensive scale. The scene of operations is a four acre lot in what is known as Upper Fresh Meadow, situated in the southern section of Braintree. Here he has had the turf wholly removed from the surface of the land and the same covered with a layer of pure sand three inches in thickness laid in its place. The land thus prepared is lined off and the young cranberry plants are planted by hand, through the layer of sand, down to the original subsoil, at a distance from each other of a 11 by 14 inches. Mr. Sampson secured his plants which are of the most approved variety from a reliable party in Sandwich, Cape Cod. He says that the preparation of the land and other necessary expenses will amount, he believes, this year to $1,000. But then he has no doubt of the ultimate financial success of the enterprise.

The New Presbyterian Church.

The plans and specifications for the new church to be built at the corner of Water and Quincy streets, South Quincy, by the Presbyterian Society are completed, and the Trustees advertise in another column for proposals to build the same. The edifice is to be sixty-six feet by forty-three feet, and will front on Water street. There will be a basement under the whole building, the main room to be forty-eight by forty-three; ladies' room eighteen by twenty-two, and a kitchen, eighteen by thirteen. The basement will be wholly above ground and entered by a door in front.

The church property had been reached by a flight of stairs on the corner near Quincy street, where there would be a spiral about ninety feet high. The auditorium will have a seating capacity of 420, there being four rows with eighteen pews each, with two aisles. Both the church and the basement will be sheathed up with three and one-half feet of plaster to the roof. The arches and roof to be finished in cypress. The organ and choir will be stationed at the right of the pulpit, and on the left will be a minister's room. The windows will be of ground and stained glass.

The outside of the church will present a pleasing style of architecture, and will be an ornament to the locality and the town. The members of the society are all hard laboring men and it behooves all to help these people in their enterprises. Many wealthy citizens have already contributed liberally. Gilman Bros., have been awarded the cellar work and will commence work about the first of July.

Fire Wards.

An act has just passed the Massachusetts Legislature to prevent forest fires.

Section 1 reads, whoever wilfully or without reasonable care sets a fire upon the lands of another, by means of which the property of another is injured, or negligently or wilfully suffers any fire on his own land to extend beyond the limits thereof, shall be punished by fine not exceeding $250.

Section 2 says, the Selectmen shall appoint within thirty days after the passage of this act and thereafter annually, in March or April, one or more persons to be called forest fire wards, who shall, in respect to fires in woodlands, have and exercise the powers and duties prescribed for such wards in chapter thirty-five of the Public Statutes.

Section 3 makes it a duty of forest fire wards to make copies of this act, to investigate all cases of fires in woodlands, and report thereon to the Selectmen who in their discretion shall cause complaint to be made for violation of the provisions hereof.

Another section says the Selectmen shall appoint the engineers of fire departments, in towns where a fire department exists, who shall have and exercise the powers and duties herein prescribed for forest fire wards; and they may employ such assistance at the expense of the town as they see fit to suppress forest fires and shall receive such compensation as the town may determine.

Clan McGregor's Picnic.

The fifth annual picnic and games of Clan McGregor, O. S. C., were held at Lovell's Grove on Thursday, the seventeenth. The day opened fair and the prospects of a pleasant day were excellent. The Clan turned out well, over one hundred men being in line, and headed by Clan pipers and the North Eastern Band proceeded over the following route: Hancock to School, School to Granite, Granite to Water, Water to Franklin, Franklin to School, School to Hancock, Hancock to the Stone Church.

At the Church barges were taken for the grove. There was a slight shower in the morning, and all the afternoon was threatening and somewhat rainy. The programme was completed, however, without interruption, with the following result, the prizes aggregating in value $180—

Throwing heavy hammer—first prize, $3, Samuel McLean, 83 feet; second, $2, James McMillan, 73 feet, 4 inches.

Throwing light hammer—first, $3, Hugh McMillan, 85 feet, 11 inches; second, $2, James McMillan, 84 feet, 7 inches.

Putting heavy stone—first, $3, James McConachie, 39 feet, 5 inches; second, $2, Samuel McLean, 39 feet, 2 inches.

Putting light stone—first, $3, John McMillan, 38 feet, 2 inches; second, John McLean, 37 feet, 10 inches.

One-hundred yard dash—first, $3, Frank McQuigan, second, $2, C. Casey.

Highland fling—first, $3, A. Buchanan; second, $2, George Scott; third, $1, John McMillan.

Half-mile race—first, $4.50, Harry O'Neill; second, $2.50, George S. Murray.

Boys' race—first, $1.50, Daniel Ford; second, $1, John McIntosh; third, 50 cents, Daniel Bruce.

Top step and jump—first, $3, Frank McQuigan, 40 feet, 11 inches; second, $2, Samuel McLean, 40 feet, 4 inches.

Irish jig—first, $3, George Milne; second, $2, Charles Horan.

Vaulding with pole—first, $3, John McMillan, 8 feet, 9 inches; second, $2, E. Farrell, 8 feet, 9 inches.

Male race (seventeen laps) first, $5, J. C. Little; second, $3, M. W. Mulligan; third, $2, D. Casey.

Girls' race (one lap) first, $1.50, May Elson; second, $1, Lila Wilson; third, 50 cents, Mabel Ellis.

Hitch and kick—first, $3, Samuel McLean, 8 feet, 9 inches; second, $2, E. Farrell, 8 feet, 1 inch.

Highland reel—first, $3, Chas. McLaughlin; second, $2, George Scott.

Quincy Locals.

Regatta next Tuesday.

Trinity Sunday tomorrow.

These are the longest days of the year.

Wilson's is the place to get Saratoga chips.

Floral festival at the Universalist Church tomorrow.

The almanac says that summer begins next Monday.

Rogers Bros. are now prepared to furnish fresh fish.

Joseph F. Berry has purchased a handsome pair of greys.

George Monk is to furnish music at the High School reception.

The speaking for the Adams medal takes place at the Academy today.

William Parker is building a new house for Thomas McDonald on Pleasant street.

DeMont and Pratt say that the Fourth of July dinner is one of the features of the day.

The stable of Postmaster Spear on Granite street is being altered into a dwelling house.

B. N. Adams sells at auction on Tuesday next, ten acres of excellent grass on Adams street.

Frank W. Hobart has commenced work on the cellar for a new cottage house on Mill street.

A girl, who desires a situation, will be at the Patriot office on Saturday and Monday, from 2 to 4 P. M.

A party of nine couples from Campello visited the Robertson House Wednesday evening and took supper.

G. M. Miller of Town Hill again comes to the front this season with large strawberries; tends to the market.

On Wednesday evening "East Lynne" was presented at the Coliseum, and the following evening, "Danites."

The business of the South Quincy Post Office has increased to such an extent that Postmaster DeW has had to furnish larger bounds.

Rogers Brothers are receiving daily, fresh strawberries from the farm of Lyander S. Richards, East Marshfield; and they are splendid.

The Dudes' Coaching Club of Brockton, again visited the Robertson House on Thursday evening, the 17th, and enjoyed a dance and supper.

Flowers and fruit for the Boston hospitals may be left on the afternoon and evening of Wednesday next, at the house of Mrs. M. W. French, Hancock street.

Mr. F. A. Moreland, who formerly three months has been confined to his home by severe sickness, has, by advice of his physician, taken a trip to New Hampshire, to get away from the east winds until he regains his health.

The twenty acres of land on Adams street, known as the "Newcomb lot" which are offered by the town at auction next Monday, are in a desirable locality and valuable property. The lot has a frontage of 1000 feet. Jos. W. Lombard is the auctioneer.

Charles E. Marshall, who in conjunction with Arthur E. Baxter of West Quincy, presented the "Two Slaves" at the Coliseum recently, has been arrested on complaint of Baxter for obtaining money under false pretences. He was arraigned in the District Court on Tuesday and the case continued to Saturday. Marshall furnished sureties.

HOUGHES' NECK.

Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Tuckerman entertained the Relief Corps from South Boston on the 17th. The party numbered nearly one hundred, and notwithstanding the threatening aspect of the weather they enjoyed the day in swinging, sailing, croquet and other games, and excellent cheer and lobs which Houghes Neck is noted for.

Mr. John Cavanaugh is greatly improving his estate. A piazza has been added to the house, a fence has been built and the barn recently moved there has been shingled and otherwise improved.

Mr. Doherty's new building is nearing completion, and in a few weeks will be quite an attractive place.

Only a few families have opened their cottages as yet, but another week will probably find things getting lively there.

A large party were at the Old Maid's cottage on the 17th.

What Say You to a Clock.

In the belfry of the new Presbyterian Church an opportunity is offered for a clock which shall enlighten the people of the whole district in regard to the time of day. As now planned the belfry will be thirty feet from the ground, but it was known to the society that the people in the vicinity desired to put a clock there, they could probably be prevailed upon to build the belfry still higher. A clock would certainly be a convenience, to a very large and growing population. Will not some one move in the matter?

YORKMEN'S SOCIETY FOR CHRISTIAN WORK.

With great credit to themselves the young men belonging to the above society, which is connected with the Congregational Church, gave an excellent entertainment in the Chapel last Wednesday evening.

Not calling to their aid any of the fair sex, they carried through most successfully and before a large audience a programme which included vocal and instrumental music, essays, recitations and tableaux, ending with a sewing match which was won by the ladies.

The young ladies who witnessed it would do well to qualify themselves to compete with. Strawberries and ice cream were served after the exercises. The proceeds go towards furnishing the Sunday School Library.

A FISK DINNER.

Inv. Elijah A. Morse, Secretary from Canton, invited the members of the Massachusetts Senate, Representatives from Norfolk County, and a few members of the press, to an excellent dinner at House Hotel, in Canton, on Tuesday last.

After enjoying for an hour or more the tempting dishes, which this hotel knows how to serve so well, the assembly was called to order by Senator Morse, who thanked the gentlemen for being present, and invited President Pillsbury of the Senate to preside. The speakers who followed were Rev. Edmund Dowd, Chaplain of the Senate; Speaker Brackett of the House, Senators Cogswell and Dunbar, Thomas E. Grover, Esq., Lieutenant-Governor Ames, Representative Tilden, ex-Senator Hayden Byron, Richardson, F. Hardwick and Morrison, Duncan McGillivray.

Rifle competition, best score in ten shots out of a possible hundred—first, volume valued at $40, Alexander E. Davidson, $2; second, knife valued at $5, Thomas Burnie, $8.

There was dancing and other attractions, and the whole affair was a grand success.

PAY DAY.

In the recent agreement between the granite contractors and the cutters of Quincy was inserted, "Pay day from 10th to 15th of each month."

This was a move in the right direction. The agreement was to go into effect this month, but very few of the contractors fulfilled their part of the contract. The cutters gave them the full time, and on Wednesday, the 16th, refused to work in the yards that had not been paid off. Among these yards were those of McKenize & Patterson, W. C. Thompson, F. Hardwick & Son, Craig & Richards, and Thomas Chase. Most of these have come to town, and work has been resumed.

BARGAINS.

We would call special attention of our readers to the good bargains offered at Guy Brothers, 33 Bedford street, Boston, by the Lowell Day, or witnessing a game of chance. The former were five, $25 and costs, and the latter $10 and costs.

Fourteen well-known citizens of Wal- ton were arranged before the District Court, in that place, Monday, either for being drunk on the Lowell Day, or witnessing a game of chance. The former were fined $25 and costs, and the latter $10 and costs.

Quincy Personals.

George I. Aldrich, the Superintendent of the Schools of Quincy, has been tendered the position of principal of the Normal school at Westfield. It is doubtful if he will accept.

Mr. Theodore Gullickson left his home in Quincy on Thursday for New York, from whence he sails on Saturday for Norway, his native land. May he have a pleasant passage and greatly enjoy his visit to the wish of his many friends.

QUINCY POINT.

PERSONAL.

Mr. H. D. Adams and family, of Somerville, have become Point residents.

Row E. Whiton, youngest son of Mr. Joseph L. Whiton, is ill with scarlet fever.

Mr. George Hanson, one of the drivers employed by Mr. Wilson Tisdale, on the Point route, is to leave to accept a good position in Chicago. Mr. Hanson has proved himself an efficient man of the place, and has discharged his duties in a manner every way pleasing, and the many patrons of the line will be sorry to have him leave.

Mr. George A. Sidelinger, a young man well known and much respected in the place, was married on Thursday, the 17th instant, to Miss Jennie E. LeVan, of Middleport, New York. The wedding took place at the residence of the bride's parents, and the couple will return to their home at the Point to-day.

THIS AND THAT.

The strawberry festival at the Congregational house on Thursday evening, in charge of the Ladies' Aid Society, was a financial success, and the Society can congratulate itself on the very successful series of entertainments which it has planned and carried out so well during the past winter and spring, the proceeds of which have helped the Society greatly in meeting its expenses.

Children's Sunday will be observed tomorrow, at the Congregational Church, by a morning sermon to the children, and a Sunday School concert in the evening. Those services having been postponed from last Sunday on account of the unpleasant weather.

E. M. F.

WEST QUINCY.

The Holy Name Society has voted to give prize medals, one each for the boy or girl who attains the highest standard in the coming examination of St. Mary's Sunday School.—Monitor.

The Sunday School concert to have taken place at the M. E. Church last Sunday afternoon was postponed, because of the weather, to tomorrow afternoon.

The blacksmith at Elock & Sons was ordered out this week, as was also another who the firm obtained causing a suspension of work.

The victory of West Quincy defeated the Quinques at base ball on South Quincy last Saturday, by a score of 31 to 0.

The Puritans desire to arrange a game with the Brackett street nine.

W. Cole has been released by the Rangers, and the Granites are after him to replace.

YACHTING.

The opening regatta and annual pennant race of the Hull Yacht Club will be sailed off Hull today.

The Corinthian Club of Marblehead sails its first championship regatta next Saturday.

The prizes in the regatta of the Great Head Club, June 5, have been awarded as reported, the protests being withdrawn or unsustained.

The Beverly Club has an open sweepstake on the 17th. The party numbered nearly one hundred, and notwithstanding the threatening aspect of the weather they enjoyed the day in swinging, sailing, croquet and other games, and excellent cheer and lobs which Houghes Neck is noted for.

Base Ball.

As anticipated rivalry has existed between the 42's and Athletics, regarding the relative strength of the two nines, the disputed point was to be settled last Saturday by a game. The 42's were on the ground waiting, but when the Athletics came, it was found that they were to play the St. Johns, notwithstanding that they had agreed to play the 42's the evening before. The fault is said to lie with the manager of the Athletics. The 42's claim the game by default—Score 9 to 0.

Last Saturday's games: Athletics of Quincy, 10; Echoes of North Weymouth, 10; even- ings. Neponsetts, 6; Brighton, 7—2nd innings. Wollastons, 14; Shawmutts, 6; Murrays of South Boston, 10; Brainerds, 9; Quincy Point, Dublin Rangers, 9; All Reds, 1.

The St. Johns have arranged the following games to be played Saturdays: June 19 (to-day), Madison Park, at South Quincy; June 26, Dorchester at South Quincy; July 3, Randolphs at the Knights of Labor Park at Lovell's Grove; July 10, Athanas at South Quincy; July 17, Cocchiettas at Cocchietta; July 24, Neponsetts at South Quincy.

At the South Quincy grounds on the Seventeenth, the St. Johns defeated the Roxbury's 10 to 4.

District Court, Quincy.

Monday, Bartholomew Farrell of Weymouth, for second drunk; in default of fine and costs he was committed.

Michael J. Melville of Randolph, for drunk, fined $5 and costs.

Charles Sheahan of Quincy, for drunk; fined $3 and costs.

Tuesday, Jeremiah Healey of Weymouth, for illegal keeping: fined $20 and costs and sentenced to the House of Correction for three months. His appeal, Rev. Calvin Terry, the agent of the town to enforce the liquor law, appeared in the case and desired the full extent of the law imposed, and was successful.

Charles E. Marshall on complaint of Arthur E. Baxter of West Quincy for obtaining money under false pretences; continued to Saturday, being held in $1,000 bonds.

Wednesday, Edward Dunn of West Quincy on complaint of a Milton officer was fined $3 and costs for being drunk; $5 and costs for assault.

Joseph H. Healey of Weymouth, for drunk; committed in default of fine.

Friday, Daniel Larkin and E. Gaffney of Braintree, for malicious mischief; fined $3 and one-half the costs each.

Edward Gaffney of Braintree for assault; fined $5 and costs.

Patrick McGuire of Weymouth, for drunk; $5 and costs.

NORFOLK SENATORIAL DISTRICT. The Legislative Committee on re-districting the State has taken Stoughton from the First Norfolk Senatorial District and substituted Hyatt Park, so that the First District for the next ten years will embrace Quincy, Weymouth, Hingham, Holbrook, Randolph, Canton, Hyde Park and Milton. Number of voters, 11,930. Second District, Bellingham, Brookline, Dedham, Dover, Framingham, Foxboro, Medford, Melway, Mills, Norfolk, Needham, Norwood, Sharon, Stoughton, Walpole, Wrentham and Weylesville. Number of voters, 11,600.

PRIZE. The alarm from Box 42 at 11:35 last Saturday morning was for a fire in the chimney of a house of Richard Fitzgerald on Copeland street, opposite West. It was extinguished without damage. The steamer responded very promptly.

Fourteen well-known citizens of Walton were arranged before the District Court, in that place, Monday, either for being drunk on the Lowell Day, or witnessing a game of chance. The former were fined $25 and costs, and the latter $10 and costs.

Mr. William B. Morse of East Boston has sold his right and title in the East Quincy, known as Mr. J. B. McCabe, of the Argus Publishing Company.

WOLLASTON.

The Pilgrim Church at Upham's Corner, Dorchester, had a picnic at Merry Mount Park, on the Seventeenth, coming via Milton Hill and Wollaston in five barges.

The Wollastons defeated the Shawmutts of Boston last Saturday 14 to 6. Today they will play the Wright & Potter Club.

The 17th was almost as quiet as Sunday. You can't be too careful when playing about a hive of bees; they express themselves very violently sometimes.

The Union picnic committee have voted to go to Ponkapog a large sack Saturday, provided arrangements can be made for the grounds and barges.

It is a beautiful drive to the pond and grove, which are in the town of Canton, or towards the "Rising Sun," and so of course everybody who is expected to put on an extra polish; but we hope no one will get stove up, or come home filled with Mr. Morse. Arrangements will be completed at the meeting on Saturday and full particulars given in next week's PATRIOT.

There are few freckled girls in Wollaston. We ought to have had the prettiest girl patented before West Quincy got hold of it, as such a popular remedy can't be kept secret; good looking girls need apply.

A quiet wedding took place at the residence of the pastor of Trinity M. E. Church, Charleston, on last Monday evening. The contracting parties were Mr. James L. Newbit of Wollaston and Miss Elizabeth R. McCormack of Charleston. Rev. Mr. Pack and performed the ceremony. They are to reside in Wollaston. Truly Cleveland isn't carrying off all the honors.

Lawn tennis is all the rage here now.

Rev. Mr. Lord is about to be out.

The rain of last Sunday interfered somewhat with the Children's Day services at the churches. At the M. E. Church, however, the service in the morning was well attended. The responsive readings and singing were by the Sunday School and passed off well. Rev. Mr. Knight gave a very interesting talk to the children on the life of "Moses." The space about the altar was a mass of flowers; a large crowd of ladies and gentlemen, with their children and white flowers, and lots of bouquets comprised some of the decorations. At the Congregationalist Church the concert was postponed until next Sunday at the same hour.

Rev. Phillip S. Moxom gave a very interesting lecture at the Baptist Church last Monday evening.

MILTON.

The American celebration of the Hawick Common Riding took place at Faulkner's grove last Saturday. There were several athletic games for small prizes.

Children's Day at the East Milton Church has been postponed to the 27th.

E. J. Eaton, whose house was recently burned, has sold his estate to Mr. Isaac Shute, and purchased a lot of Mr. Nathaniel Beals of Adams street.

An event which has been looked forward to with much interest for a week was a base ball contest between nines representing the Hyattman Engine Company and the Granite Hook and Ladder Company. The rivals met at 8:30 on the morning of the Seventeenth, and took almost a day. Wm. Powers of West Quincy was umpire. The following was the score by innings:

H. & L. 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9
Hydrants. 8 4 0 2 5 11 0 1 —30
1 1 3 2 9 4 6 21 —30

A base ball nine from South Boston defeated an East Milton nine the 17th, 27 to 26.

ON Saturday, June 12, between Elm Street and Faxon Hall, a Kasset Pocket book, containing $1.00 money. The finder will be suitably rewarded by leaving the same at the PATRIOT OFFICE. Quincy, June 19.

ATLANTIC.

Among the recent transfers of land records is that of John T. Pope, to Manly D. Lincoln, of land and buildings on Appleton street, 10,790 square feet, $3,500.

A strawberry and ice cream festival at the Memorial Church next Wednesday evening.

The inward morning train leaves Atlantic at 10:05 not 10:15 as has been advertised.

At the Memorial Church on Sunday, June 21, the service of the parish will be at 10:30 morning service. Sunday School will be held as usual at 12 M. and a Sunday School Concert at 6 P. M. All are invited. Services as usual on Sunday June 27th.

It is said that two of the names on the roll of the new chemical company were put on without consent, that four who signed are going to resign, while others will go to a fire or not they feel inclined. How did the gentleman who took his family to Germantown on the Seventeenth, enjoy the celebration?

Perhaps the most important item at the present time is that Atlantic has no communication with the outside world except by rail. What I mean is that the only telephone we had in the place has this week been removed from Quincy's store, to a place in the city where it is now in place of this size. Some here think the telephone should have been kept, but they hardly understand the circumstances. About $5 per month was being paid by Mr. Quincy, but when $10 was demanded it was considered extortion and was justly refused. The result was the machine was taken out.

On inquiry I learn that hundreds in this part of the State have given them up since the Company have been so rigid in their policy; and like all monopolies they act very much as though people had no rights which they are called upon to respect. A movement is being taken of here by which we can have a telephone, but it has not yet taken much form.

Our Village Improvement Society has made some rapid strides that it is now an assured success; and it is now considered the proper thing to be a member. About fifty of our leading citizens have signed the roll and more are waiting to be organized.

The train stopping here at 1:43 P. M., on the way to Boston is much appreciated and very much used by the patrons of the road. I am told this privilege will only be given until the schools close. What is and has been needed here for a long time is a train leaving about 1 o'clock. Under the present arrangement, no train goes to Boston from 11:17 until 2 o'clock, and ladies who wish to attend the matinee which begin at 1 o'clock are either obliged to go in at 11:17, or walk to Neponset and get the train leaving there 1:10 o'clock, a very great inconvenience and we are certainly entitled to some consideration from the Old Colony road management. Give us the train leaving Quincy at 1 o'clock and we shall all be happy.

We are glad to notice several fences show improvement, and everybody seems to have a pride in fixing up before being waited on by the Improvement Committee.

According to all indications, Atlantic is just going to wake things up on the 5th of July, and it would not be surprising if our neighbors could find a little fun, should they favor us with a visit. The band concert in the park, as it is intended, will be well worth hearing, and it is interesting to have an elaborate display of fireworks in the evening. Contributions have been very liberal thus far, and it really looks as though this quiet village would outdo itself. Subsequent meetings will be held and the full programme, which has been laid over for a morning paper, will be given later on.

The married men of this place indulged in a game of base ball on the seventeenth. The nines were captained by F. Bartlett and J. Hunt. The features of the game were a triple play and several double plays. Lots of fun and several prizes. Score 30 to 17 in favor of the Bartlett nine.

GENEROUS MENDS. Bryant & King, leather merchants of Boston, did a very handsome thing by Patrick McCarthy, who was injured at their factory some weeks since and taken to the Massachusetts General Hospital. While there they paid all his bills for surgical aid and other expenses, and besides the hospital and over $1000. Mrs. McCarthy the weekly amount her husband would have earned had he been well and in the factory. They will also give him employment at such work as he can do, as soon as he is able. Such kindness is very common, but it is what can be expected from our townsmen, Mr. Theophilus King, every time.

STRAWBERRIES. Mr. Gilbert M. Miller, who resides on Town Hill, West Quincy, sent to this office a box of enormous strawberries which he raised. They were very large, some of them measuring over four and a half inches around. One strawberry that he raised was a perfect Juno, measuring six and a half inches, and Mr. Miller sold it for twenty-five cents.

Mr. William B. Morse of East Boston has sold his right and title in the East Quincy, known as Mr. J. B. McCabe, of the Argus Publishing Company.

An Old Temperance Pledge.

The following is a pledge taken from an old almanac of the year 1837:

"Being satisfied from observation and experience, as well as from medical testimony, that ardent spirits, and drink, is not only needless, but hurtful, and that the entire disuse of it would tend to promote the health, the virtue and the happiness of the community, we hereby express our conviction, that should the people of the United States, and especially the young men, its countenance entirely the use of it, they would not only promote their own personal benefit, but the good of our country and the world.

Woman's Rights.

"The remaining objections may be taken to follow. They are of the same kind as those recently employed against the enfranchisement of the working class. They are briefly, That the interest of women are not neglected, for they are represented by their male connections; that women poor ignorant of politics; that they would be exposed to intimidation at home, and to violence at the polling booths; and lastly, that they would be liable to bribery.

It is not allowed that women are so generally represented by their male connections. Such indirect influence is not considered in other cases to be a reason for withholding the suffrage. Rich men have a great deal of influence in this way, but it is not an old argument that operatives were represented by their employers; but that argument never convinced the operatives; and it has now ceased to affect the legislation. The influence of the landed aristocracy, which is regulated by every class of men, be considered sufficient for women? On the contrary, if women had votes, their interests would be better attended to than those of the landed aristocracy, which has no need to be regarded with impunity any important section of its constituents. It would be the policy of statesmen to devise and carry out measures for their benefit. —Chamber's Encyclopedia

Household Receipts.

SOUR MILK CAKE. Two cups of sour milk, two cups of sugar, one-half cup of flour, five cups of flour, two teaspoonfuls of soda; rub into and spice to taste the sugar.

COOKIES. Five cups of flour, two cups of sugar, one cup of butter, four spoonful of milk, one egg.

SPINACH, FRENCH FASHION. Cook the spinach in the ordinary way, strain it perfectly dry, chop it up very fine; put it into a bowl with a good piece of butter, enough white sugar to sweeten, and a little cream or milk; stir well on the fire until it boils, and serve as a separate course.

VEGETABLE SOUP. One and a half pounds of beef to three quarts and a pint of water; boil for an hour; add the barley, season with salt and pepper; put in a pound and boil steadily for two hours; then add parsley, one onion, two potatoes, one carrot, and tomato if you like it; if the water boils down you can add more hot water. Chop the onion, carrot, and tomato into small cubes. Add the chicken stock and the vegetables to the pot. Bring to a boil, then reduce the heat and simmer for 1 hour. Taste the broth, and if it is not salty enough, add salt. If it is too cold, and lay it in pieces in a deep baking dish which has been previously lined at the sides with nice pie crust. Fridge over for the meat and add salt and pepper, then an egg yolk. Bake for 15 minutes. The egg yolk will be cooked and the meat will be tender. If the fish is filled, put in some of the gray or broth, put bits of butter on top, and cover with a rich paste, which may be ornamented with fanciful devices. Bake for 15 minutes according to taste. Be sure that an opening is left for the steam to escape from while baking.

SUMMARY OF NEWS.

A resident of Whitman ninety years of age went out on a glowing spring, and was assisted by his son and grand-son, and was well.

Will have a new shell house, 3000 square ft. building at Washington will cover forty acres, it will have shell room for 300,000 volume and will cost $2,000,000.

Queen Victoria was 67 years old last week and on June 28th entered upon the fifty-fifth year of her reign.

Two residents of Webster County, Nebraska, have rows of lightning rods at their houses that cost $700 each.

A Beautiful Present.

The Virginia Salt Co., of New Haven, Conn., are making a grand offer. A pair of Dove brand salt shakers, printed in ten beautiful colors on a fine line of glass, 2 1/2 inches, given away with Virgin Salt (found in all grocery stores) for household purposes this salt has no equal. It is a fine white salt, and is never used or used. Large packages, costs only ten cents. Ask your grocer for it.

SOME FOOLISH PEOPLE allow their stomachs to run until it gets beyond the reach of medicine. They often say "I will wait until it gets better, it is most likely it will wear them away." Could they be induced to try the successful medicine called Kennedy's Balsam, which will sell on the market for a few cents, they would immediately see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. # THE QUINCY PATRIOT.

SUPPLEMENT.

The Quincy Patriot.

SATURDAY, JUNE 19, 1886.

A Noble Revenge.

A fair, fragile-looking boy, of apparently some fourteen years, stood looking over the railing in the counting room of Glendon & Co., the great importers and merchant princes of the city of Boston. There was a look of piteous pleading in his soft brown eyes and his pale, sad face spoke more than words could tell of the fear and anguish with which his young heart was so cruelly rent. "It is not myself that I care for," he sobbed, gazing at the hard-featured man who was writing at one of the desks, "but it's my mother, sir—this shock will kill her!"

"Young man, you ought to have thought of that before," replied the hard-featured man, in a cold harsh tone. "But I'm innocent, sir. Indeed, sir, I never took the money."

"How, then, do you account for the possession of part of the bills?"

"I can account for them in no other way, sir, than that I must have received them in change."

"But where?"

"I cannot tell where."

The stern merchant, for it was Mr. Glendon himself, looked up, while an ugly light beamed from his merciless eyes.

"William Sanderson!" he exclaimed, laying his watch upon the desk, while the hard lines around his face became still harder. "I will give you five minutes to reveal what you have done with that money. If at the end of that time you are silent, I shall give you in charge of the officer." And he resumed his writing. The boy leaned still farther over the mahogany railing, and the great sobs which shook his frail form, it would almost seem, would have moved a heart of adamant. But the merchant was made of even sterner stuff, and did not once look up until the five minutes had expired.

"Now, sir," he said, taking up his watch with an impatient gesture and glancing at the boy.

"I cannot tell, sir; for indeed I did not steal it, sir. I came honestly by those bills."

"Enough said," was the merchant's rejoinder, as he stamped his foot upon the floor.

"Oh, spare me, sir—spare my mother!" pleaded the boy, tears of anguish and shame streaming down his cheeks. "Be merciful, and heaven will reward you. Oh—"

"Enough said!" repeated the merchant, with stern emphasis. "Not another word from you, sir—not another word!"

"Officer," he added, as a policeman entered, "there is the culprit—do your duty."

And, half dead with terror, William Sanderson was dragged away to prison.

"Only a woman fainting, your honor," said the sheriff, in response to the intemperate of the judge, next day, in the crowded police-court room.

But, with one wild spring, William Sanderson cleared the prisoner's dock and was beside the inanimate person.

"Oh, mother, speak to me!" he cried, as kneeling down he placed his cheek to hers. "Oh, I am not guilty—indeed I am not—my innocence will yet be proved. Oh, will some one bring a glass of water—anything—quick!" and he glanced around wildly upon the array of pitying faces.

A medical gentleman who chanced to be present stepped forward. Giving her a hasty glance, he knelt beside the boy and placed his hand quickly upon her heart. Then an expression of awe stole over his grave face, and he turned sorrowfully to the almost as pallid figure at his side.

"Be brave, my boy," he said as he placed one hand on the youth's head. "I can do nothing for her; she is past all mortal help." In a dazed sort of way the lad arose and looked around him.

"Make ready for an important witness," called the crier from the extremity of the court-room near the door.

There was a hurried consultation on the bench, and then Thomas Elsie was called to the stand. His testimony was straightforward and conclusive. He had received the bills from Mr. Glendon himself in change for a draft, Mr. Glendon having called his attention to the fact that they were marked at the time. And he had paid them out to William Sanderson, never expecting to hear from them again. But having just at that moment read a paragraph in the morning paper in relation to the case, he hastened to the court room to prevent an injustice from being done. Mr. Glendon admitted now that he recollected the circumstance of the payment, which had slipped his memory.

With a strong reprimand to Mr. Glendon the judge ordered the discharge of the prisoner. Utterly humiliated, the stern merchant approached William Sanderson. Even his hard heart was melted.

"Forgive me, William," he said, holding out his hand; "I will give you back your old place, and double your pay also, in consideration of my error."

Then, for the first time, did the poor victim arouse from his lethargy.

"Will you give me back my dead mother?" he demanded, fixing his eyes, in which now glittered a steady light, upon those of his employer.

"No, I cannot do that," replied the merchant, still proffering his hand, "but I will repair, so far as lies in my power, the wrong I have done you. Let us be friends."

"Never!" exclaimed the youth, the steady glitter increasing to a glare.

"Never will I be friends with my mother's murderer. There is a grave between us—a grave that will sometime avenge."

And he brushed by the merchant and was lost in the throng.

Twenty years had passed away, bringing its usual vicissitudes and changes. The great house of Glendon & Co. had gone down in the midst of a terrible financial panic such as frequently sweep over the country, and Mr. Glendon was a poor man, dependent for his daily bread upon the labors of his son, who held a clerkship in the rapidly rising establishment of Sanderson & Allen. But suddenly his support to his declining years seemed about to be taken away.

Roger Glendon was accused of forgery. "It cannot be true," the old merchant repeated to himself; "yet I will go and see."

And he hastened to the counting-room of his son's employers.

He found the senior partner of the firm alone.

"I have called," he said, "in relation to the reported accusation against my son. Tell me, is it true?"

The gentleman gave a great start of surprise when he began to speak, but when he had concluded, arose and handed him some papers without a word.

In them he discovered ample evidence to convict his son.

"Spare him," he pleaded, as he returned the papers. "Spare him, for I am sure I never meant to wrong you, and he will sometime pay you to the uttermost farthing. Be merciful to my gray hairs, sir—he is all the support and dependence of my declining years—and not let them be brought in sorrow to the grave."

"Not another word, sir," was Mr. Sanderson's reply. "I wish to hear no more. Your son shall not suffer unjustly as I once did."

Something in the speaker's tone arrested the old man's attention, and he gazed at him fixedly.

"Do you know me, sir?" inquired the rich merchant.

"I think I have seen you somewhere," replied his petitioner, "but where I cannot recall to mind."

"Don't you remember that scene in the police court-room years ago when the mother of an innocent boy, who had been falsely accused by you, fell dead with surprise and horror at beholding her son in such a place? Don't you remember William Sanderson?"

The old man uttered a gasping cry and tottered back against the wall.

"Heaven help me!" he moaned, "for your hour of vengeance has come at last."

His visitor answered not a word, but appeared entirely overcome with his weight of agony.

William Sanderson rested his head upon his hand a moment in thought.

Then he grasped the papers, and walking to the old man's side passed them into his hand.

"Take them," he said, the steady glare in his eye giving place to a softer light; "take them and destroy them. They are the only evidence of your son's crime."

"I mean so," replied William Sanderson nervously.

"Then you forego your vengeance?"

"Yes, I will restore your son to you free from every taint upon his name. I will keep him in my counting-room. I am not afraid to trust him now, for he will be as grateful to me as I should have been to you had you chosen to spare me. Good day."

And William Sanderson had completed his revenge.

How it is in Florida.

An occasional correspondent to the New England Farmer now travelling in Florida writes under date of May 22, from Polk County in the central portion of the State, that it is getting pretty hot with the thermometer at 96 in the shade, though with an ocean breeze from the east in the forenoon and a gulf breeze from the West in the afternoon it is delightfully comfortable most of the time in the shade. The hot sun is pretty severe upon Northerners, especially those who have been accustomed to indoor life at home, but the nights are so cool that one always wants a blanket to sleep under. The rainy season has begun, rain falling nearly every day. Garden vegetables, such as string beans, squashes, potatoes, tomatoes, cabbages and green corn, are abundant. With good care, a little fertilizer and plenty of water in a dry time the growth of vegetation is wonderful. Pear trees set since the January freeze have made four feet growth of new wood in about three months. Plants like oleanders and lantannas which we grow with so much care here at the North are among the wild flowers there, the former he had seen as trees 25 feet high and grown as hedges, and the latter six to eight feet high, with verbenas almost as plenty as buttercups at the North. The dandelions, however, for some reason grow single flowered and are very homely, perhaps because of the poverty of the soil. Flowers are not more beautiful than those here, but in Florida they bloom nearly the year round. Massachusetts June weather lasts there a long time. "Few people," says our correspondent, "give Florida justice; either they are disgustingly gushing and extol everything or they go to the other extreme. I was disappointed in the orange trees when in bloom; they are not as attractive as our apple tree; with new fruit as large as pullets eggs there are still oranges of the old crop hanging to the trees. If I could stand the east winds I should say give me Massachusetts climate every time. The fleas, red bugs and 'skeeters' are very troublesome here and keep one scratching too much of the time. I find pleasant and agreeable people here as everywhere I go but like the Northern society much better as a whole."

And he brushed by the merchant and was lost in the throng.

Twenty years had passed away, bringing its usual vicissitudes and changes.

The great house of Glendon & Co. had gone down in the midst of a terrible financial panic such as frequently sweep over the country, and Mr. Glendon was a poor man, dependent for his daily bread upon the labors of his son, who held a clerkship in the rapidly rising establishment of Sanderson & Allen.

And he brushed by the merchant and was lost in the throng.

Twenty years had passed away, bringing its usual vicissitudes and changes.

The great house of Glendon & Co. had gone down in the midst of a terrible financial panic such as frequently sweep over the country, and Mr. Glendon was a poor man, dependent for his daily bread upon the labors of his son, who held a clerkship in the rapidly rising establishment of Sanderson & Allen.

But suddenly his support to his declining years seemed about to be taken away.

Roger Glendon was accused of forgery. "It cannot be true," the old merchant repeated to himself; "yet I will go and see."

And he hastened to the counting-room of his son's employers.

He found the senior partner of the firm alone.

"I have called," he said, "in relation to the reported accusation against my son. Tell me, is it true?"

The gentleman gave a great start of surprise when he began to speak, but when he had concluded, arose and handed him some papers without a word.

In them he discovered ample evidence to convict his son.

"Spare him," he pleaded, as he returned the papers. "Spare him, for I am sure I never meant to wrong you, and he will sometime pay you to the uttermost farthing. Be merciful to my gray hairs, sir—he is all the support and dependence of my declining years—and not let them be brought in sorrow to the grave."

"Not another word, sir," was Mr. Sanderson's reply. "I wish to hear no more. Your son shall not suffer unjustly as I once did."

Something in the speaker's tone arrested the old man's attention, and he gazed at him fixedly.

"Do you know me, sir?" inquired the rich merchant.

"I think I have seen you somewhere," replied his petitioner, "but where I cannot recall to mind."

"Don't you remember that scene in the police court-room years ago when the mother of an innocent boy, who had been falsely accused by you, fell dead with surprise and horror at beholding her son in such a place? Don't you remember William Sanderson?"

The old man uttered a gasping cry and tottered back against the wall.

"Heaven help me!" he moaned, "for your hour of vengeance has come at last."

His visitor answered not a word, but appeared entirely overcome with his weight of agony.

William Sanderson rested his head upon his hand a moment in thought.

Then he grasped the papers, and walking to the old man's side passed them into his hand.

"Take them," he said, the steady glare in his eye giving place to a softer light; "take them and destroy them. They are the only evidence of your son's crime."

The old merchant gave a joyful gasp. "Do you mean it?" he cried, clutching them firmly.

"I mean so," replied William Sanderson nervously.

"Then you forego your vengeance?"

Thirsty Flies.

When the microphone, the ingenious instrument for magnifying sound, was exhibited in the famous Old South meeting-house in Boston, though in the middle of the summer, it was found impossible to catch a single fly in that large building for that curious experiment which shows the sound of a fly's step as he walks across a sheet of paper. It proved necessary to send to the neighboring hotels, which had a plenty in their fly-traps, which they were only too glad to spare. This exemption of the meeting-house was due to the fact that it was occupied only as a museum and that there was nothing for them to eat there, and nothing for them to drink. A fly cannot sustain active life without drink more than a man. If you do not give him his drink he must go and find it where it is.

If, then, for forty-eight hours, you can keep every drop of liquid from a room, the flies in it will leave it. But the prohibition is absolute. A drop of dew on a rose leaf, still more the congealed breath on a window-pane, gives quite as much fluid as the thirsty little fly will ask for. But a good housekeeper will remember this rule so as never to leave a pitcher of water uncovered in a room which she wishes to enjoy a nap in, or in which she means to place a guest. And she will carefully cover any other cup, mug, glass or other vessel which contains liquids. —Lead a Hand.

Telephone Rates.

The root of some of the telephone rate troubles can be ascertained by statements made at a recent legal hearing. The Granite State, Bay State, Suburban, Boston and Northern, and National Bell of Maine companies which formed the New England, were purchased by the Lowell syndicate for $1,296,000, watered by them $1,688,000, making $2,984,000, and the New England was then capitalized at $12,000,000. This last increase included the addition of the Boston exchange to the pool, but the first purchase at $1,296,000 represented a very liberal per cent of water injected by former owners, so that an investment from one-third to one-half of the present capital would duplicate all the "plant" so far as tangible property is concerned. —New England Farmer.

PAPER CURRENCY. The Board of Directors of the Boston Merchants' Association has passed resolutions asking that the Treasury Department issue a proper supply of small bills of the denomination of one or two dollars, to take the place of the worn bills now in use, and to meet the preference of the public for paper money rather than the heavy silver dollars. It is specified that the resolutions must not be interpreted as advocating or opposing the cause of silver, greenbacks or national bank note currency. —Boston Journal.

Village Fences.

The New England Farmer says: "It is encouraging to note the growth of public sentiment regarding front fences in our suburban villages. Mr. John R. Bullard, one of the influential men of Dedham, has, during the present spring, greatly improved the appearance of his residence and of that part of the town by the removal of the fences along the line of the highway and extending his lawn to the sidewalk. Two church yards adjoining have also had their street fences removed, giving a fine, park-like appearance to a large area in that part of the village. Mr. Bullard's grand old English elms with their sturdy trunks four feet or more in diameter were never shown to half so good advantage before, hidden as they were behind a street fence. We presume these grounds will be run over for a while more or less by careless or thoughtless boys, but a little good Sunday preaching, or a few weeks' confinement in the county jail near by for persistent trespassers will teach the lesson that many have yet to learn that the owners of private grounds are not obliged to fence the boys out. The beautiful lawn surrounding the Catholic Church and the residence of the priests in the same village has from the first been open to the street, and we hear no complaint of trespassing boys in that locality. Yankee youths in general might profitably learn one lesson from the people of Japan, a country where children are taught never to pluck even flowers from public or private grounds without permission, nor in any way to trespass upon the rights of others. If the lesson could be learned as readily by the dogs there would be little need for fencing in any of our beautiful village residences."

OYSTERS. The first town in Massachusetts to raise transplanted oysters was Weymouth, out on the tip of Cape Cod. Forty years ago, sixty to eighty thousand bushels, brought from Virginia, were laid down annually to grow fat for the Boston market in her harbor. By 1850, however, the business had succumbed to competition, and was abandoned. During the present spring it has been revived by the planting of 8,000 bushels. The oysters once native to that part of the coast were exterminated in colonial times.

FRAMINGHAM. The Board of Selectmen of Framingham at its regular monthly meeting last Monday evening, voted that the druggists of the town be notified that under the Sunday law, they would be prosecuted, if open for business more than two hours on Sundays. This action was taken in consequence of complaints to the Board. It has been said that this complaint was made by interested parties.—Tribune.

A NARROW ESCAPE. It is a very windy day and the excellent man is walking along the street with his hat in his hand, when a chimney-pot descends from a house-top like a thunderbolt and reduces his hat to the condition of a mammoth cave.

"Lucky I didn't have my hat on my head that time," he says philosophically; "if I had, I'd have had my brains knocked out, sure."

SAVE THE DUST. A little Sunday-school scholar who was impressed with the importance of the great truth that man was made of dust, recently surveyed with great interest the sweeping of a room. As the dirt was being swept into the pan, she exclaimed: "Ma! ma! why don't you save the dust to make some more little girls?"

New York has a boarding house for birds whose owners have left the city during the summer months. For fifteen cents a week and upward, according to the daintiness of the fare demanded by the boarder, birds receive all necessary attentions "by the week or month."

The largest book ever published in this country so far as it has gone on, is the last census of the United States. It now reaches 13 large quarto volumes, each volume is equal to 8 ordinary thick congressional documents.

The Washington Street Baptist Church in Lynn, cancelled its debt at $19,500 at one sitting on a recent Sunday. The church and parsonage cost $90,000.

Mrs. Garfield has been sued at Cleveland, Ohio, for $25,000 damages by Thankful Tanner for being run over by the defendant's carriage. The jury were out but a few moments, when they returned a verdict for Mrs. Garfield, greatly to the anger of Mrs. Tanner.

Putting away Things.

I have found the best way of putting away things for the summer to be as follows: If you have not a regular camphor trunk, that is, a chest made of camphor wood, take an ordinary trunk or chest that is well covered, so that it is perfectly tight, and put a layer of camphor gum in the bottom of it. Do up each article separately in a clean cloth, then do them up in newspapers, pasting the ends so they will be perfectly tight. What there is about printers' ink that moths dislike so, it would be difficult to say, but there is something about it they don't approve of. I speak with a good deal of confidence on this matter, for I have treated furs of all kinds and woolen garments in this way for several years, and I have never had a moth get into a thing that was so protected.—Boston Budget.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE. The Woman's Journal says: Rev. S. J. Barrows, of the Christian Register, sent a capital reminder to the Dorchester meeting for woman suffrage, last Monday. After saying: "Since I spoke twice on the subject last week, I need hardly tell you that I thoroughly believe in woman suffrage. It is the logical necessity of enlarging woman's sphere to the full scope of her capacity. I am glad to find how many Dorchester people believe in it," he added: "Dorchester once declined to introduce railroads because they were dangerous innovations. Woman suffrage may also seem dangerous to some. But it is one of the highways of our modern civilization. I hope Dorchester people will not stand in the way of the locomotive. When this political highway is completed from Massachusetts to Washington Territory, it will be found as indispensable as the Pacific railroad."

SAD. The wedding day of a young lady of Portland was fixed for, and she was making preparations for the happy occasion. The other day she left the dinner table and proceeded to the sewing room, where, all at once, a shriek was heard, and the family rushed to the room, to hear her cry most piteously: "I cannot see." A leading surgeon was sent for, who said she was suffering from paralysis of the optic nerve, and would never recover her sight.

SOLD. A California gentleman recently sent $5 to an eastern party for six gourd seeds which were warranted to produce gourds of a capacity of 40 gallons. The seed did not sprout though carefully tended, and finally examination showed that they had been artistically carved out of bass-wood.

POLLYWOGS OUT. An old Georgia farmer was in Fort Gaines recently and decided to take an oyster stew for dinner, as he had heard his neighbors talk so much about them. He called at a restaurant and ordered his dish. When he had finished eating, he was asked how he liked it. The farmer replied that he liked the soup very well, but he wished they had left the pollywogs out.

THEIR FAVORITES. The choir had kindly volunteered to sing the favorite hymns of the congregation. Each was requested to write his choice on a slip of paper and hand it in. Easily recognized as the chirography of the butcher was, "We shall meet on that beautiful shore." The euphuistic plumb-er chose, "All for me." The favorite of the baker was, "I knead thee, every hour." The young lawyer who had just hung out a sign for which the painter was dunning him, handed in, "Just as I am, without one plea."—Sam, the Searamouch.

Great indignation has been caused among factory girls at Burnley, England, by a notice which has been posted in one of the mills there. It is to the effect that all young girls employed must cease to wear fringe on the forehead after the prevailing fashion, and must part their hair down the center. Failure to comply is to be punished with dismissal.

An audacious young man put his arm around a young woman who sat in the same pew with him during service in the United Brethren Church at Fort Wayne, recently, and kissed her. She was so pleased that she laughed right out in meeting and others joined with her. These young people are to be indicted for disturbing a religious meeting.

The first paper made in New England was produced at Milton; the first linen at Londonderry; the first blankets at Ipswich; the first scythes and axes at Bridgewater; the first powder at Andover; the first glass at Quincy; and the first iron works were established at Lynn.

The Atlanta News knows of a man in southwest Georgia who moves so often that every time a wagon passes his house an old rooster which he owns will run to the doorsteps and cross its legs to be tied.

THE FASTEST. "The Flying Duce" train on the Old Colony road, running between Boston and Falmouth, makes the fastest time in America. The journey usually occupies three hours, but the "Duce" can do it in eighty minutes. It is reserved for the exclusive use of thirty-five men and their guests, these men paying $100 each in addition to the ordinary fare. Prominent among the promoters of the scheme were Messrs. Stephen M. Weld, J. Arthur Beebe, Ellerton L. Dorr and Ignatius Sargent, all of whom own cottages in or near Falmouth.

Capt. Thomas F. Temple, the newly-elected Commander of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, of Boston, is an old member of the National Lancers, says the Courier, and during the draft riot of 1863 was on duty with that organization on the day of his marriage; the wedding could not be postponed, neither could the riot; a furlough of one hour was granted the gallant soldier-bridegroom, and, galloping to Dorchester, the ceremony was performed, and the hero back to his post within the specified time. His wedding tour was a tour of guard duty.

SEA SHELLS. California carries on a large business in sea shells, which are gathered on its coast and shipped to Europe. One firm has a contract to ship forty tons of shells every sixty days. They are worth from $700 to $1,000 per ton. They are used in all kinds of decorative industries, returning to the United States from France vastly increased in price, when transformed into pearl buttons, brooches, shawl clasps, knife handles, or inlaid work. Tahiti shells, large flat mother-of-pearl shells, are worth from $1.50 to $4 each, and the finest selected pairs are sometimes sold for as much as $50.

HYDROPHOBIA. We learn from Dr. Abbott, of our State Board of Health, that in the whole State of Massachusetts there have been during the past forty years, about seventy-five deaths reported as being of hydrophobia, nearly two a year. In the same time there have been about 200,000 deaths by consumption.

In Boston there have been but two deaths reported of hydrophobia in the past thirty years. We always doubt cases of hydrophobia unless established by very able medical investigation and testimony.

THE CAPE COD SHIP CANAL. Private dispatches received at Sandwich from New York authoritatively state that Frederick A. Lockwood, the present contractor of the Cape Cod Ship Canal, has succeeded in interesting New York capitalists and bankers to aid financially in the construction of the canal, and that the papers have been signed. It is not inferred from this that Lockwood has sold his interest, but that he has secured capital for its construction, and that the work will begin at once in earnest. For the past year very little work has been done on the line, save the general repairs and improvement on the mammoth dredger.

AN OFFICIAL DOCUMENT. The following is a verbatim copy of an application received from an interior Pennsylvania town at the Post Office Department, at Washington, Monday:

"mi der Sur I want the pos Toffis at Skrabblies mills i can run it jim Stiles he wants it But he is a Rich man an i am a pore Man but he al the Saim i sen yew a Postidge stamp with Which yew May repli i hoap yew will Stan by me i have stud yew in Tim of Trubblil and i hoap tew stan by yew in Tim of Trubblil agane luv tew yew wif and dotter The spring ri looks well i awate ansur immediate Yours trewly" JON ANDREWS.

FORCE OF HABIT. A country minister, who, in addition to his clerical duties, followed the profession of a photographer, was called upon to perform the marriage ceremony.

"Now, then, young man," he said to the groom, who was nervous and excited, as all grooms ought to be, "just keep your eye on that crack in the wall, and try and look pleasant."—Harper's Bazaar.

Talk easy mit your hoosband when he comes on her house full ub mit inigorations. A kiss was more worth as a blue eye of his nose.—Carl Pretzel.

Phat a blessing it is, says Pat, slightly muddled, "that night never comes on 'til late in the day, when a man is all tired out, and he couldn't work no more, anyhow, at all, at all, now, even if it was morning."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

A miller fell asleep in his mill and bent forward until his hair got caught in some machinery, and almost a handful was pulled out. Of course it awakened him, and his first bewildered exclamation was: "Hang it, wife! what's the matter now?"

REGULATIONS
—OF THE—Board of Health
—OF THE—
TOWN OF QUINCY.

THE Board of Health of a town shall make such regulations as it judges necessary for the public health and safety, respecting nuisances, sources of filth, and causes of sickness within its town, whoever violates any such regulations shall forfeit a sum not exceeding one hundred dollars. Public Statutes, Chap. 80, Sec. 18.

REGULATION 1. Every householder shall keep his premises free from all nuisances and sources of filth that are injurious to the public health and safety.

REG. 2. All privy vaults and cesspools shall be emptied before the fifteenth day of May. During the summer season they shall be disinfected and emptied as often as shall be necessary to keep them free from offensive odors.

REG. 3. From the fifteenth day of May to the first day of October, no privy vault or cesspool shall be emptied between the hours of six o'clock in the morning and ten o'clock in the evening.

REG. 4. No person shall deposit the contents of any privy vault or cesspool, or any other filth, upon any premises within the limits of this town, without first having obtained a permit to do so from the Board of Health.

REG. 5. No privy, vault or cesspool that is not water-tight shall be maintained within two rods of any well, spring, or other source of water supply used for drinking purposes.

REG. 6. Water from the kitchen sink shall not be allowed to run under any house, nor shall any cesspool for the retention of such waste water be within five feet of any house, except the cesspool be cemented water-tight.

REG. 7. All putrid or decaying animal or vegetable matter, manure, garbage and every kind of filth must be removed from all cellars, yards and outbuildings before the first day of June.

REG. 8. No person shall throw or deposit in any street, sidewalk, court, square, public place, or vacant lot; or into any pond, creek, river, brook, canal, or ditch, any dead animals, decaying vegetables, offal, dirt, garbage, refuse, manure, or the contents of any privy, vault or cesspool, or filth of any kind. No person shall allow any liquid from swill teams to drain upon any public or private way within the town.

REG. 9. No person shall allow the sewage from his premises to flow into the canal, or into any pond, brook, or open ditch, or upon any sidewalk, gutter, or street surface, or upon any public or private way, or to form open stagnant pools in any place within the town.

REG. 10. No person shall be allowed to maintain a piggery, within the town without a permit from the Board of Health.

REG. 11. Any well, spring, cistern or other source of drinking water that is contaminated from any surface drainage, cesspool, privy, sink spout or other source of water pollution must be disused.

REG. 12. No person shall be allowed to erect any offensive trade or manufacture within the town, without the consent of the Board of Health.

REG. 13. When a householder knows that a person within his family is sick of cholera, small-pox, diphtheria, croup, scarlet fever, measles, or any other disease, dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Board of Health, and upon the death, recovery, or removal of such person, the rooms occupied and the articles used by him shall be disinfected by such householder in a manner approved by the Board of Health. Any person refusing or neglecting to comply with either of the above provisions shall forfeit a sum not exceeding one hundred dollars. Public statute, Chap. 80, Sec. 79.

REG. 14. When a physician knows that a person whom he is called to visit is infected with any disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the Board of Health, and if he refuses or neglects to give such notice he shall forfeit for such offence not less than fifty nor more than two hundred dollars. Public Statutes, Chap. 80, Sec. 80.

REG. 15. No child or adult person belonging to a household in which Small-pox, Diphtheria, Scarlet Fever, Measles, or any contagious disease exists, or whose residence has a common entrance with such household, shall be allowed to attend any public or private school until the expiration of two weeks after the death, recovery, or removal of such sick person; and every such child or adult person shall be required to present to the teacher of the school, a certificate from the attending physician, or a member of the Board of Health, stating that he is free from contagion, and that the requirements of this regulation have been complied with, Public Statutes, Chap. 138.

REG. 16. No person, teacher, or scholar shall become a member of any public or private school, until he has shown satisfactory evidence that he has been successfully vaccinated.

REG. 17. No person shall sell, offer for sale, or bring into the town for sale, any diseased, putrid, stale or unwholesome meat; fish, vegetables, fruit, or provisions or any adulterated article of food. Public Statutes, Chap. 253.

All complaints in relation to nuisances and sources of filth, injurious to the public health and comfort, must be made in writing to the Board of Health, or its agent.

Whenever complaint shall be made as aforesaid, the Board of Health, or its authorized agent, shall proceed to examine the premises complained of, and shall take measures to abate the nuisance, if such is found to exist, after giving legal notice to the parties entitled thereto.

These rules and regulations, and all the Statutes of the Commonwealth relating to health and disease, shall be strictly enforced in the town of Quincy.

Poetry.
Only a Song.

It was only a simple ballad,
Sung to a careless throng:
There were none who knew the singer
And few who heeded the song:

Yet the singer's voice was tender
And sweet as with love united;
Surely those hearts were hardened
That it left so proud and cold.

She sang of the wondrous glory
That touches the woods in spring,
Of the strange, soul-stirring vision
When "the hills break forth and sing."

Of the happy birds low warbling
The rhythm of the day,
And the quiet hush of the valleys
In the dusk of the gloaming gray.

And one in a distant corner
A woman wept with strife—
Herald in that song a message
From the springtime of her life.

Fair forms now up before her
From the mist of vanished years:
She sat in a happy blindness
Her eyes were veiled in tears.

Then when the song was ended,
And hushed the last sweet tone,
The listener rose up softly
And went on her way alone.

Once more to her life of labor
She passed; but her heart was strong;
And she prayed, "God bless the singer!
And oh, thank God for the song!"

ANNALS OF QUINCY, 1887.

DEPARTS BUILT AT WOLLASTON AND NORTH QUINCY.

Death of Rev. William P. Lind, D. D., while abroad.

January 18, "Cold Sunday." The thermometer registered twelve degrees below zero. A very violent snow storm came on in the afternoon and continued through the night and up to late into the afternoon of Monday. The wind was terrible and the snow drifted furiously. In the cuts of the Old Colony Railroad before President Bridges' bridge the cars were forced deep into the snow.

The first cars from Boston to Braintree did not pass through until Thursday.

March 4, the friends of President Buidham held an inauguration ball at the Hancock House.

May 1, the names of the following streets were accepted: Blue Hill, Forest, Wade, Union, Phelps, Water, Curvy, Howard, Inland, Fenno, Bridge, Woods and Fort.

May 30, news was first received here of the death of Rev. William P. Lind, D. D., of the First Church, who died at Edinburgh, on the 21st of March.

July 12, Charles E. Emery was accidently drowned in a spring on land of C. A.
Adams.

On the 23d, three houses in different parts of the town were struck during a thunder shower: one in the North district and two in the West.

RECAPTAS. Two regattas took place in August. At the first on the 8th of August there were six entries, the three prizes were won in the order given, Lanier, Wade and Cora.

The second race was off at Houghs Neck on the 21st, ten boats entered for one prize, which was won by the Wade.

August 11, an ecclesiastical council was held in the Town Hall to settle the troubles between Rev. Nelson Clark and the Congregational Society. Other councils were also held September 1st and 24th.

A small comet was visible in September.
November 22, the Hancock Light Guards visited Taunton and mustered four days.

November 3, March, Quincy, and Pleasant streets were accepted; also a private way from Granite street to the "Gas place." Marsh street is laid out 300 feet wide; 333 feet wide at School street and 333 feet wide at the southerly end. Quincy street 504 feet 11 in. long; 31 feet at Marsh street angle, and 33 feet from angle to Pleasant street. Pleasant street, 348 feet from Quincy to Water street, 33 feet wide.

December 2, Mr. George B. Nightingale was severely injured in consequence of jumping from the cars while in motion at the Wollaston depot. He died from the effects two days later.

"Hard Times" was heard on all sides this year, more especially in financial circles.

The North Quincy (Atlantic) and Wollaston depots were built in the spring of this year. The former has been enlarged and the latter replaced by a new brick structure.

Walling's Map of Quincy was published this year, agreeable to a vote of the town
March 3, 1886.

OBITUARY. Among the deaths this year were those of Daniel French, February 9, aged 77; Adam Hartsch, April 5, aged 84; Bryant B. Newcomb, May 12, aged 73; and Moses R. Marsh, December 26, aged 73.

FIRE DEPARTMENT. The fire department was called out but twice by alarms of fire in town, and once from Milton.

February 19, the Granite entertained the Hydrants of Milton. Quincy, built by Hummennan, arrived in town, and was worked at the Canal in the evening. It was cost $862.50. On the 3d of September the company took her to a fireman's masquerade in Worcester, where early in the trial she became disabled. On the return of the company on the 5th, they were met by the Tigers and escorted to Franklin Hall, where a collation was waiting.

September 7, the Hook and Ladder house was completed. It cost including land $864.80.

The Tiger, Granite and Culture engines were repaired and repaired during the year, and 900 feet of rubber hose purchased.

TOWNS OFFICERS. Moderator at annual meeting, George Marsh. Officers chosen:
Town Clerk, Franklin Curtis. Town

Population, Voters and Houses.
Quincy as Compared with the Other Towns in the County.

THE NUMBER AND AVERAGE SIZE OF THE FAMILIES IN MAY 1885.

The population of Norfolk County in May, 1885, was 102,142; a net gain in ten years of 15,831, or 15.38 per cent. Eighteen of the twenty-six towns in the county show gains, aggregating 18,121, or 28.03 per cent.
The other eight towns lost 4,300, or 18.16 per cent.

THE SQUIRE'S WIFE.

Squire Clover listened in silence, but with a quiet smile upon his lips, to the old woman's account of her various ups and downs in her younger days in trying to get possession of the girl of her choice.

But after they had all spoken he knocked the ashes out of his pipe, and proceeded to refill it, said:

"Ay, neighbors, ye've told some pretty queer stories, but I'll warrant I can tell one that'll match 'em. I rather guess 'twould astonish those acquainted with my quiet, modest-looking wife yonder to know how it was that I thought of taking her for better or worse."

"Now, David," expostulated Mrs. Clover, both reddening and smiling as she met her husband's quizzical look. "Why will you tell that silly story? If you hadn't cared to take me, you could have let me alone."

"Ah, sure it is easy talkin'," said the Squire, shaking his head with demure gravity. "But when a girl—an especially such a pretty one—flies directly into a fellow's arms, what else can he do? That's what I'd like to know!"

Laughingly declaring that "she'd stay to listen to no such nonsense," Mrs. Clover gathered up her work and ran away; and her husband, after shaking his jolly sides with silent laughter, until some of those present were fearful that apoplexy would be the result, gradually recovered himself and proceeded to satisfy the curiosity he had aroused thus:

"I was a poor boy, as perhaps you know, with nothin' but a pair of stout arms and broad shoulders to push my way in the world with; but I had a brave heart an' wasn't afraid of work, and on the whole, ain't no ways dissatisfied with what my hands have brought me."

"The summer I was twenty-one I went to work for Sue's father."

"Mr. Bean was a well-to-do farmer, and Sue his only child. He wasn't anyways stuck up about his property, but he set a great store by Sue; and, as he knew that some day she'd have as good a farm as there was in the county, nat'rally expected that the man who got her would be able to give as much as he took."

"So I had no more idea of ever bein' Sue's husband than I had of flyin', and yet the very first time I set eyes on her I knew, as well as I know now, that no other woman would ever be to me what she was."

"I remember the day just as well as if 'twas yesterday. I had seen Mr. Bean down to village the night afore, an' 'twas agreed that I come the next afternoon."

"When I came to the house—an' a nice looking house it was, with a broad piazza each side on't—I was dubious as to whether I had better go in the side or back door. I finally concluded to take the latter."

"As I passed by the kitchen window I heard a voice singin', as sweet and clear as a robin's, an' on lookin' in I saw Sue standin' by a table, kneadin' bread, an' I never see a prettier picture afore or since."

"Ah, lads, ye may talk about girls at the pianny, but they ain't half so much to my mind as the one I saw at the moldin-board; the flour she was siftin' was not any whiter than her round, uncovered arms, and with as bright a bloom on cheek an' lip as the roses that were clambering over the porch."

"Wal, arter starin' at her pretty face as long as I dared to—quite unbeknown to her—I knocked at the door."

"Come in!" sang out a voice that set my heart to beatin' like a sledge hammer."

"Lifting the latch I walked in. 'Is Mr. Bean to home?' I stammered, colorin' as red as a beet, as Sue turned her black eyes on me."

"Yes; father's somewhere about. He'll be in in a minute. Won't you take a seat?"

"In goin' across the room, I stumbled over a pail, which so flustered me that I sat down in a chair where a large gray cat lay curled up asleep, and who, spittin' an' clawin' at me, sprang out of the window."

"I could see by the dimples that come round Sue's pretty mouth that she had hard work to do to keep from laughing outright. But she didn't 'pear to take any notice on it, and pretty soon old Mr. Bean came in, an' then I began to feel more comfortable."

"They were real nice sort of folks, who treated their help like their own family, an' I soon began to feel at home."

"All but with Sue; I couldn't seem to say two or three words to her without blunderin', an' was always doin' some awkward thing or other, whenever I went near her."

"I don't think I'd have felt quite so shy if I had known her opinion of me; for I wasn't a bad lookin' chap in my young days—broad shouldered an' straight as an arrg—with big hazel eyes an' brown hair, as full of crinkles as curled maple."

"I hadn't been to Mr. Bean's long before I found out that Sue had a beau. His name was Silas Peterkin, son of the store-keeper down at the village."

"He was a white-faced, slim-waisted feller, with little hands an' feet, that I'd been ashamed to own, but which he seemed to feel mighty proud of."

"He used to come to see Sue about twice a week, dressed in his store clothes and lookin' as if he'd just stepped out of a band-box."

"Sue never seemed to act as though she had any partic'lar likin' for Silas; but 'twas easy seen that the old folks set great store by him an' was mighty pleasant at the idea of his steppin' up to their darter."

"As for me, I never see him sittin' by Sue, an' smirkin' up into her face, but what I felt as if I wanted to fling him, head first, out of the window."

"So matters went on until September, when Mr. Bean gave a huskin' party."

"We young fellers set to work with a will, an' afore sunset the corn was all husked and piled away, and the barn floor swept clean for the dance an' supper we was to have in the evenin'."

"Pretty soon the women folks began to flock in, all dressed in their best, an' lookin' as fresh an' bloomin' as a flower garden after a shower."

"But Sue was the prettiest of 'em, the hull lot, dressed in her white frock, with the pink ribbon tied around her waist."

"Silas Peterkin, he was there, of course, an' as soon as I see him I went to the house."

"As I was standin' on the back steps, out of sorts with myself an' everybody else, I heard a voice say:

"David!"

"An' turnin' round, I saw Sue, lookin' as smilin' as a basket of chips. 'Ain't you comin' down to the barn?' says she."

"I rather guess I ain't wanted," says I.

"Oh, yes, you are," says she; 'I want you.'

"She looked and spoke so sweet that I was c'enamost a mind to go. But jest then I heard Silas callin' her; an' mutterin' somethin' about havin' some tools to grind, I walked off."

"I was most sorry for't, when I caught a sight of her face as she walked away with Silas, an' saw how sober it was."

"Sittin' down on the back steps, I went to work; the raspin' of my file soundin' a deal pleasanter to my ears than the fiddlin', that floated up from the barn down in the medder."

"It had been uncommonly hot for a number of days past, but this had been the hottest one of all. Not a leaf moved, an' there was somethin' unnat'ral in the stillness of everythin' around. There was a strange look to the sky, too; it was streaked overhead with purple an' violet, with a sort of yellow glare in the west."

"Old Bose, the dog, who had been wanderin' restlessly about for the last hour, now set up a mournful howl."

"When I went to fodder the cattle I found the poor critters huddled together in one corner of the yard, utterin' low bellows of terror and dismay, their instincts warning them, as all these signs did me, of the tornado that was approachin'."

"Goin' back to the house I shut every door and window."

"Then thinkin' of the folks in the barn—that was the most in danger of anythin'—I ran down through the garden toward the medder where it stood."

"But I had hardly gone two rods before it came—liftin' me off my feet an' hurlin' me against an opposite fence!"

"I picked myself up an' hurried on. As I come in sight of the barn—or, rather, where it once stood—the air was filled with dust an' flyin' shingles an' timber!"

"As soon as it cleared away a bit, I saw Sue standin' in a most perilous position right in the midst of it!"

"I shouted to her to come away; and jest then the wind took her up as if she was but a feather, bearin' her directly toward me. I opened my arms, an' she came right into them."

"As she did so, one of the flyin' sticks hit one of my arms, makin' it useless; but holdin' her tight with the other, I took her to some low bushes in a little hollow between two hills."

"The tornado was as short as it was violent, and though a good deal of damage was done, luckily, no one was hurt much."

"Sue escaped without a scratch. My arm was broken; but considerin' who nursed me, you needn't waste any pity on me for that!"

"I heard afterward, as soon as the alarm was given, Silas Peterkin took to his heels, an' never stopped until he reached his father's door."

"Whether he heard that the old man vowed that he'd set Bose on him if he ever came nigh Sue ag'n, I can't say, but his visits ceased from that day."

"I sent him an invite to my weddin', which took place a few months arter; but as he didn't come I'm sort of mistrustful that he was afraid of another tornado."

Out of the Difficulty.

Old Dr. Hewson was distinguished for philanthropy. On one occasion the doctor had a case of malignant typhoid fever. He prescribed rest and nourishment for his patient.

"Give Dan plenty of chicken. He must have more nourishment."

"Shall I kill a chicken?"

"Yes, you'd better kill a young rooster; broil it well, and add plenty of butter. Patients with typhoid fever like plenty of gravy."

Dan's wife killed, dressed and cooked a fine chicken.

"That's about right," said the doctor, who was superintending the job, as he enviously eyed the chicken.

"Dan, how're you feeling?"

"First rate, Doctor, first rate."

"Let me feel your pulse?"

Dan extended his arm and hand.

"You're more feverish than usual. I just ordered your wife to broil a chicken, but you can't eat it; you're too feverish."

"What shall we do, Doctor?" inquired the wife.

"I see no way out of the difficulty but to eat the chicken ourselves. I once suffered from typhoid fever myself, madam!"—Troy Telegraph.

Singular Outcome.

A singular and unanticipated result has followed from changing the name of the South Plymouth post office to Manomet. The change was generally desired, and the postmaster, Mr. N. C. Bartlett, with whom everybody was satisfied, made himself quite active in the matter. On the object being attained it was found that under the rules and customs of the Post Office Department at Washington, when South Plymouth was abolished it made a clean sweep of postmaster, mail, agent and all, while the establishment of "Manomet" brought into existence an entirely new concern. Mr. Bartlett had thus unintentionally petitioned himself out of office, much to the regret of the people of that locality, whom he had satisfactorily served for a long time. Manomet post office is now authorized by the government, and Mr. Frank B. Holmes has been appointed in charge.—Old Colony Memorial.

Prohibitory State Convention.

The Prohibitory state convention has been called to meet in Worcester, Sept. 8th, when the shining lights in the organization will enjoy their customary good time in telling one another how much better they are than anybody else, and that Heaven will never be quite complete until they have registered. "Resolved that none but the elect shall see God, and that we are the elect," was the comforting verdict of a religious sect which once met in a Western state. History repeats itself, in this particular at least, with each recurring Prohibitory state convention.—Milford Journal.

HE WANTED NO TRICYCLE. This happened one evening recently, not a thousand miles from Cambridge: Two tricycles chanced to halt by the roadside for a brief rest, just as a group of Irish laborers were passing on their way home from work. Attracted by the bright, new machines, two of the men paused a moment to look at them. "If you only had a tricycle, Pat," said one of the 'cyclers to the nearer of the men, "you could ride to and from your employment."

"Ride to the devil!" said Pat, with a contemptuous look at the combination of man and wheels. "Dy ye think I came from the oild country to drive a donkey cart, bedad, and be me own horse."—Boston Record.

Oddities of the Atmosphere.

If it were possible to rise above the atmosphere which surrounds the earth we should see nothing but an intense and sharply defined ball of fire, while every thing else would be wrapped in total darkness. There could be no diffusion of light without an atmosphere, or some similar medium for it to act upon; but if the air about us extended to a height of 700 miles, the rays of the sun could not penetrate it, and we should be left in darkness. At the depth of 790 feet in the ocean the light ceases altogether, one-half of the light being absorbed in passing through only seven feet of the purest water.

HOW TO KILL MOTHS AND DISINFEST. I have never, during my twenty years of housekeeping, had a moth of any description, and attribute my immunity entirely to the use of turpentine. After each of my carpets is well swept, it is at once gone over with the following mixture: To three quarts of pure, cold water add three tablespoonfuls of turpentine. In this thoroughly saturate a sponge, squeeze about two-thirds dry, and go over each breadth separately and in all the corners. As often as the water becomes soiled take a fresh supply. You will be surprised to see how beautifully it will cleanse your carpets, besides being one of the best of disinfectants. My father, an eminent physician, had this always practiced in his family, and we were never troubled with fevers any more than moths.—Philadelphia Press.

There is a young man about 20 years old in Athens, Ga., who says he lives on thirty cents a week.

SUPPLEMENT.

SATURDAY, JUNE 26, 1886.

Read and Reflect.

The following from a western contemporary will receive the unanimous endorsement of the press:

There are a great many people who think when they pay $2.50 for a paper they own the concern; that they have a right to demand the insertion of notices of one kind and another without pay. We want to say here and now, once and for all, that is a mistake. Their $2.50 entitles them to 52 papers, no more, no less, and when they get that they have valued received. The merchant's goods are his stock in trade. He can't afford to give them away. A newspaper man's space is his stock in trade. Therefore, don't ask him to give it away. If you have a matter of news of general interest to his readers he will be glad to receive, print and thank you for it, but if you want notices and expect to get gain from them, in the name of fairness don't ask him to take dead-head, non-transferable tickets. If you want to pay in tickets, and he is willing to receive them, give him the same kind of tickets he could buy with the money if you paid for your notices. Deal fairly with him and he'll deal fairly with you. But do not make him feel that he is a dead-head after he has paid three times as much for his tickets as anyone else. This is local as well as general in its application.—Exchange.

Swedish Manners.

One great peculiarity of traveling in Sweden is the extreme quiet and lack of flurry. The Swedish are a taciturn and noiseless people. They do much by signs, and never shout; a Swedish crowd makes singularly little sound. Swedes, even of the lowest class, never push or jostle. It is the custom to do so much bowing and hat-lifting that one is obliged to move more slowly than in England to give time for all this courtesy. When a train leaves a platform, or a steambot a pier, all the lookers-on lift their hats to the departing passengers, and bow to them, a compliment returned by the travelers. If you address the poorest person in the streets, you must lift your hat. A gentleman passing a lady on the stairs of a hotel must do the same. To enter a shop or a bank with one's hat on is a terrible breach of good manners. If you enter or leave a coffee-room you must bow to all the occupants. Passengers on board the little steamers which ply about Stockholm invariably raise their hats to occupants of any other boat which passes near them. The very men in charge of the locks on the canal bow politely to the sailors as the boats go through. Imagine English barges indulging in such amenities.—My Sweden, in London Society.

A DEFINITE ANSWER. A story is told of a teacher who was talking to her scholars regarding the order of the highest beings. It was a very profitable subject, and one in which the children took an uncommon interest. She told them that the angels came first in perfection; and when she asked them who came next, and was readily answered by one boy, "Man!" she felt encouraged to ask:

"What comes next to man?" And here a little shaver who was evidently smarting under a defeat in the preceding question, immediately distanced all competition by promptly shouting:

"His undershirt, ma'am!"

CAUTION. Young men or ladies, whose attention may be attracted by advertisements of the several telegraph schools soliciting students, and representing that situations are awaiting graduates at salaries varying from $12 to $25 per week, according to the capability of the operator, should make thorough inquiries into the standing of such institutions before accepting the terms of admission. As a rule, such schools are traps to catch tuition fees from those expecting to improve their condition by a term of instruction, but generally return to their previous vocations with a sad experience and a depleted purse.

GRASS WIDOW. A little three-year-old, the young hopeful of an estimable lady on Piety Hill, is just beginning to verge into the period of childish investigation, doubt and inquiry. The little fellow had heard the words "grass widow," and hastened to inquire its meaning of his mother. By way of illustration she told him that if his father should run away and leave her alone without any cause then she would be a grass widow. The future senator looked up in his mother's face and said, "Then what'd I be? Would I be a grasshopper?"

Adelaide Neilsson began life as a child's nurse.

H. W. Blanchard, of Neponset, a native of Quincy, says when he was an apprentice in that town, he knew an old gentleman by the name of Joseph Bass. He was a man of considerable intelligence. Mr. Charles Breck, the present Town Treasurer of Milton, took his first lessons in surveying of this man. In the time of the Revolutionary War, Mr. Bass went to Philadelphia as secretary and servant of John Adams, Mr. Adams being at that time a member of the Continental Congress. Mr. Bass went out one morning and heard news of a battle on Bunker Hill; he at once went to Mr. Adams' room and informed him of the fact, and addressing Mr. Adams asked, "Where is Bunker Hill?" "I do not know," was the reply. "I think it must be in Charles-town." Bunker Hill was but little known at that time, outside of Charles-town.—Dorchester Beacon.

A few nights ago a Dansville lady wanted to drive a few tacks into her carpet, so she went to a drawer where she kept such things, and in the darkness reached in and picked up what she supposed was half a dozen tacks. She went and drove them in the carpet, only she didn't, for they were cloves instead of tacks, and though sharp enough to the taste, they were not pointed enough to drive. Of course her family didn't laugh at her. Oh no!—Dansville Breeze.

Pilgrim Hall, at Plymouth, has been enriched by the addition to its collection of the long, narrow square-toed pink satin slipper that was once worn by Mrs. Susanna White, widow of William White, of the "Mayflower," a second wife of Governor Edward Winslow. There is no doubt as to its authenticity.

The railway construction in the United States in 1885 was 3,190 1-2 miles of main line, making the aggregate mileage in the United States at the commencement of 1886, 128,569 miles.

Wisconsin has a unique breach of promise case which is to be tried at Harrisville in a few days. The lady is 65 years old and the gentleman 75. The lady claims indemnity to the amount of one cow and calf, six hens and one rooster.

"No," snappishly said the summer boarding-house keeper, to Mrs. Culture, of Boston, who was inquiring as to the healthfulness of the locality; "no we ain't got no typhoid germs, and there hain't been no calls for 'em, either. Folks is wanting everything now-a-days, and ain't satisfied with clean beds and plenty of what's good to eat."—New York Mail.

THE TRAMP NUISANCE. We have alluded the past two weeks to the growing and intolerable tramp nuisance. These fellows, most of whom are able-bodied, drink poor whiskey, thieve and insult ladies. When people understand that instead of charity it is a wrong to the community to encourage these fellows, it will be well.—Framingham Tribune.

Miss Abby E. Davis, a young but wide-awake teacher in one of the schools of Warner, N. H., was startled a few days since by falling ashes and sparks from the wall above, where the stove-pipe entered the chimney. With great presence of mind, she had the books and other movables carried out, and then mounting the wood-pile in the hall, ascended to the locality of the fire, which was making rapid headway. She called on the children to bring water, and tearing away the plastering with her hands, extinguished the flames and saved the building.

The oldest woman in the United States has been discovered at Kokomo, Ind. She celebrated her one hundred and seventeenth birthday the other day. Her eldest son was 81 years old the same day.

Edgar Lyon of Saugatuck, Conn., died the other day at the age of exactly 50 years, his death occurring on the same day of the week and month and at precisely the same hour as his birth.

All the newspapers in the world taken altogether, a century ago, used in a day less paper than is now used in the same time by the newspapers of Boston alone.

Charles Dickens has begun to give readings from his illustrious father's writings, in English provincial towns. Another son is just dead.

Recent discoveries prove that the art of wood engraving originated with the Arabs about the ninth century.

A Michigan horse that died at the age of thirty, in the township of Columbia, gets a quarter of a column in the Quincy Patriot under head of "In Memoriam."

The decrease in the public debt for May was $8,828,566. The interest-bearing debt is now $1,220,650,312.

The four babies born to Mrs. L. Grindahl of Chetek, Wisconsin, have been given the distinguished names of Lincoln, Grant, Garfield and Hancock.

Financially, Boston stands to-day first among the cities of the country. Commercially, she is second only to the great city of New York.

It has been estimated that the average salary of a newspaper man is $700, against $650 for a lawyer, and $600 for a minister.

Lucerne, Switzerland, has an ancient wall with eight towers. The builders must have worked under the eight-tower law.

Heliotropes and geraniums in California grow as large as lilac trees.

The underground problem is being speedily solved in Chicago. The wires are being fast buried, and will all be down by winter; and, more significant still, the various electric companies confess that the service is greatly improved by the change.

A Milton, N. Y., man has invented a wheelbarrow that can be used for a saw-buck, a wood block, a step ladder and a tool rack, besides doing double duty as a wheelbarrow.

At the entrance of a restaurant in Pesth, where young ladies are employed, is posted a notice reading: "Gentlemen are requested to abstain from kissing the waitresses on the stairs, as this is a fruitful source of breakage and impedes the service."

Fitchburg if fifty miles from Boston, Gardner sixty-five, Athol eighty-two, Greenfield one hundred and five, Hoosac Tunnel one hundred and thirty-five, and North Adams one hundred and forty-three.

A Massachusetts manufacturer, who employs 700 men in the small town where his factories are located, recently presented each man with a new $10 bill that he had previously marked for identification. The second day afterward 410 of these bills had been deposited in the various banks by saloon keepers, and in consequence the workmen are said to have organized a temperance society.

SERVED HIM RIGHT. Charles A. Buddensick, the New York contractor, who built unsafe tenement houses, some of which tumbled down and killed one or more persons, has been convicted of manslaughter, and sentenced to ten years imprisonment.

The migration to the Northwest from Scandinavia has been very large, and it is believed that there are now in this country more than 400,000 Swedes and Norwegians.

This and That.

She used to meet him at the gate with a kiss and a smile, like morning light; but now she comes to the door in a dingy old calico wrapper and shoes down at the heel, shades her eyes with her hand, and with a voice that seems to need oiling, inquires: "Did you bring that butter?"

They had been married six weeks, and she said: "Now don't you stay out late, but come home soon tho' our 'little wifey tifey!'" They had been married six years, and she said, "If you go out to-night, Smith, I'm going to lock up the house, and go and sleep at mother's."

"God help the child that trespasses upon these grounds," is inscribed upon a sign a Lowell woman has erected in her garden. To which the Boston Herald responds: "God help the man who has to live with the woman who has put up such a sign."

RESENTING AN INTERRUPTION.—May and Edith are sisters, four and five years old respectively. May had been very naughty, and mamma had taken her over her knee to administer corporal punishment, when Edith suddenly pushed the door ajar and peeped in.

Turning her chubby face as far round toward her sister as the peculiar position would admit, May said very gravely:

"Go right out, Edie! don't you see I'm busy?" It is needless to say that mamma granted a respite.

A plant has been discovered in Central America from which "real" ostrich feathers will soon be made.
